All That Glisters.
Not Trusting the Senate.
Gold in Russian Hills.
Pullman Bonus Plan.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"ALL THAT glisters is not gold." That is how Shakespeare has it. Not "all is not gold that glitters."

Whichever way you put it, the late Nixon-Nirdlinger would now agree with you. An amusement promoter, he was violently interested in a lovely little lady whose admirable exterior won the title of "Miss St. Louis" in a beauty contest. He married her, promising to make her famous all over the world.

The little lady has just shot and killed him at Nice, France, telling the police he accused her of "having an Italian lover" and showing cruel finger marks on her throat.

FRENCH JUSTICE will attend to all that. We remind young gentlemen, "all the beauty of the world, 'tis but skin deep," and you never can tell what you will find a little deeper.

A plain, old-fashioned girl, with a white dress, a blue sash and a ribbon or a hair comb in her hair, is perhaps the safest prospect, even though she may not be "Miss Anybody."

OUR GOVERNMENT, you are told, seeks some way of doing what Great Britain wants done about our Navy, without submitting the matter to the United States Senate.

When you have a government that will not give the Senate an opportunity to express its opinion, you know there is something wrong with the government or the Senate, or both.

YOU READ also that the British are alarmed by French plans to build a powerful submarine fleet, regardless of any naval pacts.

We take the orders of Britain and pretend to like them.

But the French, unlike us, are not docile, and they are logical. They have just finished one war, bearing the brunt while England was getting her men ready. They don't mean to have another such experience, and will keep submarines enough to sink anything that floats. In addition, they have the most powerful fighting air fleet in the world.

WHILE THIS country wonders whether the Russians are quite good enough to do business with us, Germany sends 17 of her biggest industrialists on on a trip through Russia.

Those gentlemen bring back orders for about $75,000,000 worth of goods, and it is believed that Russian sales in Germany for the current year will amount to $200,000,000, which Germany considers worth having.

THE PRESIDENT of the Pullman Company, D. A. Crawford, has arranged for Pullman car conductors to earn "extra money." They will get commissions on sales of upper berths, sales of a whole section to one traveler on favorable terms, also an allowance for convincing passengers that they want better accommodations than those reserved.

THIS WILL start salesmanship among Pullman conductors, increase the incomes of many, and perhaps promote similar profit-sharing elsewhere. It pays to give men a cash interest in their work.

Mr. Crawford became head of the Pullman Company suddenly, on the death of his predecessor, Mr. Carry, at the very peak of prosperity. Suddenly the bottom dropped out from under, but he proposes to establish a new bottom.

WASHINGTON officials say the soldiers' "bonus money will soon be spent for NEW goods, little of it spent to pay old debts."

We believe that buying new goods to the extent of a billion dollars or thereabouts will do more than anything else could to stimulate prosperity.

PAYING OFF old debts would also help. However, the money belongs to the soldiers and is theirs to do with as they please. What they do is their business.

Certainly it can only help the nation to pay a billion or a billion and a half to those that have earned it, and will spend it.

THE WAR Department yesterday announced the allotment of $75,000,000 for river and harbor work. The Missouri River gets the largest allocation, more than $6,000,000. This will put a good many men to work.

Seventy-five million dollars seems a good deal of money, but it really isn't much for this rich country.

Little Holland, short of land, stealing it from the North Sea by building dikes, and filling in, is spending $75,000,000 now on one single reclamation project. All depends on how wisely you use your money.

IF HUMAN beings could put an end to war, with its frightful expense, that runs into billions a year with us, every swamp could be drained, every desert on earth irrigated, mosquitoes, rats and other disease-spreading creatures eliminated.

But human beings themselves are still animals, and will long cling to the chief animal pastime—fighting.

ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED editors, publishers, writers and artists of 700 newspapers, printed in schools and colleges throughout the country, are gathered at Columbia University in New York Editors of college newspapers could be, and some are, among the most useful in journalism. They reach the young mind while it is open to new ideas.

JOHNSTOWN 'CONTROL' ASSAILED

Officials Feared to Protest On Rates, Inquiry at Harrisburg Informed

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, March 13.—Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem Steel king, will be asked, and perhaps subpenaed, to appear before the Moore committee investigating public utilities, it was learned today.

D. Glenn Moore, chairman, will consider the move late today, he told Representative Louis Hagmaier, a member of the committee, who suggested the move.

The Rev. James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, and other members of the group, agreed that Schwab and Mayor O. W. Saylor of Johnstown, should be asked to answer charges that Johnstown is controlled by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. Edward McCloskey, of Johnstown, testified yesterday to that effect, adding that the Mayor and other officials feared to protest against what he termed unjust utility rates and practices.

CHARGE AGAINST PITT

The steel company and utilities, he charged, wielded such power that even the schools teachers and other employes were afraid to complain for fear they or their friends would lose their jobs.

McCloskey charged the University of Pittsburgh taught public utilities in its Johnstown branch and from the corporation's viewpoint.

Mayor Saylor had written a letter to the effect that he would appear yesterday, but did not. If he is subpenaed, he will be the first to be so summoned. All witnesses before the Moore committee so far have appeared in answer to invitation.

William W. Colledge, part-time University of Pittsburgh instructor and an accountant, was the final witness last night and again

$15,000,000 P.R.R. ORDER GIVEN HERE

Westinghouse Shares in Contracts to Electrify N. Y.-Washington Line

The Pennsylvania Railroad today was to place an order for $15,000,000 worth of locomotives and other electrical equipment with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. It is understood that the road will award contracts for 69 locomotives, more than one-half of which will be made by Westinghouse at its East Pittsburgh plant.

The orders will be forerunners of even larger contracts to be placed in the coming two years. The locomotives will be the first of 240 required for the $175,000,000 electrification between New York and Washington.

STEEL, COPPER NEEDED

The entire project will require 150,000 tons of steel and 60,000,000 pounds of copper. The portion of the orders not to be filled by Westinghouse will be awarded to General Electric.

Officials of the railroad have stated that between a third and a fourth of the orders will be placed in 1931. The last of the orders will probably be placed in 1933.

BONDS SOLD

Funds to pay for the first part of the electrification have been obtained by the sale last week of $50,000,000 of general mortgage bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of $27,000,000 of subsidiary company bonds earlier in the year.

Equipment trust notes may also be sold to pay for the locomotives. Additional financing may also be done next year.

Engineers at Westinghouse have been working on the plans for over a year. The electrification work is being speeded up to help the unemployment situation.

WANT CITY'S BUSINESS AFFAIRS REVISED

Public Tips Park on Buying As Voters' League Opens New Drive on Methods

A sweeping reorganization of City Council methods was demanded today by the League of Women Voters.

Diverting their attention temporarily from the probe and audit of the Department of Supplies, Mrs. J. O. Miller revealed today that members of the League have been scanning the minutes of City Council. She said:

"So far from the investigation we have failed to see where there is any careful consideration given by Council to budgets or other matters."

NOT BUSINESS LIKE

Speaking at a League luncheon in Kaufmann's, Mrs. Miller charged City Council with "unbusiness-like methods." She said:

"Do we pay the councilmen $8,000 a year just to attend sessions? If a banker employs an executive he is expected to know something, and to do something."

"We are checking through City Council's actions on sales of city property, releases of liens and similar matters. We have only been able to go through six months of 1930, but we have found that Council needs a reorganization in its methods.

"Our summary will be for the urging of a constructive plan to place Council on a thorough business basis."

WATCH HARRISBURG

Mrs. Miller warned League members not to concentrate altogether upon the food probe, but to watch the actions at Harrisburg. She warned that while Gov. Pinchot is active in the investigation of the Public Service Commission the local "plunder gang"

LINK POLICEMAN IN BEER PARTY

That Police Lieut. Edward Moser, attached to the South Side Police Station, had sold tickets to a stag party at which beer was sold for 14 cents a glass and whisky was dispensed at 42 cents, was testified this morning in Morals Court before Magistrate Thomas Jones.

Informed of the testimony, Director James M. Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, said he would immediately start an investigation. Director Clark instructed Inspector Dennis Hennessy, in charge of the South Side district, to question Lieut. Moser.

The testimony was given at the hearing of five men on charges of disorderly conduct. They were accused by John Conson, 38, of 603 Larkins way, who said he had been attacked and slugged in Carson street. Unable to identify any of the five, Frank Baronowski, 18, Carson street; Anthony Zaninski, 20, of 156 Forty-fifth street; John Seiferth, 21, Bausman street; Stanley Pruszynski, 20, 142 Twenty-sixth street, and Harry Kock, 35, 141 South Twenty-fourth street, were discharged.

Baronowski denied the charges. He said they were en route to their homes from a stag party given by the Sixteenth Ward Men's Regular Republican organization at Kriefer Hall, Arlington avenue, when arrested. He testified:

"I bought 10 tickets for the party from Lieut. Moser and invited some of my friends to the affair. I didn't slug this fellow. You can get in touch with Lieut. Moser and he will also tell you that none of us was drunk."

MELLON, BRIDE RETURN HERE

The bridegroom had succeeded in losing himself in the confusion of the station platform. Entering one of the two automobiles waiting for his party, young Mellon departed from the scene, leaving Mrs. Mellon in care of his brother, Matthew Mellon, who had met

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern today revealed that he had refused to sign the debt statement authorizing the issuance of bonds for the purchase of the Town Hall site.

His action may block the purchase, it was asserted, and will undoubtedly delay the purchase of the Nicola site, recently authorized by the commissioners.

McGovern said that he had never heard of the issuance of bonds with the signatures of only two of the commissioners.

COURT UPHOLDS EAGLES' RAIDS

Petition of the New Kensington lodge of the Fraternal Order of Eagles seeking suppression of evidence and quashing of a search warrant because, it was alleged, prohibition agents used bogus membership cards to gain admission to the club rooms, was refused by Judge Nelson McVicar in Federal Court today.

Agents raided the lodge November 18, and during a hearing on the petition admitted that they had used faked membership cards.

Judge McVicar said in his opinion:

"Evidence has always been received in criminal cases of officers or representatives of the public who join gangs of robbers or murderers, took oaths of secrecy, entered the houses of the members thereof, entered into criminal conspiracy with its members, which was done for the purpose of investigating crime, and the arrest and conviction of the criminals."

Hoover Heralds Business Upturn; Government 'Won't Rock Boat'

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Sensing a significant improvement in business sentiment, President Hoover desires to keep the government from rocking the boat. This was learned officially today.

President Hoover thinks that the time has passed for dramatic business stabilization conferences, such as were held at the White House in November, 1929. The thought now is that spectacular government gestures in the direction of promoting business recovery would frighten people at this transitional period when natural forces are overcoming the fear psychosis, which reached a climax last December.

The administration has not relaxed its efforts to be helpful, but is proceeding quietly, co-operating with individual sick industries, and keeping its efforts off the first page. The White House points with pride to the recent substantial strides made in the cotton textile trade, which has responded to a rationalization program partly inspired and encouraged by

Humans Resemble Gorillas, Own Form 'Divine'—Shaw

CAIRO, Egypt, March 13.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw has been hoaxed into giving an interview, but all will be forgiven if he can get Rudyard Kipling into the same boat.

The newspaper Reveil said today Shaw had been so hotly pursued by admirers since his arrival here that he instructed the hotel porter:

"Tell 'em I'm dead."

But a French journalist got in by scribbling on his card:

"Einstein's nephew wants to shake hands with Shaw."

When Shaw received him, the reporter asked:

"What do you think of nudism?"

Shaw's reply was:

"When one's body is so esthetically formed as mine, one likes the world to admire it. Nudity puts an end to the Darwinian quarrel, for when they are naked all humans look like gorillas."

When Shaw discovered the hoax he told the journalist he would be forgiven if he would play the same trick on Kipling, who is now at Assuan.

PROGRESSIVES FRAME REFORM PLANS, OPEN CRUSADE

WIDE RANGE COVERED IN PROGRAM

3 Committees Offer Reports; 2 Others Will Continue Study; Meetings to Go On BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, chairman of the Progressive conference, said today the only hope for a liberal presidential candidate is in the Democratic party.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Striking out over the heads of party leaders, the non-partisan progressive group of Congress today began its campaign to win the support of the American people on a legislative program, ranging from the direct election of presidents to the enforcement of the bill of rights, tariff reforms and relief of farm and unemployment distress.

The progressive agenda, which is to be submitted to the people before December, covered a multitude of proposals under the issues of farm relief, unemployment relief, tariff revision, public utility regulation, and governmental reform. This was the outcome of the two-day session of the National Conference of Progressives.

FURTHER STUDY

Three conference committees submitted reports. Two other committees—a public utility committee, headed by Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, Republican Insurgent leader of the Senate; and a farm relief committee, led by Senator William E. Borah, Idaho Independent—will submit legislative recommendations after further study.

The Progressives made it plain their two-day conference was but the opening shot in a finish fight to win popular support of their principles in government.

Talk of forming a third party to combat the two older parties was dismissed when Norris insisted it would prove a futile gesture until the Constitution is amended to abolish the electoral college.

Consequently the conference immediately approved a declaration for the direct election of presidents, and the Progressives included it in their program.

The three reports submitted to the conference were studded with recommendations and complaints. An analysis of these reports follows:

Unemployment Committee headed by Senator Robert La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, predicted worse times ahead and exhaustion of local relief funds in a month; charged the Hoover administration and industrial leaders with failing to meet the unemployment crisis; condemned Congress for adjourning without providing relief; recommended a national employment-planning commission; indorsed the vetoed Wagner federal employment agency bill, and provided for further study of employment conditions, with a view to demanding a special session of the new Congress if conditions justify.

Tariff Committee, headed by Senator Costigan (Dem.), of Colorado, branded the Smoot-Hawley bill as the "product of discredited logrolling and bankrupt statesmanship;" charged administration with giving agriculture [illegible] it asked for bread," [illegible]nded inauguration of [illegible]ariff policy "tested [illegible] benefits to farmers, wage-earners and our consuming public;" demanded recapture by Congress of the tariff-changing [illegible]wers now held by the President, [illegible]ndorsed an impartial, non-[illegible]ed efficient tariff com-[illegible]n solely as a fact-[illegible]ngress.

M[illegible] 'NUE

Retu[illegible] Government [illegible] by Senator Cuttin[illegible] New Mexico, recommen[illegible]gthening the corrupt prac[illegible] act to cover primary elections; speedy submission of the proposed constitutional amendement abolishing "lame duck" sessions of Congress; passage of an effective anti-injunction bill; strengthening the direct primary law; provision for the appearance of cabinet members on the floors of Congress; new laws to guarantee the bill of rights, and to punish official lawlessness; repeal of the espionage act; prohibition of the use of government agents provocateur and federal wire-tapping practices; banning censorship of newspapers, magazines and books, and proposed further study on direct election of presidents; congressional control over executive departments, and elimination of minor legislation from congressional channels.

$2,000,000 FOR YEAR'S SERVICE TO EXECUTIVE

Tobacco Company Chief's Reward Exceeds That Of Bethlehem Steel Head

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Having carried on a heated debate on whether an executive is worth a million dollars a year, Wall Street suddenly finds that apparently it has one in its midst who received twice that amount in 1930.

The American Tobacco Company is estimated to have paid its president approximately $2,283,000 last year. His services thus rewarded were extraordinary, as viewed from the annual earnings statement.

In a year that was either lean or unprofitable for many of the nation's leading corporations, the country's largest unit in the tobacco industry piled up a net income of $43,000,000, which was more than 40 per cent greater than the previus year when the country was prospering.

BOOKS TO BE SCANNED

Nevertheless, the controversy over how a big corporation should reward executives for extraordinary services rages.

Starting with litigation over the bonus system adopted by Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which netted its president well over a million for 1929, a group of American Tobacco stockholders, headed by Richard Reid Rogers, has obtained permission through the Supreme Court of New York to inspect the company's books to learn details of its stock bonus plan.

The 1930 pay check of American Tobacco's president, George Washington Hill, amounted to a cool million, and in addition the distribution of stock to employes, approved by the directors last year, put 13,440 shares into his strong box at the low price of $25 a share, or a discount of about $1,283,000 from the current market price.

NOT IN "WHO'S WHO"

It was the Duke family who created the tobacco dynasty, but it was a Hill—George Washington Hill—who assumed a heritage left him by his father, and built the company to its present stature. He is not in "Who's Who," nor will you find an imposing list of companies after his name in the Directory of Directors, but he is Wall street's two-million-dollar-a-year man—for 1930 at least.

CLERGYMAN TO ACCUSE WALKER

Charges Will Be Submitted Roosevelt With Demand For City-Wide Inquiry

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—John Haynes Holmes, clergyman and chairman of the city affairs committee, a citizens' organization, announced today he would file with Gov. Roosevelt specific charges against Mayor Walker, involving "incompetence, gross neglect and indifference to the welfare of the city."

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, vice chairman of the committee, said he favored waiting until the Mayor returned from California and that a decision would be made by the committee today. Newspapers predicted the charges would be filed at once.

DEMAND INQUIRY

A committee of the directors of the Greater New York Federation of Churches, representing 475,000 members in seven Protestant denominations, has adopted a resolution demanding a non-partisan, city-wide investigation "that shall reveal both the innocent and the guilty." Copies were sent to Gov. Roosevelt and members of the Legislature.

The resolution read:

"The revelations of the past few weeks concerning the conditions that obtain in this city have shocked the moral sense of the community. There have multiplied charges of crime which have gone unpunished, of graft and bribery found even among those sworn faithfully to administer our laws, and of wide-spread civic corruption which have undermined the confidence of the people."

SOCIALISTS ACT

The Socialist committee on public affairs, headed by Norman Thomas and Morris Hillquit, in letters to the Republican and Democratic leaders of the Legislature, urged a tri-party investigation, sponsored by the Legislature and conducted by representatives of all three parties.

Other organizations which have taken action in regard to civic affairs are the Citizens Union, the Institute for Public Service, the Society for Prevention of Crime and the New York Board of Trade. The latter announced the formation of a secret committee, similar to the "secret six" in Chicago, for the "prevention and punishment of crime."

District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain definitely denied that he would resign rather than face the impending inquiry by Commissioner Samuel Seabury. He said:

"I shall not resign."

SENIORS FIGHT RUM OUSTERS

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 13.—(AP.)—More than 100 seniors at the University of Minnesota Farm School today threatened to "walk out" of commencement exercises March 25 unless 13 of their fellow classmen, suspended for liquor drinking, are allowed to graduate.

While the campus seethed with indignation over what students termed "unfairness" preparations were made to launch a legislative inquiry into the circumstances of the case today.

Parents of the 13 students went to the state capitol yesterday to protest to the Legislature and to ask for an investigation. Some parents blamed the trouble on lack of proper supervision at the school.

In informal conferences last night, 108 members of the senior class, said they would not attend baccalaureate services Sunday nor commencement exercises March 25 unless the 13 are reinstated.

At Minneapolis, University of Minnesota officials were co-operating with federal prohibition agents who said they were seeking to drive out bootlegging activities in the vicinity of the school grounds.

Latvian Traffic Tied Up by Snow

RIGA, Latvia, March 13.—(AP.)—Railroad and highway traffic throughout Latvia was demoralized today by one of the heaviest snowfalls in the memory of the country.

At Liepaja, in Courland, a passenger train was derailed by a drift. The engine and a baggage car plunged down an embankment and the engineer and fireman were injured seriously. In the same town a Riga train was snowbound all night.

Missouri Official's Impeachment Asked

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 13.—(INS.)—For the first time in nearly three-quarters of a century, impeachment charges were presented in the House today when a special House committee presented nine articles of impeachment against State Treasurer Larry Brunk. The articles charge high crimes, misdemeanor and misconduct in office.

PROBE WIDENS IN 'GIRL MART'

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—(INS.)—Fresh disclosures in the Hollywood "girl bazar" case were promised today with the arrival from San Diego of two district attorney's investigators who are to question two girls in addition to the three now held in technical custody.

Investigation of the "girl mart" thus far has resulted in the arrest and arraignment of Alexander Pantages, multi-millionaire showman; Jesse Shreve, San Diego business man, and John P. Mills, wealthy broker. All were accused of statutory charges involving young girls furnished by the "mart" for hotel parties with men.

U. S. LIFTS BAN ON CLASSICS

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—Five literary classics once tabooed by Uncle Sam have obtained official sufferance in this country under liberalization of censorship effected by the 1930 tariff act.

The Arabian Nights, the Memoirs of Casanova, Rabelais' "Gargantua and Pantagruel," the Decameron of Boccacio, and Apuleius' "The Golden Ass" have been recognized by the Treasury as classics, and admitted for importation.

Under this decision, faithful and unexpurgated translations have a clean bill of health. Certain editions, as those containing illustrations deemed obscene, still may be excluded.

Soon the admissability of books dealing with birth control is to have a test in a New York federal district court. Marie Stopes' British viewpoint on "Married Love," is the point of contention and the outcome will set a precedent.

PINCHOT POLICE HEARING SET

HARRISBURG, March 13.—Gov. Pinchot today announced his intention of holding a public hearing on his industrial police bill. This hearing is to be held on March 20.

Attendance will be by invitation, he told newspapermen.

The bill of Representative Musmanno, Allegheny, was given a hearing this week before the House committee.

Concerning the Musmanno bill, the Governor said:

"I suppose it will also be discussed."

SCHWAB FACES QUIZ CALL

He introduced testimony to show that in 1929 both the Duquesne Light Company and the West Penn Power Company received 50 per cent more net returns from their properties than the 7 per cent considered a fair profit.

The Duquesne concern was listed, he testified, as paying 10.56 per cent annually, and the West Penn 10.36 per cent.

Analyzing the Duquesne Light Company report to the Public Service Commission, he said the profit for 1929 was based on a fixed capital of $159,872,259. From this was deducted $7,436,928 for construction in progress during the year, giving a valuation of $152,435,314.

A reserve for renewals and replacements, $10,511,259, gave a depreciated book value at the end of 1929 of $41,924,071. The company in that year reported a net operating revenue of $14,989,180 which, divided by the depreciated book value of fixed assets, showed a profit of 10.56 per cent.

Colledge cited 52 companies in all, their profits ranging from zero to 69 per cent, this highest figure being the Natrona Light and Power Company.

None, he said, even the lowest, proved that a fair return had not been made.

Colledge, a resident of Oakmont, evidently had been working for the administration for some time. An expert in the type of work, he testified that he had done accounting for the Fisher adminstration in 1927.

Wheeling Street Car Fare Cut Approved

WHEELING, W. Va., March 13.—(AP.)—The Wheeling Chamber of Commerce today informed the Wheeling Traction Company that approval has been given by the West Virginia and Ohio utilities bodies and the Interstate Commerce Commission to a general reduction in rates affecting the entire system of the company.

The traction company was a party to the application for a reduction with the Chamber of Commerce of Wheeling, Moundsville, Wellsburg, Follansbee and Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, Bellaire and Martins Ferry, O. Reductions amount to from 33 1-3 to 50 per cent.

Political Prisoners Freed Through Girl

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 13.—(AP.)—A patriotic wish of Maria Olaya, 17-year-old daughter of the Colombian President, has come true. Last December, during the international observance of the centennial of Simon Bolivar, South American liberator, she presented a public petition to her father asking that petty criminals in federal prisons be liberated.

Prime Minister Restrepo announced today that the government had granted freedom to 120 such prisoners.

BLUE LAW FOES CHARTER TRAIN

Final arrangements have been completed for the special train to carry several hundred sports supporters to Harrisburg Tuesday in support of Representative M. A. Musmanno's Sunday anti-blue law bill when it is given a public hearing.

Departure will be from the Pennsylvania Station at 7:30 a. m., Arthur Couch, in general charge of arrangements, announced. Supporters from throughout Western Pennsylvania will compose the party. Stops will be made between Pittsburgh and Altoona for the convenience of additional supporters.

The schedule includes stops at East Liberty, 7:41 a. m.; Greensburg, 8:17 a. m.; Torrance, 8:39 a. m.; Johnstown, 9:10 a. m., and Altoona, 10:05 a. m. Arriving in Harrisburg at 1 p. m., the party will march to the Capitol. The special train will leave Harrisburg at 5 p. m., making the same stops on the return trip and arriving here at 10:40 p. m. Dining cars will be carried on both trains.

Pittsburgh Woman Saved in Ohio Fire

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 13.—Albion Fisher, undertaker, his wife, two children, Miss Mary Ryan, and Mrs. Earl McClure, of Pittsburgh, a guest, were rescued by firemen when their escape was cut off by a blaze which caused $5,000 damage to the Fisher home today.

NEW ALLEGHENY PRESIDENT 30

MEADVILLE, Pa., March 13.—Allegheny College now has the youngest president in the country, William P. Tolley, 30, of Madison, N. J., was elected to that post at a special meeting of the board of trustees today.

Tolley, dean of Brothers College, replaces Dr. J. A. Beebe, who retired last June because of ill health. Tolley will take up permanent residence here in July and be officially inaugurated next fall.

The new president was selected from a group of 120 men who had been considered for the position. He was graduated from Syracuse University in 1922 and received his master's degree there two years later. In 1925 he was graduated from Drew Seminary with the Bachelor of Divinity degree and was warded his Ph.D. at Columbia University last year. He is an ordained Methodist minister and is married, with two children.

Senator Lewis Predicts 4-Party Fight in '32

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The prediction of Senator James Hamilton Lewis (Dem.), of Illinois, that four national parties will battle for the presidency in 1932 and that the money question will oust prohibition as the paramount issue, has amazed politicians already seeking to solve the riddle of the next two years.

The new Illinois senator, who has been fighting political battles for two generations, offered his observation in an interview as he settled down in his office for a six-year term.

The four parties, Lewis says, will be the Republican, Democratic, a third party of progressives, and a new prohibition party designed to take from the Democrats the southern states carried by President Hoover.

The Democratic national convention, he holds, will declare that prohibition should be remitted to the states to be settled by electing senators and House members favoring repeal.

Mr. Hoover will renominate himself, says Lewis. A "dark horse" may capture the Democratic nomination, he believes.

Naval Policy of World Reversed, Coolidge Says

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 13.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The results of the recent European naval agreement were mostly political. In that field they are important. The great powers finally have reached a definite basis for all naval construction. That is the outstanding fact. After years of effort competition has been limited and perhaps ended. That is an achievement of the first rank. The agreement has not been accomplished without considerable sacrifice of principle. It does not in terms provide for a reduction but for an increase of naval armaments. This may be only a concession to national sentiment. Perhaps the additional tonnage will not be constructed.

Mr. Coolidge

For the sake of establishing the principle of limitation and ending competition probably it would be wise for our own government to concur in the agreement if necessary to make it effective. If France increases her submarine fleet we have the same right to build destroyers as an offset that any other nation has. The world has to make slow progress in reversing a policy of ages. But the policy has been reversed. The five powers all have adopted the course charted in the Washington treaty. They will be in better condition to make further progress in the 1932 conference.

SOCIETY GIRL SEEKING DIVORCE

Former Barbara Monell at Reno; Marriage in 1928 Astonished Smart Set

RENO, Nev., March 13.—(AP.) — The romance of a New York society girl and a Colorado cowboy has led to Reno.

Barbara Monell Glaze, 26, was here today with the announced intention of obtaining a divorce from Kenneth Wilson Glaze, 30-year-old rodeo performer and harness maker, to whom she was married February 21, 1928.

The daughter and heiress of Ambrose Monell, former head of the International Nickel Company, who left a $15,000,000 estate, did not reveal the basis of her suit. Her attorney, Roy W. Stoddard, said

"It's a matter I just can't discuss right now."

STARTLED SOCIETY

Miss Monell's plunge into matrimony startled society circles just as she astonished Newport habitues at the age of 14 by swimming two miles in the surf. Her widowed mother, however, approved the bridegroom as a "splendid young man."

Glaze was a stalwart, six-foot "broncho-ridin'" cowboy, who, after seven years on the range, had purchased a one-room harness shop in Colorado Springs with proceeds of the sale of a band of horses.

Their romance was born of business. Miss Monell, pretty horsewoman and sports enthusiast, recuperating in Colorado Springs following an operation, strolled into Glaze's shop one day seeking a muzzle for a dog. Glaze welcomed her custom.

NO HONEYMOON

They were married five weeks later in Grace and St. Stephen's Episcopal Church there. There was no honeymoon. Soon they went to live on a cattle ranch near South Park, Col., Glaze's old "stomping ground."

The neighbors liked the bride. They indorsed her expressions that she preferred the "he-men" of the West to the men of the East. There was no outward evidence of marital trouble.

Widow Tells How Jealousy Of Nixon-Nirdlinger Had Wrecked Happy Marriage

By FREDERIC K. ABBOT
International News Service.

NICE, France, March 13.—The claim of Mrs. Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, St. Louis prize beauty, that she shot and killed her husband, Philadelphia theatrical magnate, in self-defense was believed strengthened this afternoon when police discovered a revolver owned by the slain man during a search of his home on the fashionable Promenade d'Anglais.

The weapon was fully loaded. Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, the former Charlotte Isabel Nash, previously had told police her husband bought the revolver some months ago. Fearing for her own life, she said, she bought a pistol of her own which she kept hidden beneath a pillow in her bedroom. It was with this gun that she slew her wealthy husband.

Apparently satisfied with her clear description of her husband's slaying, police indicated they would abandon their plan to reconstruct the shooting. Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger was to have been taken from her cell in the Third Arrondissement jail and live over again the dramatic sequence of events.

SCAN WIDOW'S PAST

In an effort to obtain corroboration of Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger's charges that her husband treated her with "inhuman cruelty," the Nice authorities today communicated with the police of Philadelphia. They asked whether it would be possible to supply witnesses to substantiate these charges.

The police are making a thorough investigation of Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger's private life, and admitted that their inquiries thus far have shown her to be above reproach. A friend of the family said today that Nixon-Nirdlinger's alleged jealousy probably originated at St. Moritz, Switzerland, where the beauty contest winner became an enthusiast over skiing despite the fact her husband disapproved of the sport as too hazardous.

Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger will probably be arraigned before an examining magistrate early next week, at which time the authorities are expected to know whether the evidence warrants prosecution.

JEALOUSY BLAMED

Unbridled jealousy intensified by drinking precipitated the fatal quarrel and shattered the romance that led from the Atlantic City boardwalk to a villa on the French Riviera, the pulchritude prize-winner said. Her attorney declared police surgeons found finger imprints and bruises on her throat and arms that tended to substantiate her story. The angle of a bullet found embedded in the bedroom wall was considered to confirm her statement that she fired from the bed.

Her husband's jealousy dates back six months, she declared. Since then her romance, which already had weathered Paris divorce courts, stumbled along over a rocky path, she said, adding:

"My married life turned desperately unhappy. My husband was continually accusing me, and I accompanied him lately in fear and trembling.

"If a man even so much as glanced at me, he immediately blamed me. We often went to the Casino and night clubs, but my husband invariably imagined that some man was endeavoring to flirt with me. He would jump up and insult some perfectly innocent man and make terrible threats."

After several months of such a state of affairs, according to Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, she found this unbearable and refused to leave the house.

KIRKLAND DEATH RUMOR FALSE

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., March 13.—(AP.)—A widely circulated report that Virgil Kirkland had committed suicide in his cell at Valparaiso, where he is awaiting pronouncement of a life sentence for the "gin party" killing of Arlene Draves, proved untrue when the youth was found happily playing cards yesterday with Leon Stanford, another defendant, in the Potter County jail.

Prosecutor Robert Estill, of Lake County, today was awaiting overtures of defense attorneys for the four remaining defendants in the murder case to consider pleas of guilty to manslaughter.

Estill said he had discussed the matter with John Underwood, his chief deputy, who prosecuted Kirkland, and declared Underwood had indicated willingness to compromise.

Estill pointed out that the penalty for manslaughter was two to 21 years' imprisonment, whereas the penalty for assault, another possible compromise, was five to 20 years.

3 MEET DEATH IN HOTEL LEAPS

CHICAGO, March 13.—(INS.)—Alexander H. Revell, wealthy head of a furniture concern, today plunged nine stories to his death from the exclusive Drake Hotel.

Revell, who was socially prominent, had been ill for some time, according to his wife, Mrs. Maude Revell, with whom he lived at the Drake as a permanent guest.

A short time later, Alfred Mase, 60, who registered from Philadelphia, was killed when he either jumped or fell from a window on the nineteenth floor of the downtown Y. M. C. A. hotel. Mase registered at the hotel March 9, and asked for the highest vacant room in the building. Detectives, examining papers in his suitcase, found indications he was formerly a street car conductor.

NEW YORK, March 13.—(INS.)—A man believed to be G. A. Sander, of Philadelphia, committed suicide today, according to police, by jumping from the fourteenth floor window of a Manhattan hotel. Detectives found a note in Sander's room stating that he was depressed, and no longer interested in life.

Nebraska Camel Skeleton Found

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 13.—(AP.)—The finding of another specimen of the stenomylus—a gazelle-like camel of the Miocene era which was very graceful and probably very fast—was announced at Harvard University's Museum of Comparative Biology. It was found at Agate Spring, Neb., by Erich Schlaikjer, a member of a research expedition, last summer.

LEWIS REFUSED D. A. R. HALL

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(INS.)—Sinclair Lewis, this year's winner of the Nobel prize for literature, has been denied the use of the D. A. R.'s Constitutional Hall for his speech here March 24, entitled "American Literature Comes of Age."

The Community Institute, a local organization directed by the school board, booked Lewis last December for his appearance here, but when Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president of the D. A. R., was approached for use of the hall, she refused. She gave no reason and as she now is in California, other D. A. R. officials declined to discuss the matter today.

Raid Adds Trouble For Frank Capone

CHICAGO, March 13.—(INS.)—Fresh troubles loomed today for Ralph Capone, brother of Alphonse, as federal prosecutors announced contempt proceedings would be pressed against him as a result of a federal raid on the Cotton Club, Cicero night-life spot.

Liquor was found in the club in violation of a temporary injunction, according to federal agents. Capone is at present under sentence for income tax violation.

Find Woman's Body In Hudson River Bog

NEW YORK, March 13.—(INS.)—The body of an unidentified woman found in the swamplands near Croton-on-the-Hudson today, was believed to have been washed in from the Hudson River. With the exception of a pair of shoes, clothing had disappeared from the body, which was discovered by a trapper.

'Friday the 13th' Not Always Jinx Day

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—This is the second "Friday the thirteenth" of 1931, and another will be along in November.

For hundreds of years Friday has been considered a hoodoo, and the same is true of the thirteenth. When they both fall on one day, superstitious people throw up their hands in horror.

But history records good things have happened on these days as well as ill. On Friday, Columbus set sail; the Declaration of Independence was signed; Cornwallis surrendered; Shakespeare, Napoleon, Bismarck, Disraeli and Washington were born.

As for the thirteenth, the national anthem was born and American troops took St. Mihiel.

WALES READY TO OPEN EXPO

BUENOS AIRES, March 13.—(INS.)—The stage was set today for the grand opening of the British trade exhibition here by the Prince of Wales tomorrow, who left fashionable Mer Del Plata for the capital in his private plane this morning.

He was accompanied by his brother, Prince George, and members of the royal entourage. The heir, on arrival here, will drop his incognito and formally execute his mission as Britain's "trade ambassador."

The exposition opening will be the first gun in the empire's most ambitious trade push as yet attempted on the South American continent. Provisional President Uriburu and his cabinet will be present at the ceremony.

BRINGS FOX TERRIER

Mrs. Mellon was attentive to the welfare of a six-weeks-old wire-haired fox terrier she brought from Europe. The bridegroom still carried the new mandolin he had upon arriving in New York yesterday.

They had no plans to announce for the future. Following breakfast, the couple prepared to motor downtown. Questioned on the future, Mellon said:

"We have no plans for moving into our own home. For the time being we will remain at my home. There was a mistake in the announcement of my plans to accept a position with the Pittsburgh offices of the Gulf Refining Company. I will remain at the bank."

Mrs. Mellon, chic in a modish traveling suit, had nothing to add. Asked about the dog, she said:

"There really is no name for him yet. Haven't had time to think of one."

They departed on a honeymoon last fall after an elaborate wedding ceremony was foregone with the revelation that they had been secretly married a year.

Find Body on Track, Murder Indicated

OXFORD, O., March 13.—(AP.)—Discovery of the body of Lawrence Williams, 47, taxicab operator, on the Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Western Railroad tracks near here today disclosed what Coroner E. C. Cook believed to be a murder.

The coroner said he was satisfied Williams, father of three children, was slain and his body was placed on the tracks to cover up the crime. Cook said the victim was robbed.

Poor Farm Foodless, 19 Inmates Removed

PORTAGEVILLE, Mo., March 13.—(AP.)—Nineteen aged inmates of the New Madrid County poor farm here, who had gone without food since Tuesday, because Superintendent Howard Dalby said, the County Court would not pay bills and is trying to break its contract with him, were transferred to the nearby farm of J. J. Blanchard.

Oscar E. Mitchell, county welfare officer, said Blanchard agreed to maintain the inmates for $45 a month. The inmates will remain at Blanchard's farm until pending litigation is settled.

U. S. STUDYING OHIO RIVER POLLUTION

Blame Water in Epidemics Along Stream, Tributaries; Claim Local Supply Safe

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Following the outbreak of a series of gastro-intestinal epidemics along the Ohio River and some tributary streams, the Public Health Service has launched an investigation of pollution in these waters, it was learned today.

Sanitary engineers of the Health Bureau have started work in Cincinnati. They are expected to survey the water supply situations in most of the cities between Pittsburgh and Louisville. A study also will be made at Charleston, W. Va., on the Little Kanawha River.

Owing partially to low water accompanying the drought, and likewise to new dams along the Ohio, the movement of water has been slowed up. A preliminary study at Cincinnati indicated some chemical substance in the water which was not believed to be due entirely to artificial pollution.

USE RIVER WATER

Most of the cities along the Ohio River use its waters for municipal purposes, having extensive purification plants. While no question was raised with the Public Health Service as to the efficiency of these water plants, officials said it has become essential from a health standpoint to determine the nature of the chemical element believed responsible for the epidemics.

Officials pointed out that normally there is greater pollution of streams during periods of high water. Rapidly moving water, it was explained, does not have the opportunity for self-purification.

Whether conditions along the Mississippi and other large rivers from which municipal water supplies are obtained will be investigated has not been decided.

An investigation of the water situation at Milwaukee is in progress. J. K. Hoskins and Harold Streeter, sanitary engineers of the Public Health Service, have been detailed there at the request of the municipal and state health officers. They are expected to submit a report within a short time.

Low water in streams in many parts of the country has impaired municipal supplies, and further requests for investigations are anticipated by the Public Health Service.

WATER HERE O. K.

The mild epidemic of gastro-intestinal trouble prevalent throughout the Pittsburgh district several weeks ago was not caused by substances in the water supply, local and state medical authorities agreed, although the origin of the malady remains a mystery. Described as a mild influenzal type, the ailment was held to be of an infectious nature.

Numerous tests of Pittsburgh's water supply were taken and in every instance the cell form of animal life, the common cause of disentery was entirely missing. The investigators, including Dr. C. B. Matts, director of public health, pointed out that the malady was widespread and if it had been caused by a water condition, would have indicated that even water from private wells and springs was polluted.

Detroit Suburban Banks Fail to Open

DETROIT, March 13.—(INS.)—Four suburban banks in the Detroit area failed to open their doors today. They are the American State Bank of Ferndale, the American State Bank of Wyandotte, the State Savings Bank of Melvindale and the State Savings Bank of Lincoln Park.

Directors of the institutions maintained that there would be no loss to depositors. Frozen real estate assets were blamed for suspension of business.

Merging of Closed Bank Gets Approval

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—A plan for organization of a new trust company to be known as the Mercantile Bank and Trust Company to take over the assets of the closed Chelsea Bank and Trust Company, was approved today by Supreme Court Justice Alfred H. Townley. Chelsea depositors would be paid in full.

Parke Firm Wants To Help in Food Quiz Audit

The L. H. Parke Company, purchase of whose food products precipitated the investigation of the Department of Supplies now under way, wants to help Controller J. P. Kerr in the audit, Donald Irwin, vice president of the Parke company, has offered to produce ledgers, sales records and expense accounts.

The Parke company letter reads:

"We notice an audit is being made for the City Controller of all the records of the Director of Supplies and if it will be of any use to Dr. Kerr, or the City of Pittsburgh, we gladly offer to the auditor representing the city controller's office the use of our ledger and sales records of our dealings with the City of Pittsburgh; and as our representative who sold the City of Pittsburgh is on a salary and expense basis, we also offer his expense account records.

N. Y. PUBLISHER, PUTNAM, DEAD

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Irving Putnam, president of the publishing house of G. P. Putnam's Sons, founded by his father, died yesterday at the Medical Center. He was 79, and the fifth member of his family to die within a year.

Mr. Putnam belonged to a distinguished family, and was a great-grand nephew of Gen. Israel Putnam, of Revolutionary War days.

His brother, Maj. George Haven Putnam, died in February, 1930. Thereafter, three sisters — Miss Edith Grace Putnam, Mrs. Robert W. S. Pinhey and Miss Ruth Putnam—died in rapid succession at Geneva, Switzerland. Surviving are the widow—the former Emma Louise Brock—two brothers and five children.

Mr. Putnam was an uncle of George Palmer Putnam, who married Miss Amelia Earhart last month.

TULSA SHAKEN BY EXPLOSION

TULSA, Okla., March 13.—(AP.)—Tulsa and its environs were shaken early today by the explosion of 400 quarts of nitroglycerine stored in a magazine two miles west of Red Fork.

Scores of windows were broken and thousands of persons were alarmed by the shock. Officials of the American Glycerine Company, owners of the explosive, said no watchman was on duty and that no lives were believed to have been lost.

They expressed the opinion a grass fire might have been responsible.

Trees near the scene were torn into ribbons. Small bits of the steel house which covered the explosive were found miles distant. The explosion was heard at Vinita, Okla., more than 65 miles away.

3 HOLDUP MEN SHOT, 2 HELD

TOLEDO, O., March 13.—(INS.)—Three youths, blamed by police for a series of petty holdups, were shot and wounded today in a frustrated attempt to hold up the drugstore of J. C. Inman. One of the wounded bandits escaped.

Inman and a son-in-law, Donald Althaus, opened fire on the youths when they leveled guns at Inman's wife.

Stanley Marciniak and Eugene Darowski, two suspects, are under guard in a Toledo hospital in serious condition. Police said they were driving a stolen car.

Australian House Upholds Premier

CANBERRA, Australia, March 13.—(AP.)—The life of the Australian federal government was saved by a narrow margin today when an opposition motion of no-confidence was defeated 38 to 33.

J. G. Latham, leader of the opposition, moved the motion in the House of Representatives last Friday, accusing Labor Premier Scullin's government of vacillating, and failure to reduce expenditure and grapple with unemployment, which has reached tragic proportions.

will attempt to rush bills through the Legislature.

Albert M. Marris, of Philadelphia, spoke on the election code.

Mrs. Miller indicated before the meeting that the League would be represented at Harrisburg March 24 when the city manager plan is given a hearing. She plans to attend the meeting, she said.

What is believed to be the first of a flood of information on alleged irregularities in the conduct of city government affairs began to pour into the office of District Attorney Andrew T. Park today as a result of an appeal made to the general public by Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin.

COLVIN BUSY

Many visitors conferred with Mr. Colvin. Colvin would not reveal what they discussed.

Colvin, in charge of the district attorney's investigation into alleged irregularities that first came to light in the conduct of the office of B. L. Succop, discharged director of supplies; promised to shield the identity of those who seek to aid him in his investigation by furnishing "leads."

To the scores of charges of alleged irregularities piled up against the Supplies Department today has been added another involving awarding of an $8,000 contract for mattresses for the City Home at Mayview to the high bidder.

Attorney Henry Oliver Evans said that while he was city controller the welfare director, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, insisted on giving a mattress contract to the M. B. Kline Furniture Company, the higher priced of two submitted mattress samples, after an expert had declared the cheaper was most suitable for Mayview's requirements.

SPEAR OVERRIDDEN

Evans said the mattresses were examined as to construction by Nathaniel Spear, who was not a bidder for the business and Spear selected the cheaper as being the best fitted for the purpose. Mrs. Rauh, however, gave the contract to the Kline company for the more expensive mattress at an increased price, Evans said.

Mrs. Rauh, according to Evans, said she acted on the advice of "experts," whom she named as Succop, the discharged director of supplies; Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent of Mayview, and J. I. McDonough, chief clerk of the Department of Welfare.

Questioned today, Mrs. Rauh said:

"There are too many misleading statements to dignify them by even a word of reply."

The Washington Heights Board of Trade has gone on record as indorsing the resolution of the Allied Boards of Trade, demanding that Council conduct an open investigation of the purchase of city supplies. At a board of directors' meeting last night the indorsement was voted unanimously.

The hilltop organization also indorsed the bill recently presented in Legislature, proposing a city manager plan for Pittsburgh. President R. J. Macrory presided at the meeting.

CHIEF TO TALK TO PAINTERS

Carl Dabelstein, of New York, president of the International Painters and Decorators Association, will be the principal speaker at the annual open meeting of the Master Painters and Decorators Association of Pittsburgh, to be held next Friday in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Other speakers will be P. A. Freyvogel, of Pittsburgh, former president of the state association, and Donald J. Howard, of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

There will be many displays by manufacturers and distributors of this district, including a demonstration of modern sprays.

Tennessee Banker Found Dead, Suicide

LOUDON, Tenn., March 13.—(AP.)—Hugh Thomas, 53, vice president of the Bank of Loudon, which closed February 28, was found dead in a bathroom of his home today, his chest torn by shot.

Historic Baltimore Church Fireswept

BALTIMORE, Md., March 13.—(AP.)—Historic Westminster Presbyterian Church, in the grounds of which is the grave of Edgar Allan Poe, the poet, was damaged by fire today.

Starting from a defective furnace, the flames wrecked the pulpit, destroyed the organ and damaged a portion of the balcony.

Novelist's Secret Wedding Revealed

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Antoinette Spitzer, novelist and ex-reporter, is a bride who failed to report her own wedding. She married Dr. Archibald Winick, Brooklyn dentist, and tried to keep it a secret. Her old city editor broke the story.

Ortiz Rubio's Club Employes Strike

MEXICO CITY, March 13.—(AP.)—All employes of the Mexico City Country Club, including bartenders and waiters, walked out last night in a strike because club officials refused to consent to demands for a "closed shop." Caddies were not affected.

Wife's Taxi Riding Lands Her in Court

OMAHA, Neb., March 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Fred Shaw was in police court yesterday charged with riding about in taxicabs. Her husband complained that she would call on him several times a day to pay the bills and annoyed him so much that he lost a job he had held for 14 years.

Mrs. Shaw listened to a lecture from the judge about economy, and then left police headquarters—in a taxicab.

Ex-Mexican Deputy Held in Smuggling

MEXICO CITY, March 13.—(INS.)—Mexican authorities at Moctezuma, state of Chihuahua, today arrested Jesus Salas Barraza, former member of the chamber of deputies, on charges of attempting to smuggle arms into Mexico. Barraza at one time was implicated in the shooting of Pancho Villa, Mexican bandit of two decades ago.

Deputy Slugged At Toledo Trial

TOLEDO, O., March 13.—(INS.)—A deputy sheriff today was recovering from injuries as a result of being slugged in a riot which broke out during the closing moments of the manslaughter trial of Brun Mielzkalski. The riot started when the state attempted to place rebuttal witnesses on the stand.

Plants Can Thrive Without Sun Baths

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Sun baths are fine for men and monkeys, but plants can get along without them. The Museum of Science and Industry says the ultra-violet rays in sunshine, beneficial to mankind and animals, have no determinable effect on the plant world.

Plants given real sun bath treatment appeared exactly the same as those grown under ordinary greenhouse glass.

Librarian Firm in Denial Of Ordering Furniture

Cadugan said:

"I know nothing of the purchase. I didn't order it, and that's all there is to it. It may have been possible that one of my clerks signed the confirming order in my absence."

Records disclose that on May 13, 1930, the material was delivered to the library and a receipt was signed with Cadugan's name. Nine days later a confirming order was issued. A resolution for payment for the equipment was offered in Council June 2 and was approved by a two-thirds majority. Kerr did not approve the purchase until June 9. Payment was made early in August.

CONNELLEY SPEAKS

Councilman Connelley said last night he couldn't remember whether he was at the meeting June 2, because he was ill at the time. He said:

"I knew nothing of the matter until I was asked by a newspaper man about some furniture in the library basement. I have never ordered it nor have I seen it, but from what Mr. Cadugan said, it has been there and paid for and will be used. I had planned, however, to equip the basement as a reading room. The agent from the Yawman Erbe Company came to see me. I told him what I would do when I got sufficient funds, and he was to come and see me again when I was ready to install it.

"There is nothing questionable about the transaction. The furniture was ordered according to procedure followed in such matters for years and was regular in every respect. If Mr. Cadugan, the present librarian, has not seen fit to put it to use, that is just too bad. I am sure that it could be used to great advantage, for the purpose for which it was ordered."

Cadugan also said the furniture could be used.

The payment is one of many made by Council without bids being asked. The law provides that except for an emergency, all amounts over $500 be advertised.

THREATS ROUT FARM HANDS

SAN JUAN BAPTISTA, Cal., March 13.—(AP.)—Hundreds of Filipino workmen were leaving this section today as rapidly as possible after receiving warnings that they must strike for higher wages or die.

Recently Japanese farmers in the section decided to cut wages from 35 to 30 cents per hour. When workmen arrived at the ranches yesterday they found red flags staked, bearing a warning that a cut in wages would not be tolerated. If the Filipinos accepted they would face death, the message added. The notes were signed "United American Laborers."

Efforts of peace officers to convince the Islanders that no harm would befall them failed. The only Filipinos to continue on their jobs were those working under old contracts. Garlic and lettuce await harvesting.

JAPANESE NAME BABY PRINCESS

TOKIO, March 13.—(AP.)—Yori Atsuko is the name of Japan's youngest imperial princess.

The naming ceremony took place today at the Imperial Palace on the seventh day after the princess' birth.

The name was taken from the ancient Japanese scriptures. Yori, meaning obedience to heaven and Atsuko meaning generosity to those on earth.

The strict observance of time-honored rites, Emperor Hirohito personally attended the ceremonies when the name of Princess Yori Atsuko was duly reported to the spirits of the imperial ancestors at the palace sanctuary.

Court officials at noon congratulated the throne, afterward remaining for lunch.

SHERIFF FREED IN RUM CASE

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 13.—(AP.)—Sheriff J. M. Ferguson, of Talbot County, was acquitted by a federal jury of charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Gorace Cook also was acquitted while Frank and Fred Colquitt were convicted.

The Colquitt brothers each were given 18 months in the penitentiary.

Four Negroes who pleaded guilty to manufacturing whisky at the opening of the trial were sentenced to four months imprisonment. Frank Colquitt assumed sole responsibility for the liquor business which brought about the charges.

ARREST 1,500 IN 'RED' RAID

HAMBURG, Germany, March 13.—(AP.)—Fifteen hundred persons were arrested here last night in what was probably the largest political raid ever staged in Germany. Of the 1,500, about 1,200 will be prosecuted for disturbing the peace.

Police learned that Communists had forged a considerable number of tickets for a meeting of Fascists. They waited until about 4,000 persons were in the meeting hall, then closed the doors and conducted a two-hour examination of admission cards to detect the forgeries.

are license, bribecense, nonsense, conscience and absence.

Franco-Italian treaty gives France big naval superiority. That ain't a bad treaty as treaties go. And you know where they go.

We don't see how Mussolini stands for that extra French 150,000 tonnage. They probably told him it meant hay.

The drys are meeting in Florida. That's like dropping into Vesuvius to cool off.

Mrs. Norton of Congress is a lady. Being a lady, she doesn't believe in knitting sweaters where there isn't any war.

And when there is a war she gets into it. Senator Robinson, of the Senate, knows this now. He was talking during the late Democratic soliloquy in Washington last week when he stopped to ask a question.

Mrs. Norton arose and roared "YES" in a very feminine voice.

That was all right, but the answer should have been "NO."

He was embarrassed. He thought he heard that "YES," but he wasn't sure whether his eyes deceived him or whether he needed new B batteries for his radio.

Here is the synopsis up to this point. Senator Robinson had said:

"Do you think for one moment that we can win the woman vote of this country by turning the Democratic party into a wet party?"

That was the cue for the big, echoing negative. The senator adjusted his pretty ear to the correct legislative angle and waited for the "no."

But Mrs. Norton beat them all to it by standing up and yelling "yes."

Senator Robinson then tried to concentrate and naturally fell exhausted.

Whereupon Mrs. Norton clambered up on the platform and not only started her own speech, but finished Senator Robinson's.

Which is just like a lady. When she thinks she is right you might as well grab your hat with both hands and make sure your money is well invested.

We don't know whether Senator Robinson or Mrs. Norton is correct. We don't really worry much about that angle. All we are trying to do is to warn speakers not to ask their audiences questions.

Sometimes you get the right answer. And sometimes you don't. And when you don't you might as well crawl up on the top shelf and make a noise like an old dusty bundle.

If you are going to make a speech, make it, and we are not sure whether you should conclude with a bow or a duck. That also depends on whether they are cheering or throwing.

Boy Killed by Auto In Crowded Street

HARRISBURG, March 13.—(AP.)—Ammon Lyter, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lyter of this city, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile while on his way home from school. The boy was said to have stepped from among a crowd, standing in the middle of a street waiting for a trolley to pass, in front of a car driven by Russel J. Romberger, of Penbrook, a suburb. Romberger took the boy to a hospital, where he died an hour later.

Vet Removed From Jail to Hospital

MERCER, Pa., March 13.—Judge J. A. McLaughry has signed a court order removing Thomas Wilson, an ex-soldier, from the county jail, where he had been brought, charged with driving while drunk, to the Marine Hospital at Pittsburgh, where he will be given treatments.

The court ordered that the county pay the costs in the case of Wilson, who is said to be in bad health. The American Legion was instrumental in securing his removal.

Male Jury Frees Slayer of Husband

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Luciano, 30, accused of murder in the killing of her husband, Pietro, 31, during a drinking party at their home last January, was acquitted by a jury of 12 men after 30 minutes' deliberation.

Mrs. Luciano, mother of eight children, testified her husband had ordered her out of their home and threatened to kill her. She said he was shot in a struggle over a revolver.

Machine Slugs Used for Free Phone Calls

BRIDGEPORT, O., March 13.—Slot machines and cigaret-vending machines have brought grief to the Ohio Bell Telephone Company. Slugs made for the slot machines are being utilized by many users of pay stations. Dozens of the nickel and dime size slugs are found in pay stations in Martins Ferry, Bridgeport, Bellaire and Barnesville, according to telephone officials.

Falls Under Train, Brakeman Loses Leg

ROCHESTER, Pa., March 13.—Falling under the wheels of a freight car in the Pennsylvania Railroad yard, Conway, Carl Whiteleather, 41, brakeman, Rochester, suffered injury to his right leg which necessitated amputation above the knee. He was treated at Rochester Hospital.

8,000 Austrians Will Leave for Paraguay

VIENNA, March 13.—(AP.)—Andreas Thaler has resigned as minister of agriculture to lead a farm pilgrimage to the new world. He announces that 8,000 Tyrolese farmers have applied for membership in a projected colony in Paraguay.

HORNE'S

Luxurious Wear Weaves

At the Price of Utility Models

Here is an event in step with the times—Wear Weave coats of the kind ordinarily ranked in the luxury class, because of their uncommonly smart fabrics and fine furs, priced at a very moderate figure.

The fabrics include the famous F & H weaves, other fine domestic materials, and some imported ones. The kind that can register such spirited colorings as orange, gold, and the brighter blues without appearing gaudy, and which are unutterably smart in black-and-white, brown-and-tan, and soft gray tones.

They exploit the new scarf collars of fur, huge fur cuffs on collarless coats, horseshoe collars of flattering furs, and the new wide, fur-banded lapels. The furs are natural kolinsky, dyed kolinsky, Eastern mink, Jap mink, galyak, kid, Russian caracul, squirrel, and American broadtail.

A New Feature in

Hornebilt Hats

$5.00

Never content, we've had a new feature incorporated into Hornebilts for spring—a moisture-proof insert inside the leather sweat-band, eliminating the possibility of perspiration stains. A convincing token that Hornebilts shall continue to be Pittsburgh's best hat value at $5!

Hornebilts come in all the proper shapes—snaps, curl-brims and Homburgs. Colors from very light browns and grays to black.

Seven-Fold Cravats

$2.00

These are the famous cravats without linings—the wonderful "body" of which comes from folding the cravat material seven times on itself. They come in a fine assortment of pin dots, plain colors, and basket weaves—and to say that they wear indefinitely isn't stretching the point a bit!

New Colored Shirts

Collar-Attached or Two to Match

$3.00

Men are offered a pleasing choice of new spring shirts by Yorke—exclusively at The Men's Store, in Pittsburgh. Materials are fine-grade woven madrases and printed materials in distinctive striped and figured patterns on white or pastel grounds. Sizes from 14 to 17 in each style.

STEELCRAFT Suits

With Extra Trousers

$37

Sure, the extra trousers increase our cost and shorten our profits, but they are the something more that is making Steelcraft a commanding clothing value at the price, and multiplying sales at a rate that is the talk of the entire clothing industry.

More clothes for the money! Less profit, but more sales — so it's as broad as it's long—and it makes a highly interesting message to men at a time when everybody's figuring costs as closely as possible.

Just say, "Steelcraft," and we'll do the rest!

Other suits and topcoats at $50, $65, and upwards.

Labor Leader Heads Employment Service

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(INS.)—John B. Alpine, of New York, former vice president of the American Federation of Labor, today was preparing to assume his new duties as special assistant to Secretary of Labor Doak in charge of the Federal Employment Service.

His appointment was announced by President Hoover a few hours after Senator La Follette (Rep.) of Wisconsin severely denounced him before the conference of Progressives here for failing to provide adequate relief for the unemployed.

Forensic Dates Set In Greene County

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 12.—Announcement is made of the dates and places for various contests in the Greene County division of the Pennsylvania Forensic League. They are as follows: Debates, March 17, Rogersville; vocal solos, March 24, Mapletown; small vocal groups, March 27, at Rogersville; reading and extemporaneous speaking, March 31, at Nineveh; large vocal groups, April 3, at Carmichaels; instrumental solos, April 7, at Jefferson; orations, April 10, at Waynesburg.

Father of 3 Nuns Dies in Wheeling

WHEELING, W. Va., March 13.—John Hohman, 77, father of a priest and three nuns of the Roman Catholic church, died here. One son, Rev. Peter Hohman, is superintendent of the St. Fidelis College at Herman, Pa., while his daughters are Sister M. Xavier, superintendent Wheeling Hospital; Sister M. Vincent, superintendent St. Francis Hospital, Charleston, W. Va., and Sister Marie, teacher, Huntington, W. Va., parochial schools.

2 States Searched For Missing Sisters

DETROIT, March 13.—(INS.)—Police of two states—Michigan and Ohio—instituted an intensive search today for two sisters who disappeared three weeks ago with a former inmate of the Eloise Psychopathic Ward here. The latter, a well-known police character, induced the girls to leave their home with promises of employment in Cleveland.

The missing girls, according to police, are Mary and Caroline Sherill, aged 25 and 19. John Clare Hood, 34, the alleged abductor, is described by police as being dapper in appearance and intelligent in conversation.

AIR FIRM HIRES HOOVER, JR.

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover, Jr., son of the President, was named communications engineer of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., and is expected to begin work when he recovers from a lung infection.

Young Hoover, before he was forced to take a rest, was chief engineer of Western Air Express. He handled radio communications service and directed maintenance of several airports.

Western Air merged with Transcontinental Air Transport into Transcontinental and Western Air, and since the son of the President left his desk to go to a South Carolina mountain resort changes have been made in the air line's personnel.

As communications engineer, young Hoover will have 25 radio stations, reaching from coast to coast, under his supervision and to his department the line will look for swift and reliable communication and guidance for its pilots.

SPAIN TRIES 77 REBELS

JACA, Spain, March 13.—(INS.)—This garrison town, which, last December, was the scene of a rebellion, became the mecca of Spanish Republicans today as 77 participants in that uprising were arraigned before a court-martial presided over by Gen. Gomez Morato.

Four of the 77 defendants, including Maj. Ramon Franco, escaped to Paris shortly after the Madrid revolt and were tried in absentia.

Heavily armed police reserves guarded the vicinity as a precautionary measure. The presence of hundreds of Republicans, who flocked here from all parts of Spain, presaged anti-government demonstrations.

The prosecution demanded the death penalty for five of the defendants, life sentences for 66 others, and shorter terms for the rest.

INVOKE 'SHADES' IN PLAY SUIT

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Shades of Goethe, Plutarch and Amy Lowell were invoked in an attempt to prove Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" is not a steal from Miss Georges Lewys' "Temple of Pallas-Athenae."

Miss Lewys, Hollywood author whose book was barred from the mails as obscene, is suing the playwright for $2,000,000 for alleged plagarism. Cross examined she said she never believed Goethe's statement that there are only 36 original tragic situations. After Attorney Weinberger read excerpts from several of the situations she admitted they were similar to her book and O'Neill's play.

She agreed selected paternity, a theme common to both works, also figured in Plutarch's Lives. Asked if she ever heard of Amy Lowell's poem, "Patterns," she said:

"Miss Lowell never wrote a poem."

Kills Sweetheart, Sentenced to Death

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 13.—(AP.)—Judge Roy Hicks today announced that he had fixed death as the punishment for Peter Spirellis, former restaurant worker, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of killing his former sweetheart. Judge Hicks adjudged him guilty of murder in the first degree. Spirellis last January 26 fatally stabbed Mary Dashion, a waitress in the restaurant where he was employed.

Policeman Wounded In Gun Battle Dies

NEW YORK, March 13.—(INS.)—Patrolman James J. Flanagan, who wounded two assailants yesterday when he attempted to question them, was dead today. Flanagan was fired on by John Carroll and Larry Sainio before he had a chance to speak, it was said by police. The two men were expected to recover.

Held Incompetent, Estate Over Million

CHICAGO, March 13.—(AP.)—The estate of Miss Florence Klein, adjudged incompetent last April, was valued at $1,297,488 in an inventory filed in Probate Court yesterday. Daughter of the late L. Klein, pioneer Chicago merchant, she is 51 and lives in Baltimore.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and help overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c.

READY TO TEST WILKINS SUB

NEW YORK, March 13.—(Universal).—The Nautilus, that remarkable submarine in which Sir Hubert Wilkins proposes to voyage to the North Pole, will put out to sea Monday from Camden, N. J., for preliminary tests.

Sir Hubert himself may be aboard, as the boat will be sailed from Camden to Brooklyn, where further tests will be made.

Formerly the O-12 of the United States Navy, the Nautilus will be christened Tuesday, March 17, by Jean Jules Verne, grandson of the famous author of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

More extraordinary even than the exploits conceived by Jules Verne will be the voyage of Sir Hubert's Nautilus. He will brave the terrors of travel underneath the vast ice sheets of the North Polar Ocean.

FETE PLANNED BY HILL TOP 'Y'

Reunion of early members of the South Side and Hill Top branches of the Y. M. C. A. celebrating establishing of the first branch 40 years ago, will be held during the week of April 12. Tentative plans call for several special nights to be designated for Family, Church and Mothers' Club. Others would include Old Timers, Father and son and Three Generation nights. John P. Eichleay is chairman, assisted by Frank Sankey, J. Howard Greig, Harry L. Fisher, James Alexander, John Gwyer, H. B. McNutt, W. E. Clarke, Uriah C. Kramer and Secretary James Simpson, of the Hill Top branch.

Pastel Cottons Are Chic

Pattern 1924

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

A ravishing little frock for a small girl has pointed details that are new and extremely smart. The front and back yokes point to the pleated skirt in truly grown-up fashion. Pattern 1924 is delightfully made of pique in a soft pastel shade, with the neck, armholes and yoke bound in white bias tape. Other suitable fabrics are percale, cotton broadcloth, poncee, ren, dimity, linen, etc. All white or a print would be equally attractive.

May be obtained only in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 36-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE NEW SPRING AND SUMMER PATTERN CATALOG IS NOW READY. It features an excellent assortment of afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes. 2 PLANES RUSH ANTI-TOXIN

POINT BARROW, March 13.—(AP.)—Two airplanes bringing a new supply of anti-toxin for this diphtheria-stricken village were awaited anxiously today. Joe Crosson and S. E. Robbins, Alaska airmen, left Fairbanks yesterday with the serum.

Crosson landed here last Sunday with a quantity of anti-toxin, which was exhausted soon. Several new cases have been reported since then—four virulent cases yesterday.

The hospital is overflowing with patients. Less-serious cases are being cared for in homes.

The seriousness of the epidemic recalled former epidemics that have visited this little northernmost white settlement in North America.

Thirty-five years ago, old-timers said, death rode through the settlement on the wings of a measles scourge, to which 40 per cent of the population succumbed.

WOMAN KILLED, MATE SOUGHT

CLEVELAND, March 13.—(AP.)—The body of Mrs. Marguerite Yaratch, an attractive blonde, who had been married three times, was found early today in a deserted spot in the southwestern part of the city, where she had been beaten and shot to death.

Prepared for a gun battle, police searched for Leo Yaratch, 26, her estranged husband, who, according to relatives, appeared with bloody hands shortly after the woman was killed and told them:

"I've just killed my wife and am going to the electric chair. I will kill the first policeman who tries to arrest me."

Yaratch, the relatives said, asked for money to take him to Corry, Pa., where his parents live. They refused his request and he disappeared, they said.

BAIL REFUSED DAISY DE VOE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court denied the request of Daisy De Voe, former secretary to Clara Bow, screen actress, that bail be set for her pending her application for a new trial for grand theft.

Miss De Voe must remain in the Los Angeles County jail while the courts decide whether she is entitled to a new trial.

The Los Angeles Superior Court and the second division of the State District Court of Appeal, now considering the appeal for a new trial, have refused bail to the former secretary, sentenced to 18 months in jail and five years probation for grand theft from the screen actress.

Miss De Voe's attorney, in petitioning the Supreme Court, stated bail was refused by the lower court without due and proper hearing and that opportunity was not afforded for an argument of points.

DROUGHT LOANS $12,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—Secretary Hyde today said the Department of Agriculture had loaned more than $12,000,000 from the drought relief fund.

Virtually half of this amount has been handled through the Memphis office, which loans for Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and part of Kentucky.

The loans, Hyde said, have been averaging from $150 to $200.

Most of the money has been for individual relief, and very little for credit stabilization. Hyde said some difficulties had arisen in the loans for credit stabilization because of the effort required of the local communities.

Briton Sets Mark For Midget Autos

BROOKLANDS, Eng., March 13.—(AP)—The British motorist, G. E. T. Eyston, driving a midget car, broke the world record for baby cars at one mile today with an official speed of 96.93 miles per hour.

The previous record was 94 miles an hour, established at Daytona recently by Capt. Malcolm Campbell, since knighted. Eyston also captured the kilometer record today, the mark being 156 kilometers per hour.

EIGHT ESCAPE RUM BOMB

BOSTON, Md., March 13.—(AP.)—An explosion apparently of dynamite early today partially destroyed the home of George K. Jarvis, Sr., but eight persons asleep at the time escaped unharmed.

The explosion, blamed by police on the activities of bootleggers, was one of a series of acts of violence here and at Ocean City, nearby seaside resort, in the last two years.

Four men are under $3,000 bond each for trial at the March term of Circuit Court, in connection with an attack on the home of Chief of Police Robert Allen at Ocean City last May 16.

One of the four men indicted was Duncan Jarvis, son of George K. Jarvis, Sr., who was in the elder Jarvis' home today. The home of another son, George Jarvis, Jr., was destroyed by fire last fall.

Winter Epidemics

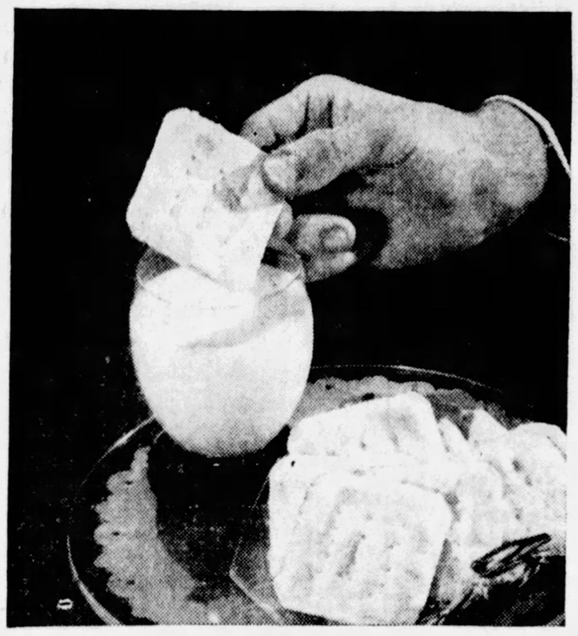
Many Thousands Stricken in Europe and Japan. Now in Eastern United States.

If you have a cold knock it out at once. If not, then use every protection against colds. They are dangerous.

Each little cold you have leaves a few germs in your system. You may not be aware of it and then are an easy victim of even the mildest epidemics that occur during the winter months.

Millions are now using the famous Pure Herb Laxative Tonic called Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea to break up colds quickly and strengthen and fortify the system. The rich juices brewed from these barks, roots, leaves and plants, taken steaming hot at bedtime, are instantly effective.

Prevention leaves no regrets and Bulgarian Herb Tea taken by the whole family at least twice a week will keep you in good physical condition. The cost is small and your druggist will honestly recommend Bulgarian Herb Tea.



SOME PEOPLE CAN'T DUNK . . . Simply because they don't go at it right

But don't despair of mastering this gentle and graceful accomplishment. Take a glass of milk and a box of Uneeda Biscuit (those grand old dunkets!) to the privacy of your own room.

Practice steadily for ten minutes. Hold the Uneeda Biscuit between the thumb and forefinger. Dip delicately and accurately. Never mind curling your little finger at first. That will come later. Persist. Persevere. You'll be a Dunketeer in spite of all—if your heart's in the right place.

Then you can join the American Society for the Promotion of Dunking and be a Veteran Dunketeer—with full rights and privileges.

Business Revival Under Way, Hoover Says

President Hoover and Secretary of Commerce Lamont.

INDUSTRY RECOVERS

Having moved within the law to put production under control the industry which in 1921 was the first to recover, has of late been selling its full production and, on the social side has gone far toward eliminating child labor, night work for women and inordinately long work days. The worst sore spot with which the administration is concerned at present is the oil industry, which is suffering not from diminished consumption but from excessive capacity resulting from the bringing in of three great fields of which the Texas field is the last and most disturbing.

President Hoover feels that the oil industry itself is partly to blame for conditions because of slowness to apply remedies proposed several years ago. In addition to interstate proration the chief executive holds the opinion that an interstate compact regulating production, is necessary. Such an agreement would not be legal under the existing anti-trust laws without ratification by Congress.

NEW HOOVER POLICY

From President Hoover down government officials show a new policy toward business forecasting. It is part of the record that Mr. Hoover's prophecy in March 1930, that the worst would be over in 60 days failed of fulfillment. It is scarcely the business of public officials to essay the role of economic soothsayers. But in going wrong, the President had good company. Many economists and forecasting agencies likewise underestimated the extent and duration of the depression, which became intensified last summer by a combination of unpredictable circumstances, including the drought. Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of Cleveland Trust Company, in commenting on the failure of forecasting in that period pointed out that a business recession culminated last June and instead of being followed by the expected recovery was succeeded by a major business depression.

President Hoover believes that the recovery which took place in domestic business last spring would have carried through except for disastrous subsequent turns in outside world business, as measured by the collapse of silver, the secondary weakness in commodities and the revolution in nine countries. He now sees signs of readiness for economic regeneration at home as well as abroad.

CESSATION OF DECLINE

Data flowing to the White House indicate that for several months there has been no balance a cessation of the decline in general business. Visitors find President Hoover especially pleased with reports of an increase in employment last month, the first gain in more than a year. The President thinks also that the country is at the threshold of the time when seasonal factors would open up outdoor work and alleviate the general unemployment situation.

Despite reluctance to make predictions the Chief Executive continues confident of the longer term future. He is impressed with the fact that at the bottom of all previous depressions it was always fashionable to think that recovery would never come. Surveys of the annals of business history have also demonstrated to him that it is no new impulse for the public to blame the government for economic distress. In Cleveland's first administration, the turnover of congressmen was nearly 70 per cent, compared with 20 per cent in last November's election. Moreover, in 1907, it was fashionable to refer to the disturbance as the Roosevelt panic.

The President does not lay any special political significance to the Progressive conference, now in session in Washington, but regards it as an attempt to exploit such discontent as is inevitable in time of depression.

HOOVER'S AID LAUDED

President Hoover's intervention into the business situation on behalf of stabilization, it is argued, has resulted in going through intense depression with an absence of social disturbances. The administration ascribes this social tranquility to President Hoover's efforts to maintain wage rates to organized relief for the unemployed, and to the Farm Board's costly experiment, which at least has enabled somewhat more orderly agricultural liquidation than might otherwise have been possible.

President Hoover, regarding this as the first purely industrial depression, thinks that permanent business stabilization measures will have to be founded on a better diagnosis of the causes of the economic breakdown. Then he believes it will be feasible to enter future business cycles better prepared. He feels that co-ordination within industries is vital, and that the government can play a useful part in encouraging efforts to consider conditions as a whole rather than only narrow competitive matters. However, he does not agree with John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, that this entails dismantling the Sherman anti-trust law.

CONFIDENCE SOUGHT

With the lame duck congress out, the President occupies unchallenged the center of the stage at Washington. All through the administration, including the Federal Reserve Board, runs the new desire to function constructively without intruding too much into the public mind. The administration does not want to retard business initiative by causing executives to pause, wondering what the government will do next. It wants the public to feel confident that the administration will be helpful, but that it will not be meddlesome.

Incidentally, the inquiry into banking under the Democratic auspices of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, chairman of the Senate sub-committee, is not necessarily to be construed as out of accord with the White House viewpoint. The President takes the view that the whole banking and credit situation needs to be re-examined, in view of the failure of Federal Reserve rate advances to prevent the earlier stock market boom from creating a dangerous situation. Moreover, the chief executive is not adverse to opening up the question of changing eligibility rules under which member banks may look to the Federal Reserve System for help in times of widespread public nervousness such as prevailed late last Autumn. The President believes that the rush of the banks to unload and become liquid protected unemployment for a million persons.

Last Call! to Grant's 25th Economy Sale
SATURDAY

25 Years
and the same ideas hold true!

The same principles which W. T. Grant laid down in his very first advertisements in Lynn, in 1906, are still part of Grant Policies today.

"This is a quality store," wrote Mr. Grant. "Besides our low prices . . . there is a quickness of service . . ." "We will buy back any item that does not please you." "Not a few specials, or special days—but a store always full of specials."

So in celebrating our Silver Jubilee we merely repeat those policies—whose sincerity has been proven during these 25 years.

Alma Rubens Victim In Maddened Whirl Of Narcotic Addicts

By ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER XXXVII

Drug orgies, devil worship, Sadism, love cults, all the horror and degradation that the world today calls perversion—I might as well have stayed in Ward Six at Patton, with the poor mindless animals there.

For a week or so I fought my losing fight with what courage I could muster. It was all I could do to play my part at the matinee and evening performances.

I knew I was on the verge of collapse. If I could only get to New York! There were good doctors there, fine men, honest doctors, who would take pity on me, and help me to keep the desperate promise I had made to myself.

Miss Rubens

The hour that I left the stage after my last engagement, I rushed to New York.

I had heard of a fine physician there, a well-known practitioner, trusted and admired by well-known women in the world of society as well as by many well-known actresses.

I went to see Doctor Exclusive—that wasn't his name, but it will do as well as any other.

The doctor was glad to see me. He knew my name and he knew many of my friends. Some day he would give himself the pleasure of seeing me on the stage.

Doctor Cheerful

Too bad that my nerves were misbehaving. Nothing serious about it, of course, but annoying—very, especially to a young woman like me, who should be in the best of health and spirits all the time.

He would arrange all that. Oh, yes, it was quite simple. So the good, kind, wise doctor gave me a prescription, told me to have it filled at a certain drug store and take it that night.

I did take that medicine that very night and for the first time in weeks I slept like a healthy child, or like a tired farmhand.

I was charmed.

It was going to be all right after all.

How foolish I'd been, to worry so about such a simple affair.

Then one morning—I began to understand.

There was no more of the medicine left in my little cabinet.

"I'll get some when I go out," I thought.

But I didn't have the prescription. The doctor thought it was best to get it for me himself after he had been giving it to me for some time.

I called the doctor. A sudden fear possessed me—suppose he was out of town! How careless I had been to let the medicine run out.

The maid at the doctor's office said that the doctor had gone with his family for a weekend to a distant resort.

I realized that I would have to wait for his return to get any more "medicine."

Nerves Shaken

I tried to read, but the words on the printed page did a crazy dance before my eyes. I went out for a walk, but my knees shook so I had to come back again. I took a hot bath, and a glass of hot milk, and tried to sleep.

Every nerve in my body was jerking—what could be the matter with me? I felt exactly as I did when I was taking the "cure."

Who was that beautiful woman I had met in the doctor's office one day? She seemed to be so kind, so sympathetic. I found her name in the telephone book and called her. She answered the telephone herself. The moment I spoke she seemed to know what was the matter. She said she would be right over.

In 15 minutes she arrived. I could hardly totter to the door to admit her.

"Why, my dear," said the beautiful, middle-aged woman, in her soft, cultivated voice. "Don't be so frightened, all you need is a shot."

"A shot!" I repeated after her. "A shot of what!"

"Why, darling," she said, "a shot of cocaine. Do you mean to say you have run out!"

Ill, shaking, faint, dazed as I was, her words struck on my brain like the shot of a gun.

"Cocaine!" I whispered, "is that what he was giving me?" The woman started at me in bewilderment.

"Why, you poor darling," she said, "of course, I thought you knew that. I thought you went there just the same as I did—to buy drugs."

Also Drug Fiend

"Are you a drug fiend, too?" I shuddered.

"Yes, Alma," she replied, very seriously, "yes, I am an addict, too, but I hope we're not fiends."

I fell back on the bed. I don't know whether I fainted or not, but a little later, as I hazily remember, Mrs. Blank was sitting beside me on the bed drawing a little packet of white powder from her purse. She gave it to me and I snatched it as a drowning man snatches at a straw. I took a little pich, put it on the base of my thumb, drew it into my nostrils. Soon courage returned.

King Dope was back on the throne, and I, poor, silly Alma Rubens, who had just made such a wonderful comeback, was again one of his faithful subjects.

My new friend stayed with me until midnight. We talked of books and plays, and whether long dresses would ever come back or not. When she left me she handed me another little white package. I took it without a word.

That poor woman was a leading member of New York society. Her hair was gray and she was the mother of a beautiful daughter.

I don't blame her for what she did.

She was just trying to help me.

But how about that highly-respected, well-known and successful doctor, who had deliberately led me into dope again just to get my money?

Alma plans to kill doctor who betrayed her into taking dope again. The outcome is revealed in tomorrow's installment.

Explosive Shipment Rail Casualties Low

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(INS.)—American and Canadian railroads last year handled 500,000,000 pounds of dangerous explosives, largely used for commercial purposes, without a fatality, and with but two injuries, and with property loss of only $71, the American Railway Association announced today.

Last year the railroads handled also millions of pounds of acids, compressed gases, corrosive and poisonous liquids and scores of other dangerous articles without a fatality.

Pitt Student Body Sifts Social Life

Investigations and "commissions" are not limited to the august body of the U. S. Senate or to State or city legislative bodies. Student Council at the University of Pittsburgh has just appointed a committee to probe charges that there is too much social life.

PRIZE RECIPES STILL SOUGHT

There is still time for housewives to suggest ways of preparing macaroni or spaghetti and take advantage of the prizes offered by the Sun-Telegraph in its macaroni-spaghetti contest. Only eight days remain.

Every housewife has a favorite way of preparing macaroni or spaghetti which pleases her family and friends. If it pleases the family it may be good enough to win one of the many prizes. Cash awards of $100 and assorted packages of macaroni products are offered by the Sun-Telegraph. In all there are 56 prizes offered.

The rules are simple and all that is necessary is to follow the instructions printed here.

Contest Rules

1—Each contestant may submit as many receipes as she wishes, calling for macaroni or spaghetti.

2—A part of the wrapper of a package of any brand must be enclosed with your recipe.

3—Write on one side of the paper only. Be sure your name and address are on each sheet of paper you submit. This is important.

5—The contest closes at noon on March 21.

6—The names of the winners will be announced soon after that date. The prize-winning recipes also will be published.

THE PRIZES

Fourth prize—Three dollars in cash and three packages of spaghetti products.

Twelve prizes of $1 each in cash and two packages each of spaghetti products.

Twelve prizes of one dozen assorted packages each of spaghetti products.

In addition to the above prizes, each contestant submitting one or more recipes calling for macaroni or spagetti will receive a macaroni timer free.

INJURED IN CAB, ASKS $50,000

Marie Bruzda, of Oakland, asked $50,000 damages from the Yellow Cab Company and Lawrence P. Rishel, for injuries in a traffic collision, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. She averred she was a passenger in a cab which collided with an automobile operated by Rishel on the Smithfield Street Bridge February 12.

Hurled through the front window, she suffered concussion of the brain and her face was disfigured, according to the suit, which charged reckless operation of both vehicles.

Mary Elizabeth Rice, of the North Side, was awarded $2,000 for injuries in a sidewalk fall by a Common Pleas Court jury in her suit against the city. She alleged the fall was due to a hole in an uneven sidewalk in the vicinity of 710 Madison avenue.

COURT ORDERS SALOON SHUT

The restaurant and saloon in the King Edward Hotel, 500 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, was ordered padlocked for three months because of dry law violations.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court ruled that at the end of three months, Edward Cerceo, designated as owner in an injunction suit brought by the prohibition authorities, may petition to have the padlock order vacated. Then he must post a bond against further law-breaking on the premises and install a new tenant.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Buying... with YOUR EYES OPEN!

MANY of the products that greet you from shelf and counter today bear familiar names.

Names you know by their advertising. By their reputation. Or by personal experience. They seem like old friends.

Other products are strangers.

What do you know about them?

Often their appeal is a "bargain price." But are they always bargains?

Their labels are attractive. More inviting, sometimes, than those of the products they seek to imitate. But how can you ever know what these labels conceal?

THE ANSWER TO SUBSTITUTION IS ALWAYS . . . "NO"

Remember this every time you buy—

Before there can be an imitation, there must be something worth imitating. Have you ever seen an imitation as good as the original?

Clerks who try slyly to sell you something "just as good" are looking only to today. Tomorrow the same product may not be on the shelf. Perhaps even today the clerk does not know who made it.

Ask yourself . . . "Why does he offer me this substitute? Why does he urge me to accept this or that product instead of the one I want?"

There are many reasons. Most of them selfish. Certainly, none of them springs from the desire to serve you better.

These facts are published by this newspaper to tell you of your danger. To protect you against substitution. To warn you to buy with your eyes open.

No deserving product ever needs the claim, "just as good." When you hear those words, you may know there is something better.

And that package which "holds a little more" often holds little more than disappointment.

There is only one sure way for any shopper to avoid substitution.

Ask for recognized brands. Ask for them by name. Accept no questionable imitations.

LONDON LIKELY TO SEE GANDHI

LONDON, March 13.—(INS.)—London may have an opportunity this summer to scrutinize at close range the emaciated features and sandalled feet of Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, crusading "holy man" of India, who will probably come here to participate in further Round Table conferences, it was learned today.

The impending visit of the Nationalist leader was revealed by Premier Ramsay MacDanold in a concluding debate on India in the House of Commons last night.

The premier informed the House that the federal structure committee of the Round Table conference would resume London deliberations as soon as possible, preferably this summer. Invitations already have been sent to New Delhi asking the leading Nationalists there to return here for the conference.

Criticized Design For Haig Statue To Stand

LONDON, March 13.—(AP.)—Alfred Hardiman's unpopular design for an equestrian statue of Marshal Haig is going to stand whether England likes it or not, the commissioner of works disclosed. He announced to protesting British legionnaires that the design had been definitely approved.

This is the sculptor's second attempt to please the public. The first design for a statue voted by Parliament brought a storm of protest, chiefly directed at the proportions of the horse.

Hardiman made the horse heavier, but this time Haig himself was bareheaded and wearing a cape. Even his widow protested, and the Marshal's friends insisted that he never appeared without a cap and never wore a cape. The Marshal's private secretary said Haig himself would have condemned both models.

INDICT SUSPECT IN SHOOTING

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 13.—(AP.)—As an outgrowth of the wounding of Walter Shaw, Jr., Oil City, Pa., during a holdup March 5, a grand jury indicted Alfred Surand, 35, unemployed chauffeur, on charges of assault to kill and attempted robbery.

Shaw is in a city hospital with wounds in his right arm and chest. He was escorting Miss Dorothy Duddleston, East St. Louis, Ill., home from a show and was shot when he refused to obey the robber's command to hold up his hands.

Surand was captured soon after the shooting and police said he was identified by Shaw as the intruder.

Real Estate

The weekly report of C. C. C. Stotler, secretary of the Title Guaranty Company, reveals that a total of 319 mortgages valued at $1,271,529.51 were placed on record from March 5, to and including March 11. Twenty-seven of these, valued at $108,669.12, were purchase money mortgages. Two hundred and ninety-two were straight mortgages and have a valuation of $1,162,860.39. One hundred and three mortgages were to corporations, 127 to building and loan associations and 62 to individuals.

Guy W. Ellis, former president of the Detroit Real Estate Board, will hold a sales conference Friday, March 27, in the William Penn Hotel under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. In the morning from 10 o'clock to 12 noon Ellis will discuss "The Dollars You Are Missing Down the Street," and "Some Commissions Paid by Property Briefs." In the afternoon session he will speak on "New Approaches to Business Men" and "How to Make Appreciative Prospects." Ellis will come to Pittsburgh through the courtesy of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park will speak at the weekly noonday meeting of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board next Tuesday in the Blue Room of the William Penn Hotel. Park's subject will be "Criminal Courts."

MAJ. BOWES AND HIS STARS RETURN TO AIR IN ST. PATRICK PROGRAM

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Good old Maj. Bowes returns to WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight. Westell Gordon and an army of stellar entertainers are to give St. Patrick a pat on the back. Among the things we wouldn't miss are the String Choir on KDKA at 7:15; Jessica Dragonette and Leo O'Rourke singing "Why Do I Love You?" from "Show Boat" on WCAE at 8; Raymond Knight's clever interpretation of "It Happened in Monterey," WCAE at 9; quartet singing "Kentucky Babe" on KDKA at 9:30; the scheduled return of "Two Troupers"—Marcella Shields, Helene Handin — WCAE at 9:45; and dramatization of the week's news events on WJAS at 10:30 (a supreme presentation last week).

Miss Shields

A paragraph to our Alma Mater, if you please. Hear the Homestead High School Band on WCAE tomorrow at 5:15.

Also congratulations to Martin Fallon, classmate at Homestead High School, today chosen "King of the Campus" at Pitt. They don't make them any finer.

Oley Speaks' delightful "Sylvia" and the Largo from Dvorak's "New World Symphony" were sung beautifully last night by the Braddock Male Chorus.

QUESTION A DAY:

Is Jack Smart who plays in Detective Drama and the Watchman sketches occasionally, the same man who enacts "Jo" in "Jo and Vi?"—Ruth K., Ambridge.

Answer—A good ear, Ruth. Jack also plays a part in the Peter Zorn sketch, WJAS tonight at 8:30.

An old dilapidated barn door—packed and shipped by freight from Pittsburgh—is the latest relic to be added to the collection of "Sisters of the Skillet." Hey! Hey!

We're betting that the local team of "Riggs and Moke" (WCAE tomorrow at 3:15) makes the network before the year is out.

Cheerio! We shall attend his fourth birthday party on WCAE tomorrow morning at 8:30.

Freeman F. Gosden (Amos) yesterday told a group of New York newspapermen that speaking parts by Madame Queen and other feminine characters are taboo in their sketches from now on. Also that Lightnin' is to be eliminated in favor of Brother Crawford.

Coming: Little Jack Little with Rudy Vallee next Thursday; Buddy Rogers on WJAS next Wednesday and Norma Shearer the Wednesday following; the Prince of Wales tomorrow at 1 o'clock over WEAF-WJZ networks; a dramatization of the Associated Press gathering news, WEAF chain tomorrow night at 7:30.

* * *

They're naming babies for Elsie Lichtenstul and Glenn Riggs. A girl born in Clymer, Pa., has been christened Glenna Elsie.

Last year it snowed on the Pirates' opening day. So Jim Murray has interviewed the weather man as to prospects this year at Forbes Field and gives the result, WJAS at 6:30 tonight.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

When asked if he had picked his opponent in the steeplechase presidential race inaugurated with bombastic speeches over KDKA and WCAE yesterday, Raymond Knight lit a cigaret in nonchalance and replied:

"I doubt if anyone will run against me."

Ray turned down a local commercial offer of $100 for a five-minute talk because of his NBC contract. Two national movie companies discussed contracts with him and we learned that the "Cuckoo Hour" may be sponsored soon by a candy company.

THE COLONIAL TRUST CO.
FOURTH . WOOD . DIAMOND

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, March 13.—Our operatives, dispatched to learn to what extent radio is an attraction for hotel guests, have filed their report.

They state that the first request of guests is for a radio-equipped room. The belief that radio might prove a nuisance to patrons in adjoining rooms is also dissipated by the report. The management has seen to that. By a centralized volume control, regulated by the management, programs—even those waiers of "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver"—cannot be heard in the room next door.

In the majority of hotels radio ceases at midnight and only recently was it allowed on Sunday mornings and then only because guests protested they wanted to hear church services.

Radio as a noise conveyance in the hotels is actually subordinate—it's hard to believe, members of the Board of Health, but it's true—to the removal of shoes, the clink of the poker chip and the stirring of a spoon in a glass. You'd never think it, would you?

Paul Whiteman continues to use the sad strains of "Rhapsody in Blue" as his radio theme melody. The "Rhapsody" has become as much identified with Whiteman as "Sidewalks of New York" with Al Smith. His pride in it is paternal. He still plays it with the same enthusiasm and understanding with which he introduced it to the lifted eyebrows of Aeolian Hall seven long years ago. And for good reason. He knows it is the finest jazz composition yet written.

Whiteman, rotund, imperturbable, the easy prey for caricaturists, waves his baton over his musicians as assuringly for this piece as Toscanini waves his baton for the overture to "Tannhauser." He knows every intricate note of the composition, the place for the proper shading and emphasis, and the musicians respond with the pride born of knowledge that they are not playing mere jazz but jazz that expresses the restless and rhythmic beat of present-day America.

Viewpoints on everything under the sun are now being aired on the loudspeaker by the leading figures of Europe and America. The broadcasters, however, have yet to smoke out John D or J. P. Morgan. I doubt that they ever will.

Most of the big noun-and-adjective men on the microphones are, happily, making no attempt to copy the Gibbons rat-a-tat-tat technique. While their greenbacks have not yet turned to the yellow of Gibbons', there is no soothsayer who is able to predict when some cereal-maker or tooth-paste blender will appreciate the quality of poise and restraint and their appeal to the armchairs and place the leisurely talkers on the high and narrow road to heavy sugar and surtaxes.

This department will not reach for a handkerchief if the broadcasters decide to put a ban on the recitation of "Casey at the Bat," quartet warblings of "On the Road to Mandalay," announcers who are forever saying "and now," string trios sawing through the "Peer Gynt Suite," pipe organ interpretations of "blues," the sales-plugging that is encroaching more and more upon the chatter of "Amos 'n' Andy," hill billy songs.

If the radio men have any influence with Toscanini—and I don't believe they have—they might find room on his schedule for the "Pathetique" Symphony of Tschaikowsky

SLIDE BURIES 2 VILLAGES

CHAMBERY, France, March 13.—(INS.)—Two villages in this vicinity were buried under tons of earth and others menaced as a huge mountain slide advanced downhill today at a speed of 300 feet an hour.

The 125 inhabitants of the tiny towns of Michaud and Berges were safely evacuated before the sliding mass obliterated their homes.

Torrential rainfalls of the last week were blamed for the break-off in the mountain region. Engineers estimated that 6,000,000 cubic yards of rock and earth comprise the rolling mass.

Cosgrave Broadcast To Be Heard Sunday

NEW YORK, March 13.—(INS.)—The first radio program ever broadcast from Ireland to the United States will be heard at 1:30 p. m. (eastern standard time), Sunday, when William Cosgrave, president of the executive committee of the Irish Free State Parliament, will talk from Dublin. His speech will be carried by the National Broadcasting Company network.

He was expected to speak on the economic development of Ireland, international peace, the Eucharistic Congress of 1932, and the Chicago World Fair of 1933.

DRY RAID STIRS ROW BETWEEN U. S. BUREAUS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—On apparent rift between the customs and prohibition bureaus developed today following a raid by Philadelphia police and federal dry agents on the steamer Republic, of the United States lines, as the ship was about to sail from Philadelphia to the West Indies.

Customs Commissioner F. X. A. Eble, transmitted a report on the raid which he had received from Lincoln Archer, collector in Philadelphia, to Assistant Treasury Secretary Seymour Lowman, and it was reported that Lowman would take the matter up with Secretary Mellon. It may even reach the White House.

PENNINGTON "SORRY"

Customs authorities in Philadelphia said the raid was conducted without their knowledge, and declared the claim of the prohibition agents that the Customs Office could not be reached prior to the raid was a "weak excuse." A half-pint of liquor was said to have been found.

The statement of Acker said John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for the Philadelphia district, expressed regret at the failure of his agents to obtain consent of the customs officials for the visit, and promised to make a report on the incident, which Acker added was not submitted at the time he sent his statement to Eble.

Director Woodcock said he did not contemplate asking Administrator Pennington for a report of the incident, adding the belief that Pennington did not consider the incident of "sufficient importace" to warrant submission of a report.

POLICE HEAD UNDER FIRE

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—(AP.)—Philadelphia's citizenry today anxiously awaited the aftermaths of yesterday's meeting of City Council, during which Director of Public Safety Lemuel B. Schofield was called upon to resign.

The suggestion was made by Councilman Charles B. Hall, who later challenged Mayor Harry A. Mackey to dismiss Director Schofield for what he termed discrediting Philadelphia by carrying out alleged illegal police raids for liquor.

Previously, Hall said if Council had had the power to do so, it would have impeached Director Schofield long ago. This declaration was seconded by Councilman William W. Roper, who added:

"If I had the executive position and power, Schofield would be out tonight."

TORCH SLAYER CONVICTED

INDIANAPOLIS, March 13.—(AP.)—Convicted of voluntary manslaughter for the death of an unknown hitch-hiker whose body he admitted burning in his automobile near here last May, Harold Herbert Schroeder, Mobile, Ala., today faced a 2 to 21-year term in the Indiana state prison.

Judge Frank P. Baker, who presided at the trial in Criminal Court, will pronounce sentence Monday morning.

The verdict was reached by a jury after 3 hours 35 minutes deliberation. The case was given the jurors at 3 p. m. yesterday after 11 days of testimony and arguments before a courtroom crowded at every session. The state had sought conviction of first degree murder and imposition of the death penalty.

PLANE IN FLIGHT FOR RADIO TEST

DAYTON, O., March 13.—(AP.)—For the purpose of testing high frequency radio equipment, the flying radio laboratory of Wright Field, a specially equipped transport plane, left here shortly after noon today on a three-day test flight, which will take it to Miami, Fla.

Radio amateurs all over the country have been asked to try to contact the plane and report their reception to Lieut. H. G. Messer, acting officer in charge of the radio laboratory at Wright Field. On the flight the plane will use the call letters AB-6 and will broadcast over a frequency of 4,000 kilocycles, planning to send both code and telephone messages.

Secretary Bliss' Daughter, 66, Dead

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Miss Lizzie P. Bliss, daughter of the late Cornelius N. Bliss, secretary of the interior under President McKinley, died last night in her Park avenue apartment. She was 66.

Miss Bliss, a native of Boston, was well known as a patron of music and painting.

Policeman Shoots Trial Prosecutor

HAMBURG, March 13.—(AP.)—A police sergeant under questioning in a departmental trial for political offenses today whipped out his service revolver and fired at Herr Lassalys, the government counselor, wounding him seriously.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Interesting piece by Broun about that cop who is stationed at the Club Argonaut . . . Police Commissioner Mulrooney detailed several of them in various White Light night places since the Abbey Club was bing-bang-boomed . . . Broun felt too sorry for the officer, however . . . He said that the poor cop had to be there and listen to the same jokes and same sillies, and look at the same undraped sirens night after night, and that it must drive him pecans. . . . Wasted sympathy, considering that the policeman, after he does his two weeks at the Argonaut, where there is always something doing, must then do two weeks at the ill-fated Abbey—in the candle-light, where he probably goes a little mad watching the same mice play tag in and out of the bullet holes . . . The very odd McIntyre says that "Lady Play Your Mandolin" was composed by a Cuban . . . Oscar Levant, a Pittsburgh Jentleman, will like that . . . The odd fellow on the Sabbath also declared that the most tuneful hit of all the musicals was Vincent Youman's "Tea for Three" . . . Youman's "Tea for Two" was good, three!

Leave it to some of the shrewder speakeasy and restaurant impresarios to think up something different to appeal to one's vanity. . . . There's the lad who runs that exclusive place in the mid-town sector where the password is "Birthday" . . . "Birthday" because once you are okayed there, they jot down your name, address and your birthday . . . And on that day every year your mail includes a card containing some sentimentality . . . You meet the most interesting people after midnight . . . That very successful broker, frixample, whose hobby is giving celebrities $100 bills—which he autographs . . . In return he asks the celebrated one to give him a new dollar bill autographed . . . What a grand hobby it would be if the generous fellow gave those $100 bills to those who really need them . . . Money was made round as Balzac said, because it was meant to roll . . . And who was it chirped a long time ago that there are only 63 ways of making money, and 214 ways of spending it? . . . I know 215.

The bluenoses down in Baltimore have gone a little silly . . . They've discovered some old laws and now won't let the peasants by talcum powder or shaving cream on Sunday . . . But this is most amusing: You are not allowed to purchase meat from a delicatessen store—only bread and milk . . . You may buy candy on the Sabbath, however . . . So the delly men are bootlegging meat—if they know you . . . They'll peddle you a quarter of a pound of corner beef—but you have to accept it in a taffy box! . . . The most difficult first-nighters to please write that they witnessed Jolson in "Wunderbar" in Washington and that it is "sensational." . . . "It is a New Jolson" goes the exciting letter . . . This is delightful news—yet I will not be permitted to witness the show or Jolson . . . My penance for being the incorrigible person that I am . . . It must be horrible to have been so renowned a critic as was Alexander Woollcott . . . And then have a youngster come up to you between acts of a premiere show and say: "May I have your autograph please, Owen Davis?" . . . Woollcott should be comforted in knowing that hardly anyone remembers the name of the fellow who crossed Niagara on a tight rope over three hundred times.

Among other lads on Broadway who must have tittered long last week is Matthew Crowley, a former New Haven native . . . Crowley was not regarded good enough at the Yale Drama School for a speaking part in even the most unimportant experimental play produced by George Pierce Baker . . . Today, less than three years after he completed the course, he is the only alumnus of the Yale Drama School who is playing a lead on the Grandest Canyon—having just succeeded Lee Tracy in the lead role of "O, Promise Me!" . . . I'm sorry Fred Girton, of the Friday Night at Miami, fired C. E. Heil because I pointed out that Heil had lifted his entire column of puns from Film Fun . . . But Heil had accused me of borrowing from his thefted material, although in taking an item I credited Girton, the owner and editor of the sheet, not having observed any by-line on the stuff . . . Now comes word that a recent gag (also credited to a source) belonged to Olsen & Johnson of vaudeville . . . But just as I was on the verge of sending an apology to them I learned they swiped it from an old "Vanities" show.

I'm getting to be a great, big softy . . . I can't hear about lovers any more without wanting to feel sorry for them . . . That's what I've always said . . . "Don't show me a couple madly in love with each other, because one of the two—some day—will ache all over something awful" . . . So now Frances Williams and Alan Jones, who were going to get married—aren't . . . And Frances has a new sweetheart already . . . He's one of the horntooters in Fred Waring's "Pennsylvanians" . . . The lad just parted from is a musicker, too, in the California Collegians . . . Not only is Fwancee musically inclined (and she never took a lesson, either!), but she is the only blonde with a mole on her shapely back who can leap from California to Pennsylvania and sing the new "Scram" song: "Hmmm-Mmmm-Hmmm, Woodja Like to Take the Air?" . . . And, even though Fwancee and Alan have parted, he continues to play the piano for her at the Club Richman while she sings "Love for Say-hay-hale!" . . . It's all very Broadway . . . Ted Cook columns: "One half the world doesn't know how the other half loves" . . . No? . . . Pardon a moment, the phone is ringing . . . Heheheh . . . That was Harry Richman . . . He phoned to say why there are no breadlines in California . . . Because, it appears, they have no bread!

There is something touching about that story concerning little Gloria, aged 7, who is carrying her first torch, and experiencing her first real heartache . . . Gloria is a beautiful child, whose face, someone once remarked, seemed as though it had been chiseled from marble by a genius . . . Well, while she was holidaying in Miami Beach most of the winter, she met a chap much older than herself . . . His name is Johnny Weissmuller, and he is the champion swimmer of the world, having copped all honors at five Olympics . . . Weissmuller adored little Gloria . . . He waited for her to dine at the little Coffee Shop across the way from the Roney-Plaza daily—with her baby sister and the nurse . . . Weismuller would pat her dainty hands and fondle her cheeks and kiss her tenderly . . . And always very seriously he would say:

"Gloria dear, you're only seven years old, I know, but if you will only eat all that spinach and your carrots, it will make you grow up quickly. I will wai' for you to grow up, honey—and then we can be married, see?"

Gloria hated spinach and carrots, but Johnny was her dream man—her Prince Charming—so she forced down the ugly-tasting spinach—anything to please her Johnny . . . Then while she was on the Havana Special coming home to her daddy in New York, her nurse showed her the newspaper which reported Weissmuller's marriage to Bobbe Arnst, the actress . . . Gloria broke down and wept furiously . . . She hasn't been the same since . . . You can't get her to sit at the same table that features spinach or carrots, and she stares and stares . . . Poor thing . . . Some fellows just can't be trusted.

NEW PLANET'S BIRTHDAY

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., March 13.—(AP.)—Today is Pluto's birthday—the first anniversary of the discovery of "Planet X," the ninth world and the only one which is Mother Earth's twin in size.

The birthday marks the finish of the big scientific row which this shy, far-distant brother stirred up. For months some astronomers called him a comet, or at best a "planetary object," a sort of half-wit planet.

Pluto now appears to be the only known place where a human being could go without changing his weight. Its mass—the factor which determines gravitation's pull—is very nearly that of the earth.

Calls Upon Arabs To Boycott Jews

JERUSALEM, March 13.—(AP.)—Jamel Husseinin, secretary of the Arab executive, today issued a proclamation calling upon Arabs to continue their boycott of the Jews in Palestine.

A local Arab newspaper today urged leaders to follow Gandhi's example and discard foreign made clothing, "thus showing the true spirit of nationalism which the people will follow."

Five Women Faint Watching Facial Operation

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—While an orchestra played in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania, five women fainted and 1,500 men and women, delegates to the international convention of beauty shop owners, watched the first face-lifting operation ever performed in public.

Motion picture cameras ground under Klieg lights. On a raised platform, Dr. J. Howard Crum, plastic surgeon of New York and Chicago, cut and snipped, modeling youth on one side of the face of Mrs. Martha E. Petelle, nearly 60, former film actress, who hopes she may get back into the talkies to play "mother" roles.

Justice Kephart's Son Admitted to Bar

EBENSBURG, Pa., March 13.—Attorney Alvin E. Kephart, son of Justice John W. Kephart, of the State Supreme Court, was admitted to the practice of law here. The four courts of the county held a recess for the ceremony during which Justice Kephart also was on the bench.

Operator Killed In Film Blaze

GIRL ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

SALT LAKE CITY, March 13.—(AP.)—Interest in the trial of Jean Dayle, 21, cabaret singer, charged with the slaying of Sam Frank, Memphis (Tenn.) jewelry salesman, centered today in the selection of the jury.

When court adjourned late yesterday 11 men and a woman were in the jury box, but neither state nor defense had used any peremptory challenges, of which each side is allowed 10. Questioning by Judge James H. Wolfe showed all the veniremen in the box at the close of the first day were married, and 10 had families. Only one stated he was opposed to the death penalty.

Officers said Miss Dayle had confessed the slaying and robbing of the jewelry salesman last December 6. At her preliminary hearing the confession was not admitted as evidence. The state charged the girl stole a valuable diamond ring and money after hitting, gagging and drugging Frank in his hotel room.

French Deputies Uphold Premier

PARIS, March 13.—(A.P.)—The Chamber of Deputies after sitting for more than 24 hours, this forenoon, voted confidence in Premier Laval, 340 to 215. The vote brought rejection of a Socialist amendment to a government measure enabling reorganization of the Aeropostale Company.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

RAILROAD ENDS LONG SERVICE

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., March 13.—Thirty-one years of service by the four-mile line of the Washington Run Railroad Company, between Layton and Star Junction via Perryopolis, ended last night. No ceremonies marked the final trip on the road, which connected the mining district with the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Layton.

The railroad was built in 1899 at a cost of $225,000, to provide an outlet for coal and coke manufactured at the Star Junction plant of the Washington Coal and Coke Company. The concern was recently sold to the H. C. Frick Coke Company, which will employ the underground belt system to haul coal to the Monongahela river for shipment by water.

A star route motor mail service, to succeed the railroad, was instituted today from the Connellsville postoffice.

MOTHER OF FIVE GETS $7,974

The State Workmen's Compensation Board, meeting in the Fulton building, has paved the way for a mother and five children to return to her native Greece where she claims she will be able to live for the rest of her life on her $7,974.68 compensation.

The board approved the petition for lumping compensation due Mrs. Mary Kollanos, 38, of Ambridge, for the death of her husband, who was killed January 21 while working for Spang, Chalfant & Co.

Mrs. Kollanos said that her mother, brother and sister live in Greece and that her money will provide for her better there than in the United States.

CUSTOMS POST CHOICE HELD UP

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP).—A deadlock over selection of a surveyor of customs for the port of Philadelphia has developed to the point where appointment will be delayed past expiration of the term of the present surveyor, James E. Rininger.

Rininger's term expires March 17, but because of opposition to his reappointment, Senators Reed and Davis agreed to postpone making a recommendation for the post until Reed returns from a vacation trip. Reed was to leave today for Bermuda on a two-week trip.

The chief rival of Rininger for the post is Thomas S. Stephenson. Both live in Altoona. Senator Davis has indicated his support of Stephenson.

ALLEGED DOPE SENDER CAUGHT

Mrs. Wilda Daugherty, 25, alleged to have sent morphine into the county jail last September in a special delivery letter to her husband, Joseph Daugherty, was arrested by government narcotic agents as fugitive from justice. She was committed to jail in default of $10,000 bond.

The federal grand jury indicted her on a charge of smuggling. Her $1,000 bond was forfeited last November when she failed to appear for trial. Her husband pleaded guilty to selling and possessing narcotics and is serving a two-year sentence in Atlanta penitentiary.

Since the forfeiture of her bond no trace had been found of Mrs. Daugherty until narcotic agents located her on Sandusky street.

PINCHOT SAVES CAPITOL TREES

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 13.—Gov. Pinchot has issued orders that no tree may be cut down on the capitol grounds here without his permission.

This order resulted from the removal of a large tree from the grounds in front of the Library Building. The Governor saw capitol workmen chopping down the tree and asked why it was being removed. He was being told that several limbs were in danger of falling.

He said that in the future he would personally inspect each tree before issuing permission for its removal.

Frat Officials Here for Dinner

Several national officials of the Phi Delta Theta will attend the Pittsburgh club's dinner observing the Eighty-third anniversary of the organization in the William Penn hotel tonight. ELECTION CLERK STARTS 60-DAY TERM

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Percy Grainger, the pianist, who played at the last symphony concert, struck those who met him as a very unusual personage. Grainger does everything differently, but nobody suspected him of being deliberately theatrical rather than sincere.

William Pfarr

His hobby is writing a dictionary. He contends the English language should be English, not Latin and French. The word "transparent," for example, he would change to "look-through-able"—and we might as well confess the hyphen is ours.

On Sunday, the day of the concert, Grainger rehearsed alone at the piano for five hours. He said he did it to keep in trim for future concerts. He took a street car from his downtown hotel to the Mosque, hatless and without an overcoat, in a heavy snowstorm. He did have, however, an umbrella and gloves.

At dinner he ordered hot water. He said he liked hot water and didn't like coffee or tea. The piano? He doesn't like it. Furthermore, he just hates folk songs, which are his specialty. He likes to compose, and pretty soon he's going to retire as a pianist and devote all his time to composition.

His concert ended, he went to the East Liberty station an hour before his train was due, sat on a bench and worked on a number he is composing.

Immediately just before he made his appearance on the stage of the Mosque he stood on one leg in the wings for five minutes. Then he beat his thighs with his fists—this in preparation for his work.

For the dinner we spoke of, water wasn't the only item he ordered. He also had spinach, potatoes and squash.

What's wrong with this country is the home-brew. We aren't sure, but we believe the prohibition laws do not forbid home-brew—which is one criticism we'd make of the prohibition laws. The funny part of it is, every home-brew maker in the land thinks his home-brew is the best. This is the invariable speech which accompanies your host's invitation to a bottle of home-brew:

"Most of the home-brew you get these days isn't fit to drink, but if I do say it myself, this is pretty good stuff, especially if you put a little salt in it."

And then you have to drink a glass of home-brew which reminds you of water muddy. Your only break is that you mustn't drink to the bottom of the bottle for fear of reaching the yeast. Thus, when you're half through, you can lay aside the stuff with the announcement that you're deadly afraid of yeast. The truth is you're probably an admirer of yeast.

And that's why we hope the prohibition laws are amended, because then we'd have no more home-brew.

APPLICANTS FOR WORK DECREASE

Five hundred and eighty-one men seeking employment filed applications yesterday at the five employment stations of the Allegheny County Emergency Association. The applications filed yesterday were nearly 100 below the figure of Wednesday.

The state employment bureau, 622 Grant street, led with 208 applications yesterday. The North Side Ledger office had 110 blanks; Irene Kaufmann Settlement, Center avenue, had 65; Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation station at South Twenty-seventh street, had 102, and a station at 131 Collins avenue, East End, had 96.

Ten men started to work on two projects yesterday, and on Monday 12 more men will be added to each of the two jobs. The men were provided for the city and will be paid by the association. The city is furnishing the material and tools.

Five men went to work on street improvement jobs in Penn avenue between Eleventh and Eighteenth streets, and five more started work in Liberty avenue.

Pershing First To See Hope of Peace in 1918

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER LXI.

I went to Gen. Petain's headquarters at Chantilly August 24, 1918, to confer on various details of the coming St. Mihiel offensive. We fixed the boundary between the American sector and that of the French 2nd Army, which was to attack on our left with six divisions.

When we took up the questions of truck transport and additional artillery, Gen. Petain told me he had issued orders directing all services to give us every assistance. He also said that all the aviation we had asked would be brought into the sector, and more besides.

I was eager to begin the attack by September 7, if possible, or the tenth at the latest, but it appeared that a considerable number of the necessary heavy guns were to come from Mangin's 10th Army, then preparing an operation. It looked as though this would make it necessary to postpone the date of our attack until the tenth or possibly the twelfth.

I returned to Bombon the following afternoon for further conference with Marshal Foch. I asked him particularly to expedite the arrival of the artillery, advising him that to save time the necessary reconnaissance had already been made and the positions for the guns chosen.

Gen. Pershing

I pointed out that any delay in the St. Mihiel operation would, of course, reduce the time we would have to prepare for the later offensive elsewhere. The delay in getting the heavy artillery from Mangin's army, however, held us up until September 12, and there was no way to avoid it.

Marshal Foch and I also spoke of the large program proposed for the United States in 1919. I mentioned the coming visit of Secretary of War Baker and suggested we get together upon his arrival and go thoroughly into all questions.

Wanted Complete Victory

That Foch might visualize our problem as it appeared to me and be prepared to discuss it with the Secretary, I explained that our War Department feared we should not be able to provide supplies for such a large increase in our forces, but that I had contended there should be no hesitation, arguing that we were not making war in a barren country, and although we might have to economize more strictly there would be no danger of our men starving.

The marshal really needed no coaching, as he was thoroughly committed to the larger program. He said that in his opinion the Allies should make every effort to win the war in 1919, that the British were tired, the French were worn out and we must hasten the arrival of the American divisions.

He said he was doing and would continue to do all in his power to obtain the necessary sea transportation, and that his requests had included British, American and Italian shipping.

I suggested that he go into these details in his conversation with our Secretary of War. Feeling that possibly Allied effort might be weakened by peace propaganda, I said positively that "we must not let the people listen to rumors that the Germans are ready to make peace; there should be no peace until Germany is completely crushed. We should emphasize this fact. We have pacifists who are lukewarm * * * and too much inclined to listen to any proposition to have the war stopped."

Up to this time, whatever views or hopes any of us may have held privately, there was no hint of relinquishing plans for the supreme effort in 1919. In support of the 100-division program Gen. Bliss came to see me and suggested closer co-operation between us in advocating its adoption.

As no definite advice had been received from the War Department regarding the greater plans, I continued to urge that the 80-division program be completed by April, 1919, and the 100-division goal by July, basing my action in recommending the higher number mainly on the failure by the War Department so far to reach the maximum figures set in any previous program.

Advocates Big Program

It was my thought also, and I so advised the War Department by cable August 18, that if we ourselves should decide to make the great effort the Allies would be the more willing to concede additional tonnage and supplies.

Moreover, it was certain that if our people at home could be brought to realize the possible eventual demands they would be prepared for the necessary sacri-

FREES TWO BY TAKING BLAME

Other Sentences Suspended; One Ballot Conspiracy Case Left to Be Tried

John Powers, election board clerk in the Twelfth District, Sixth Ward, at the primary last May, today began serving 60 days in jail, having pleaded guilty before Judge George V. Moore in Criminal Court late yesterday to conspiracy to violate the election laws and return a false count.

As a result of Powers' assuming the responsibility, Lawrence Shea, election judge in the district, was given a 90-day suspended sentence, and Joseph Uhrin, inspector, a 60-day suspended sentence. The costs were divided among the three men.

George N. Eberling, clerk, seriously ill since shortly after the election, has not been arrested.

WILL RETURN FEE

Joseph Irlbacher, elected inspector, testified he did not serve, although he later received $10 for his services which he said he would pay back to the county. He said his mother had died the day before election and he did not go to the polls. Other board members carried his name on the return sheets and had no one chosen to fill his place.

Powers testified he had several drinks during the day and signed Irlbacher's name on the return sheets.

County Detective David Drexler testified contents of the ballot box showed many flaws, but apparently without concerted cheating. Although Joseph Armstrong, Jr., was the State Senate candidate of the organization the board members supported politically, and they had 150 votes tallied for him, they left his vote off the return sheet, so the district was tabulated as giving Armstrong no votes.

NEW TRIAL SOUGHT

Attorney Charles B. Prichard filed a motion for a new trial late yesterday for the election board of the Fifteenth District of the Sixth Ward, found guilty by a jury last Saturday. In his motion he said the court had erred 35 times, in refusing that number of points objected to during the trial. The motion will be argued later.

The one election case remaining to be tried, that of the board of the First District of the Sixth Ward, is scheduled to come up next Wednesday.

Sues Husband's Parents To Regain Her Baby

Mrs. Ruth Maitland, of 502 Oakwood street, seeking custody of her daughter, Shirley Ann, 14 months, has obtained a writ of habeas corpus in Common Pleas Court. It names her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Maitland, 921 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg. Judge Ambrose B. Reid set the hearing for Tuesday.

Mrs. Maitland lived with her husband, Samuel M. Maitland, and their two children, at his parents' home until February 3, when she was ordered out by her mother-in-law and took her son, Richard, 5, with her, according to the petition.

The grandparents retained custody of the infant and refused its mother permission to visit it, the petition charged. Mrs. Maitland averred she is informed her husband is in Youngstown, O.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 13.

To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

As there was more money spent on cold cream and cosmetics last year than on bacon and beans, naturally there must be more people interested in beautifying themselves. The International Beauty Congress met in New York and they figured out that this rubbing something on your head to prevent baldness is really what causes it. They claim that you got to take stuff internally for it. So from now on if you see a bald-headed bird reach for his flask, don't ask him for a swig. It's only irrigation juice for his roof.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

3 MEN INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS IN DISTRICT

AUTO, TROLLEY IN HEADON COLLISION

Motorist Swerves to Avoid Crash, Strikes Car; Two Motorcycle Officers Hurt

Three men, including two policemen, were injured in automobile accidents in the city and county yesterday and last night.

Injured when his machine crashed head-on with a Mt. Lebanon street car at West Liberty and Cape May avenues, C. Collins, 47, of 614 street, was in a serious ...tion in Mercy Hospital.

Collins, to avoid striking an automobile stopped by a motorcycle policeman for a traffic violation, swerved into the path of the street car, police said. He suffered a probable fracture of the skull.

Motorcycle Patrolman Frank Tobasco was injured slightly when his motorcycle was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Nicholas Bronder, 24, of Prospect, Pa., at South Twentieth and Sarah streets.

The policeman jumped clear of his motorcycle and it ran down Sarah street, crashing into the automobile of City Detective Frank Nowicki. Tobasco was treated by Dr. D. E. Sable, chief police and fire surgeon. Bronder was arrested.

Motorcycle Patrolman E. R. Gardner, of the Osborne police, suffered lacerations when he was thrown from a motorcycle as he attempted to avoid striking a dog in Beaver road late yesterday.

PARTING OF WAYS HOME HEAD DIES

ROLLO M'BRIDE YIELDS TO LONG ILLNESS

Death at 72 Ends Career That Aided Fallen Men To Start on New Careers

Rollo H. McBride, 72, founder and superintendent of the Parting of the Ways Home for former convicts at 216 East Stockton avenue, North Side, died at his home, 1218 Superior avenue, at midnight. He was known nationally as a prison reform worker.

Mr. McBride

While engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in Chicago he became interested in prison work.

He aided 14,500 released prisoners in Chicago from 1909 to 1913. While attending a prison conference in Pittsburgh, Walter P. Fraser, president of McCann & Co., urged McBride to establish a similar home here. With the support of Mr. Fraser, George E. Alter, former attorney general of Pennsylvania; Judge W. H. Thomson, of the U. S. District Court; Attorney C. K. Robinson, and others, he established the Parting of the Ways Home in East Lacock street, North Side, in December, 1913.

McBride became known nationally for his success here. As a lecturer on Chautauqua circuits he visited virtually every state. In 1916, he was appointed police court public defender by Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong. This innovation made McBride the center of a great sociological movement to improve prison conditions along practical and humanitarian lines.

As public defender he aided the friendless and poverty-stricken unable to obtain counsel for their defense. He believed our costly reformatories provided only university courses in crime, and said the present police court system makes criminals instead of correcting them.

PAROLE HEAD

More than 100 prisoners were paroled to McBride each year since 1917. They were from city, state and federal institutions all over the country, the majority of whom had been residents of Western Pennsylvania.

The body will lie in state at the Parting of the Ways Home from 1 to 5 p. m. Saturday.

McBride was married to Miss Lottie E. King of Chicago, on September 4, 1908. They lived here at 1218 Superior avenue, North Side.

He leaves his widow and three sons—J. Russell, Donald H. and Rollo H. McBride, Jr., of Pittsburgh; a daughter, Mrs. Harry Deary, of Toledo, and two sisters, Mrs. Julius Weyher, of Dundee, Mich., and Mrs. Belle Strang, of Unity, O.

He was a member of the Arch Street Methodist Episcopal Church. He was active in Masonic circles. He was a member of Dundee (Mich.) lodge No. 74, F. & A. M.; the Islam Grotto, of Pittsburgh, and the Association of Masonic Veterans of Western Pennsylvania.

'BURNHOUSE MIKE' UNDER ARREST

DETECTIVE MICHAEL FORD — JOE FARINO, 45 — DETECTIVE JOHN W. GEISLER

County detectives with the man, a former Stowe Township policeman, they arrested taking a fake money package that a note from "Burnhouse Mike" to Dr. George S. Bubb, wealthy McKees Rocks physician, ordered planted in a lonely McCoy road lumber pile.

JAIL SUSPECT IN EXTORTION

Joseph Farino, 32, self-styled "Burnhouse Mike," was in county jail today following a hearing on charges of extortion before Justice of the Peace Harry Powell, of Stowe Township. Farino is alleged to have sent a threatening letter to Dr. G. S. Bubb, a physician of 817 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, demanding $8,000 as the price of his safety.

After communicating with county detectives, Dr. Bubb complied with the instructions in the letter and deposited a package of marked money under a lumber pile in McCoy road, Stowe Township. Farino was arrested, police say, as he attempted to claim the money. Farino, detectives say, described himself as president and sole member of the "House Burners' Association."

EX-WATCHMAN HELD IN BOAT FIRE QUIZ

Argument Over Pay, Alleged Threat Cited at Probe in Greater Pittsburgh Blaze

On information of members of the city arson and bomb squad, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today held Alonzo Sewell, 54, of 923 Climax street, for investigation without bail in connection with the fire which destroyed the excursion steamer Greater Pittsburgh yesterday.

Detective Michael Tortorelli testified Sewell had been employed as a watchman on the boat, and that following an argument over his salary with one of the receivers for the boat, which had been involved on bankruptcy proceedings, he threatened to "get even."

Sewell has not been paid for a month and 10 days, Tortorelli said he learned, and this was the cause of the argument. Tortorelli asked the magistrate to hold the case over for five days until an investigation is made to determine whether Sewell knows anything of the fire.

QUIZ SUSPECT IN ROBBERIES

Arthur Dorman, 46, 6046 Penn avenue, was being questioned by city detectives today in connection with the robbery of more than a score of homes throughout the Pittsburgh district, in which loot estimated at more than $50,000 was obtained. Dorman was arrested in North Lang avenue Wednesday night.

Detectives say Dorman is suspected of being the leader of a gang of alleged housebreakers who have been operating here during the past three months. A second alleged member of the gang, who gave his name as Arch Dorman, 55, was arrested in Greensburg. Police said they recovered stolen goods valued at $800. Dorman was arrested in company of a woman who, police say, was his common-law wife. A third suspect is being sought in Philadelphia.

LOST BOY AIDED BY MOTORMAN

Wilk, operator of a Beechview trolley, started his car toward the South Hills Tunnel last night, when he heard the cries of a 4-year-old boy in the car. He stopped the trolley, took the boy from his seat and delivered him to his mother, who had left the car at the South Hills Junction and had forgotten him.

Her identity was not learned by the railways company.

CHARGES WIFE HURLED DISHES

Mrs. Rose Ernestine Beck, now of Astoria, L. I., hurled a butcher knife, frying pan, dishes and pots at her husband, Frank Beck, Jr., 615 Vine street, Coraopolis, according to his divorce suit filed in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Beck frequently went on long trips, spending all he could earn and forcing him into debt, Beck averred. She cursed him and threatened his life, became intoxicated at parties and humiliated him, he asserted. They were married August 24, 1926, and parted February 15, 1929. Beck charged cruelty and indignities.

7 DIE IN TRAFFIC IN FEBRUARY

Five men and two women were killed in traffic accidents in the city last month, according to the records of Coroner W. J. McGregor. The analysis was made by City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre. For the first two months this year the traffic fatalities totaled 15, 12 adults and three children, as compared to the 30 fatalities of January and February of 1930.

GUNMEN FIRE AT HOME, 2 HELD

Accused of shooting two bullets through the front door of William Maroni's home in McLaughlin road, near Bridgeville, Larido Cato, 37, and Tony Mosti, 33, both of 305 St. Clair street, Bridgeville, were arrested today by county detectives charged with felonious shooting.

They were identified by Maroni, 60, who swore to the information before Justice of the Peace J. T. Koch, of Bridgeville.

Maroni told county detectives he believed the shooting was in reprisal for a real estate deal in which John Cato, a crippled brother of Larido, deeded over a parcel of property to Maroni. The case is tied up in litigation in the County courts.

Child Health Body To Hear Report

The Child Health Council will hear a report of the February meeting of the continuation committee of the White House Conference for Child Health and Protection on Tuesday at a luncheon in Kaufmann's dining room. Dr. H. B. Burns, department of hygiene director, Pittsburgh public schools, will be the speaker.

Federal Competition With Private Industry Hit

Government competition with private industry and centralization of power in Washington were assailed by Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western Railway, speaking at a banquet of the Pittsburgh Bond Club in the Hotel William Penn last night.

He said:

"When the government enters into competition with private industry it is just as clearly taking property without compensation as if it sent its police to close your factory and lock your door."

Guests of honor were R. B. Mellon, H. C. McEldowney, A. W. Robertson, A. E. Braun, Malcolm McGiffin, Dr. Thomas S. Baker, H. B. Rust, Roy A. Hunt, F. A. Leovy, I. Lamont Hughes, Robert Wardrop, G. G. Crawford and the Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr. Charles H. Matthews, Jr., presided, and Dr. Edward R. Weidlein, director of Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, was toastmaster.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mrs. H. R. Rea Guest at Lunch

From time to time news of most interesting events taking place at Palm Beach, that brilliant gathering place of society folks, reaches us. Of these events a notable one was the luncheon Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, of Washington, gave this week at the Everglades Club in honor of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Among the guests were Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Sewickley Heights; the E. T. Stotesburys, of Philadelphia, and the George A. McKinlocks, of Chicago.

News of a marriage of interest has just reached me. Announcement is made of the marriage of Anna Stewart McClelland to H. B. Reinhold, both of Pittsburgh, which took place in the Little Church Around the Corner, New York. The Reinholds left for Atlantic City, Texas and Mexico following the ceremony. After April 15 they will be at home in the Schenley Apartments. Mrs. Reinhold is a member of the Tuesday Musical Club and of the Women's City Club.

LONGER LIFE FOR SILK HOSE

To find a way to make silk hose and undergarments wear longer means money in women's pockets. A New York fashion expert has discovered the secret.

She found that washing with soap and water alone did not remove the body excretions which rot silks. So she adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles—as usual. The result is a new cleanliness—a pleasing freshness—revived colors—all with practically no rubbing.

But the most amazing result is the longer life it gives to silks—an economy every woman will appreciate.

Try this method the next time you wash silks. You'll be delighted. Remember, too, that millions of women save money by using Energine for removal of spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

In his talk at the dinner to be given tomorrow night before the Birth Control League and its guests, Dr. George A. Lundberg, of the University of Pittsburgh, will show that the present controversy over the subject of population control is largely due to a misunderstanding of the issue involved. The real and only issue is not whether there shall be control, but what method or technique shall be employed, he will point out. He will discuss the two alternatives—humane and scientific methods of modern birth control or the barbarous methods of war, pestilence, famine and infanticide.

Dr. Florence M. Teagarden, also of Pitt, will consider whether society is benefited by smaller families, whether superior children are to be found in large or small families, and other questions which have come before her as a professor of psychology.

Florence Fisher Parry, Pittsburgh columnist, is the third speaker and is to tell why she believes in birth control.

The dinner is to be given in the William Penn Hotel.

Mrs. A. K. Wetzig was elected president of the Thursday Afternoon Club of Wilkinsburg yesterday when the club met with Mrs. Walter Smith, of Wallace avenue. Other officers elected are: Mrs. E. J. McCoy and Mrs. Roscoe Siebold, vice presidents; recording secretary, Mrs. J. V. Stewart, and treasurer, Mrs. F. C. Young. Mrs. H. T. Morris and Mrs. E. H. Witherspoon were joint hostesses with Mrs. Smith. The program paper, which was on Pennsylvania, was given by Mrs. C. R. Beall.

Falls Against Stove, Burns Prove Fatal

Thomas Cunningham, 77, of West Carson street, who was severely burned when he fell against a stove in his home Tuesday, died today of his injuries in the South Side Hospital, according to a morgue report.

MRS. LETEVE FIGHTS THUG

Mrs. Sara A. Leteve, widow of Dr. Aime Leteve, former French counsul here, battled with a robber at Wylie avenue and Fernando street last night. He escaped from her grasp after taking her purse, but was captured when police heard her screams for help.

Patrolman Keefe Hill testified in Center Avenue Police Court today that he caught the man—identified as Ike Boldens, 38, Negro, of 38 Boone street—after hearing Mrs. Leteve's cries. Pedestrians joined in the chase, which extended for a dozen blocks, the officer said.

Mrs. Leteve was not in court today. Her purse was offered in evidence.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg held the suspect for court.

Mrs. Leteve's husband founded the Pasteur Institute in Wylie avenue. He was a student of Louis Pasteur, who developed the treatment for rabies.

Phone Girl Routs Two Bank Bandits

TRENTON, Tex., March 13.—(AP.)—Glenn Earnheart was wounded by a charge from a shot gun in the hands of one of two masked men whose attempt to burglarize the First National Bank here was frustrated by the screams of a telephone operator early today. The men were attempting to cut the telephone cable leading out of town when the Trenton night operator, Mrs. Rose Yates, saw them and gave the alarm.

Sonnenberg, Bride Give Friends Slip

BOSTON, March 13.—(INS.)—Unable to locate Gus Sonnenberg, former wrestling champion, and his bride, Miss Marie D. Elliot, of Belmont, friends today believed the newlyweds had slipped away for an unannounced honeymoon. Following the marriage of the mat star and his bride at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York, Sonnenberg stated they were returning to Boston.

Seek Asylum Inmate Missing With Gun

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—(INS.)—Philadelphia police today were asked to look for R. W. Rexford, Jr., who escaped on Tuesday from the Norristown asylum for the insane. Police believe that he broke into his father's home on Walnut avenue here and stole a shotgun after his escape.

FORD IS CHEF AT PARTY

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison also attended, dressed as a maid.

The party was given by Mr. and Mrs. William Curtis Demorest. A beefsteak supper was served in a private dining room at an inn, which was called "the help's dining room." The guests ate at improvised tables made of boxes.

The menu included onion soup, thick broiled steak on toast, buckwheat cakes with brown sugar and nutmeg, blueberry pie and stick candy. A three-piece orchestra played while the Ford's gave their old-fashioned dance.

Camera on Rocket Takes Photograph

BREMEN, Germany, March 13.—(INS.)—What is declared to be the first successful scientific rocket experiment was enacted here today when Karl Poggensee catapulted photographic apparatus 1,500 feet into the air and brought his device down by means of an automatic parachute.

Imitation Pistol Causes Boys' Arrest

Because they had a flashlight and a cigaret case which was fashioned like a revolver, when they were arrested last night in a downtown restaurant, Louis Levine, 19, of 924 Mellon street, and Ben Rambo, 21, of Sandusky street, were held for investigation when arraigned in Morals Court today. The boys said they had gone into the restaurant to read a newspaper.

YOUNGER GENERATION AIDED BY REVIVAL OF PINAFORE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 13.—Well, we are going back into pinafores if some of the designers have their say in the matter. For the frock with the pinafore top has appeared and even if it is a fashion that has come out of the kitchen, or at least looks like a kitchen apron, it certainly has much to recommend it. First of all, it most certainly is different from anything we have worn for a long, long time. Then it is extremely youthful and happy looking, always an important point in any fashion.

AND IT LOOKS as though this type of frock will be the darling of the younger generation and will no doubt be worn by women who should know better. It is surprising, though, how many women, sensible in all other things, have not yet cut their sartorial wisdom teeth and so don fashions that are quite obviously not for them. Despite advice from interested and disinterested parties, they go on choosing clothes which are quite plainly not suited for them, quite oblivious to the fact that it is not by these crude methods that youth is wooed.

FOR THE FRESH and gladsome girl who is planning a novel ensemble, we hereby recommend the Jane Regny model shown on this page. Like so many of her frocks, it is characterized by the new pinafore bib. The model sketched is of navy blue twilled silk with a tiny pin dot in white. The blouse, of white crepe de chine, has short sleeves in one piece with the shoulder yoke. There is a short semi-tailored jacket of the white dotted blue twill.

SOVIET ARTISTS LEAD IN RICHES

NEW YORK, March 13.—(Universal.)—Writers and artists are the richest people in Russia.

This startling statement was made last night by Boris Pilnyak, acknowledged one of the greatest modern Russian authors, on his arrival in New York for his first visit to America. He said:

"The salaries of all government officials and workers in the Soviet Union are regulated. The earnings of the writers and artists are not limited, and so they are now forming the most prosperous class in the new republic."

Pilnyak, whose latest work, "The Volga Flows Into the Caspian Sea," will be published in English soon by the Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, looks more like an American businessman than a Russian writer. He is tall and bland and well-groomed, speaks in incisive manner and chuckles at his Russian jokes.

66 Strike Pickets Arrested in Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—(INS.)—Sixty-six hosiery strike pickets had been arrested today as a result of a disturbance in the textile section last night. A strike has been in progress at the hosiery mills in this section for more than a month. Hundreds have been arrested.

Ex-Baker Denies Balm Suit Charge

TRENTON, N. J., March 13.—(INS.)—C. Stuart Engle, wealthy retired baking magnate, formerly of Hazleton, Pa., today had on file in Supreme Court a denial of the charges of Alma Bowman, 28, of Margate City, N. J., that he promised to marry her. Miss Bowman is suing Engle for $500,000.

Norwegian—Herdsman's Mountain Call.

Sigrid Onegin, our most popular contralto, assisted by Hermann Reutter, one of the finest composers in young Germany and a pianist of no mean ability, gave us a most thrilling concert in Syria Mosque last night. That Onegin is now a Pittsburgh institution is assured by the loyal supporters who crowd the Mosque every time she appears. What she then gives us as singer and superb musician is far superior to most of the music that comes over the footlights in a season. Her singing belongs to the grand style and is always utterly satisfying.

Mr. Lissfelt

Last night's program was full of gems. Rossini's "Bel Raggio" in its most fluent bel canto, and then Carmen's four arias, the entire role if you please, impassioned, taunting, exuberantly youthful, and flawlessly projected. Four extremely exacting songs of Richard Strauss sung with bravura and most delicate understanding of relation between tone and text. Mozart's Alleluia came as encore and with greater dignity than ever before. And, to close, half a dozen folk songs from as many different lands, each as distinctive as its home geography.

Onegin's voice seemed better than ever before, or perhaps it sounded so because of a greater use of the contralto tones which we orginally identified with this singer. Yearly there comes greater repose and, if possible, more exquisite refinement in all her songs. The Carmen music has never had such an interpreter in my recollection, for Onegin here relies upon the most legitimate methods for her music. The vocal opulence of the Card Scene would be impossible to match while the finesse of her French diction should be a lesson to all who sing.

Hermann Reutter is more than an efficient accompanist. As a maker of background for operatic music as well as for simpler songs he is always discreet, but knows enough to have no fear of being a good second in Strauss' music. He made all the arrangements for the folk songs, never disturbing the fundamental spirit of these songs, yet adding a refined pianistic pattern that enhances their charm enormously. As composer he has much that is new to say. Though his variations and fantasy are earlier works, they already bear the earmarks of that music which is so refreshingly discordant among contemporary writers. The variations are highly imaginative and take us away from the stodgy inventions of many classic works. As a player he is more concerned with music than with effect, another pleasing novelty. May he always bring us such inspiring music.

As encore he played Liszt's D flat Consolation.

The Twentieth Century Club Choral sang its second concert yesterday afternoon with Mildred Dilling, harpist, as assisting soloist. It was a gentle concert, no high lights, but with some very lovely music.

Anna Laura Cree is conducting the chorus and in a very short time has succeeded in gaining balance, smoother melody line, and in some songs a distinctive color. The music must be chosen from simpler choruses for the time, but Mrs. Cree was most discreet in her program.

Mildred Dilling is an excellent harpist. That she does as much as anyone might with music that is written for her instrument is very evident, for its literature consists mainly of arrangements of miniature works for piano and songs. But there were two compositions of Grandjany that showed the master hand, and immediately both player and her harp responded to the subtleties that this virtuoso understands and can write for others.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

EGG NOODLES AND APPLES—1 package egg noodles, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 apples, cut in eighths, ¾ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Parboil the noodles for 7 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water, to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Melt the butter in a frying pan. Place alternate layers of egg noodles and apples in the pan, seasoning with sugar, cinnamon and salt. Cook for 25 minutes, keeping well covered the first 10 minutes.

ORANGE FROSTING—Grated rind of 1 orange, 2½ cups sugar, ½ cup water and 3 egg whites. Cook sugar, water and grated orange rind, without stirring, until when dropped from the tip of a spoon the syrup forms a thin, even thread without bubbles on it (240° F.). Pour slowly over the stiffly-beaten egg whites and beat until creamy. Spread between the layers of the cake and over the top thickly. This makes a very delicious cake.

FROZEN SALAD OF VEGETABLES—Cook 1 can of tomatoes with ½ cup of chopped green peppers, ½ cup of chopped pimentoes and 2 tablespoons of chopped onions for 5 minutes. Soak 2½ tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup of cold water and add to the first mixture. Add ½ cup vinegar, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 teaspoons horseradish. Pack in a mold or in refrigerator trays and freeze. Slice and serve on a bed of lettuce with mayonnaise.

SPAGHETTI WITH PORK CHOPS—Cook 1 package of spaghetti in salted water, drain when tender. Cut 1 pound pork chops in small pieces, season with salt and pepper and fry in butter until tender. Add spaghetti and 1 large can tomatoes and cook for 10 minutes. Add more seasonings if necessary. Place on a hot platter and sprinkle with grated cheese.

* * *

PINEAPPLE OMELET—Beat 4 egg yolks until light with 1 tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice to the stiffly beaten whites and fold into the yolks. Heat the butter in the omelet pan and when thoroughly heated pour in the eggs. When set, spread with 3 tablespoons grated pineapple mixed with 2 tablespoons sugar. Fold over the omelet carefully and serve with pineapple on the side.

SOUTHERN SPAGHETTI — 8 ounces of spaghetti, 6 slices of bacon, 3 onions, 1 green pepper, 1 pint can of tomatoes, bayleaf, salt and pepper, 1 cupful of grated cheese.

Crisp 6 slices of bacon and cook 8 ounces of spaghetti until tender. Break the bacon in small pieces, drain the spaghetti and put both in a hot earthen dish. To the fat in which the bacon was cooked add the onions sliced and the pepper chopped fine. Cook until the onions are tender, add 1 pint of cooked tomatoes and bring to the boiling point. Season with the bay leaf, salt and pepper; add the macaroni and bacon and 1 cupful of grated cheese. Serve at once. If the macaroni is kept hot while the sauce is being prepared the dish will not need reheating. It must be hot when sent to the table.

BRAN MUFFINS—Three tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup bran, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sour milk, ½ cup seeded raisins or dates.

Cream the butter and sugar; add the slightly beaten egg. To the creamed mixture add the bran. Add the milk alternately with the dry, sifted ingredients. Fold in the fruit, floured and chopped. Pour into well-greased muffin tins. Bake in moderate oven 12 or 14 minutes. (If sweet milk is used omit the soda, substituting 2 teaspoons of baking powder.)

BROWN BREAD—Two cups graham flour, 2 cups white flour, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup molasses, 2 cups sour milk.

Mix the graham flour, white flour, soda and salt together. Add the molasses and sour milk; mix thoroughly. Pour into well-buttered tins and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. This makes 2 loaves.

BANANA MOUSSE—Beat one whole egg well. Add 3 tablespoons sugar, stir in 1 tablespoon flour, add 1 cup milk and cook until thick over hot water. Cool. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 well-ripened bananas crushed, 1 cup of cream whipped or evaporated milk, whipped. Blend well. Place in automatic refrigerator tray or pack in ice and salt about 3 hours or until set.

FRUIT SALAD—Eight slices pineapple 8 halves canned peaches, 1 cup seeded white cherries, ½ cup diced pears, 1 cup diced marshmallows, ½ cup red cherries, 1 cup mayonnaise, ½ cup whipped cream.

Chill all ingredients. Arrange pineapple slices on head lettuce and top with portions of rest of fruits. Add marshmallows. Mix mayonnaise and cream and place on tops. Serves eight.

MAYONNAISE—Two egg yolks or 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ¼ teaspoon mustard, 1 cup chilled salad oil, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon boiling water.

Chill all utensils and ingredients. Place egg yolks in bowl, add dry ingredients. Beat two minutes. Add ¼ the oil, adding it very slowly and beating steadily. Add 3 tablespoons more of the oil. Beat 2 minutes. Alternate rest of oil and lemon juice. Beat steadily. When dressing is very thick and creamy, beat in water. Beat 2 minutes. Chill.

ORANGE CAKE—2 cups sugar, ½ cup butter, 2½ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 eggs and 3 extra yolks. Juice of 1 orange with enought water to make 1 cup. Cream butter, add sugar and continue creaming. Add yolks of eggs and whole egg, beaten thoroughly. Add orange juice and water alternately with sifted flour and baking powder. Pour into well buttered and floured cake pans and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 20 minutes.

LAMB STEW—Three tablespoons drippings, 2 pounds lamb cut for stew, 2 large stalks celery, 1 onion, 1 can peas, 1 very small head of white cabbage, 2 bunches carrots.

Brown meat, with salt and pepper to taste, in melted fat. Add cup of hot water. Let simmer 1 hour. Add all vegetables, diced, and 1 onion cut up. Add more salt and pepper and cook slowly

Prunes Combat Vitamin Deficiency Diseases

Dr. Copeland points out that this once-despised fruit possesses healthful properties.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

If you know how wholesome prunes really are and how attractive they can be you would eat them more cheerfully. No longer will you say, "Oh, prunes," in that half-hearted way.

Prunes are a variety of plums which have been cured and dried. The process must be carefully done to get the best possible product. In this day of perfection in industry, you will find that the most sanitary conditions prevail in the establishments where they are prepared.

When purchasing prunes, bear in mind that they vary as to size and flavor. Prunes are graded into various sizes, from a very small prune, known as "110-120s" to the larger prune known as "20-30s."

The small prune has more meat per pound than the large prune. So if you buy the small size, you get more for your money. However, the size of the prune is a matter of personal taste.

HEALTHFUL FRUIT

Prunes raised in California are sweet and require little if any sugar when cooking. The Oregon prunes are tart, requiring more sugar.

The chief value of the prune lies in its laxative properties. It is an aid in combatting certain vitamin deficiency diseases. It is a healthful fruit.

When cooking prunes, cook them slowly and have plenty of water in the pan. The cooking should be over a long period of time. If you use the California prune do not add sugar but if you like the tart flavor of the Oregon prune you may add sugar to taste. A few slices of lemon when cooking, greatly improves the taste of the dish.

BENEFICIAL SUBSTANCES

Prune whip is made of the strained fruit meat, with white of egg and cream. This makes a delicious and nutritious dish. Prunes stewed with other fruits make a nice change for a breakfast dish. These are just a few suggestions to show the different way prunes may be used.

Well-cooked strained prunes with the pits removed may be served to infants and invalids. They get substances that are needed by the growing or recovering body.

Prunes, like other dried fruits, are not rich in vitamin value, but their laxative quality, high carbohydrate content, and flavor are very valuable. They should be included in our diet, balanced, of course, with foods that contain properties which they do not have.

45 minutes or until tender. Thicken gravy with flour paste.

ASTORIA SALAD—Across several crisp romaine or endive leaves, place 1 section of grapefruit, 1 section of orange, another of grapefruit, another of orange and more of grapefruit. Cut pickled walnuts in quarters and use as garnish between fruit sections. Dress with French dressing to which has been added 1 tablespoon liquid from pickled walnuts.

BEEF PATTIES—One pound lean beef, ½ cup bread crumbs, 1 egg slightly beaten, 1 onion, minced, ⅝ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons milk and ⅛ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Put the meat through the food chopper, add crumbs, milk and seasoning. Beat well, then add slightly beaten egg and the remaining ingredients. Mix well and shape into patties, dip in egg and seasoned flour and fry in drippings or butter.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH CHEESE—Beat 8 eggs slighty and mix with ½ pound of grated cheese, ½ tablespoon parsley, 1-16 teaspoon nutmeg and ½ teaspoon salt. Cook over a very slow fire, stirring constantly, so that the cheese may be melted by the time the eggs are cooked. In food value the dish is equal to nearly 2 pounds of averge beef.

* * *

VEGETABLE DINNER—Make a ring of spinach and unmold on a hot platter. Fill the center with halves of deviled eggs arranged on watercress and garnish the ring with strips of panfried carrots, glazed peas, buttered cauliflower flowerettes, tiny boiled onions, harvard beets and string beans, cut Julienne and well seasoned with butter, salt and pepper. Serve as soon as arranged, keeping hot.

BAKED PEACH DUMPLING—Roll out rich pastry to ⅛-inch thickness and cut in 4-inch squares. Place half a peach in the center of each square. Sprinkle with sugar and dot with butter. Moisten edges of pastry with water, draw corners to the center and press edges together firmly. Brush tops with beaten egg. Bake in a quick oven (450 degrees F.) 10 minutes, reduce heat to moderate oven (350 degrees F.) and bake about 15 minutes longer.

SWEET RISSOLES—Roll out rich pastry to ¼-inch thickness and cut out circles about 3 inches in diameter. Moisten edges with water. Place a teaspoon of jam on one-half of the circle, fold other half over and press edges firmly together. Brush with beaten egg and fry in deep hot fat (350 to 375 degrees F.) until brown. Drain thoroughly.

RASPBERRY ROLLOVERS—Roll rich pastroy to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut in circles 3 to 4 inches in diameter. Prick with tines of a fork and spread with raspberry jam. Sprinkle with chopped nuts or cocoanut. Roll tightly over and over. Place in baking pan with lapped side down. Bake in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) 15 minutes.

* * *

LOG CABIN CAKE—This may be made of any delicious devil's food cake iced with chocolate. Then put white icing in a pasty tube and decorate to represent the white mortar between the horizontal logs.

EGGLESS BRAN MUFFINS—Two cups bran, 1½ cups bread flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1¾ cups milk and 3 tablespoons melted butter.

Sift and dry ingredients as flour, salt, sugar and soda, add the bran and mix to a soft batter, with the milk, molasses and shortening. Beat thoroughly and bake in well-oiled muffin tins for 25 minutes in 350-degree oven.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

We Must Face Life Despite Shattered Romances

Mona was a One Man Woman—but she couldn't get her man. And that's what put the m-o-a-n in Mona. Mae was also all for one Big Boy—and as unsuccessful in landing him as Mona. But did she sit down and sob, "I might as well die. I can never love again?"

Not she! Listen:

"Dear Sally:

"That Mona makes me tired, expecting life to turn out like a fairy tale and refusing to play if it won't. She'd better come down to earth. And I know what I'm talking about, because it all happened to me—once.

Same Experience

"Two years ago, when I was just 18, I had an experience similar to hers. She has fallen heavily for a college graduate working in her office. So did I. She imagines he's just about 100 per cent better than any and all other men. So did I. She has never been out with her dream . . . and here's where we differ. I have. I was out with him a few times, both before and after he left our office. He proved to be everything I thought he was and to me was perfect. While our friendship lasted, I was on air and was happier than I thought it was possible for a person to be. But here's the sad part of the story, Sally. Outside of being just a "sweet kid," I just didn't register with him at all, and you can be sure it was pretty hard to take when he just calmly walked out of my life without me being able to do a thing about it.

"I felt pretty much like crying all over the place, just as Mona is doing now. Only I couldn't, and wouldn't let any of my friends . . . or any of the office crew . . . know how I felt.

"So I tried the 'Laugh Clown, Laugh' idea and I put it over. No one ever knew or suspected how I actually felt about him. And no one is ever going to know. Even though I have seen him and talked to him since, and, much to my disgust, he still gives me a thrill. And calls me a 'sweet kid.'

Luckier Second Time

"When I woke up and found myself stranded in the midst of a mess of crumbled dreams, I resolved to pick myself up and start all over again . . . But with different ideas.

"It has been hard, and I won't pretend that it hasn't, for me to realize what a little fool I was. But then I had been expecting a regular story-book romance, and instead, I got a taste of reality.

"Well, I didn't sit home and weep into my pillow, though. I just kept going, as if I hadn't had my childish illusion taken away.

"Then, about six months later, I met Prince Charming, the Second. He is very different from Prince Charming the First—but none the less charming to me. This time the affection is mutual and not a one-sided, lop-sided affair. While I still do get a thrill when I see and hear Prince Charming the First, it's different now, and there is absolutely no regret at losing him.

So, Mona, old kid, pick yourself up, dust yourself off, and for goodness sake quit crying for the moon!

"You weren't big enough to put yourself across the first time. Neither was I. But don't continue to imagine that a miracle is going to happen. It won't. Snap out of it. Quit making a nut of yourself. Profit by this experience you've had, and I'll wager that when the man — the real one — comes along, there'll be a different story—providing you don't exhaust all your powers of adoration on your present wild goose chase.

Must Face Life

"You think you're in love! Well, let me tell you, you won't know what love is until there is mutual affection. . . . MAE."

Brave work, little girl! You've learned one of the hardest lessons life will ever teach you . . . To live in today instead of yesterday. It's so easy to run away from today . . . so easy to hide in old sorrows and the wreckage of dreams, as once our frightened cave-fathers hid in caves. And such a perfect alibi for laziness and selfishness! For who can blame a broken-heart for refusing to face life? And so, for many of us, our broken hearts become cowardly caves. Of course, we don't admit that, even to ourselves. We honestly think that life is over for us.

But it isn't! Life is waiting for us. And there is exactly as much romance and adventure to be had in the future as there was in the past—if we're willing to go after it. But that takes some hustling and heartache and humiliation. And many of us get a much bigger bang out of being martyrs.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, March 14

A day of much exhilaration and probably excitment may be looked for, judging by the array of stellar forces of dynamic quality. The mind may be highly keyed and alert, with the energies inclining to strenuous if not violent measures of attaining the ends and ambitions. It would be wise to be discreet and self-contained lest too acute an expression of these forces prove annoying and frustating. With care and proper direction substantial progress may be expected.

Those whose birthday it is are under the promise of a year of splended initiative and attainment, with the faculties and forces under high stimuli. Much progress of a stable nature may be made if a tendency to rash and turbulent acts be properly subdued. Refrain from disputes and push advantage through writings.

A child born on this day should be active, enterprising and have splended intellectual equipment, with much constructive energy, but it should be disciplined in control of tongue and temper lest these prove its undoing.

Household Hints

It is wise to keep the box used for potatoes, onions, etc., on a shelf, but should lack of space force you to keep it on the floor under the table, why not put rollers on the box and make the stooping that much easier?

Keep your crochet ball from running away by placing it in an old candy box with a tiny hole in the cover for the thread to run through; when stopping work keep the needle, crocheting and ball inside the box till ready for use again.

Sunk!

Planning . . . hoping . . . and then—the thing she dreaded

Nature won't postpone her process to accommodate social engagements. Two weeks ago she was sure she could go. Then just an hour before the party it had started. That excruciating pain which is now avoidable.

Expected Dreaded. Those muscular pains reckoned by the calendar. You can't always tell to the day and hour when they'll begin. But you can count on their relief seven minutes after taking Midol!

The periodic process is natural, but the painful part is not. Midol is non narcotic, it never interferes with the process, but it does banish the pain. These tablets take effect in five to seven minutes. Better yet, the woman who takes them before hand will experience no pain at all. Midol relieves headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, too. Always to be had at any drugstore.

Somehow I can never resist pussy-willows.

Maybe it's because I am so fond of cats. Maybe it's because like birds, "cats" of a "feather" flock together.

Anyhow pussy-willows and myself always get together.

Some pussy-willows are so big and fat they remind me more of mice. I prefer the tiny ones that are scarcely more than a purr upon the branch.

The switches are not so forbidding looking either when you get them home. The bigger ones are too much like cat-o'-nine tails.

I made the mistake of carrying the pussy-willows through the stores, and what those "cats" tried to drag in gave me a great shock.

Looked like a new stunt in shop-lifting!

Charles Owen Arrives for Party

Mary gave an excited little exclamation as Dicky telephoned the direction to "send them up at once, please," and Edith scurried into my bedroom with her bouquet of mauve and white orchids which she had belittled because she thought it inferior to mine.

"I surmise that the party has begun," I said, smiling at Mary.

"Yes," Dicky responded, taking down the receiver and jiggling the hook. "Mrs. Brixton and party are calling."

His mimicry of the operator was perfect, and the next instant he gave the Underwoods' apartment number, and immediately afterward repeated the message again, apparently to Lillian.

"Lil will be right over," he said, hanging up the receiver. "I'll stand by the door so that she gets under the wire before the guests arrive."

He had to wait only a few seconds before Lillian appeared and swept a courtesy to Dicky's admiring comment. "Ata girl, Lil. When you doll up proper, you have everybody else backed off the boards."

I echoed his comment, for Lillian, stately in a trailing gown of mauve and silver, with her modish gray coiffure topped with a silver filagree comb studded with amethysts, with the same stones at her ears and throat, and with a bouquet of lavender orchids, was a striking picture. I did not wonder that the next minute when the merry Brixton party bubbled into the room Marion should have given a little gasp and rushed to her mother while Mrs. Brixton was attempting to sort out her charges and introduce them to the rest of us.

"Oh! Mummy!" I heard Marion whisper. "You are the most stunning thing I've seen in ages. I'm crazy to have the girls meet you! I'm so proud. But where's Dad? I want the girls to see him in his evening clothes. They all fell for him hard in riding togs."

Lillian's face and eyes were shining as her young daughter finished, and I knew that the glow was more on account of Marion's praise of her stepfather than it was of herself. At least, I told myself, whatever other worries might be Lillian's this particular problem of Marion's jealous dislike of her stepfather was apparently solved for all time, and would trouble my friend no more.

"Your father will be over in a few minutes," Lillian replied as smoothly as if Harry Underwood were indeed her child's real father and they had been speaking in this casual way of him all Marion's life. "But he has to stay over there until the cadets arrive—they're his guests, you know. And I believe Mr. Veritzen and his guest, Mr. Cameron, are to come up there and come over with your father. I brought Noel over with me, Ah, Carolyn," she broke off suddenly, "I'm glad to see you survived the ride this morning."

I heard no more. Indeed I had heard the preceding words only because I was so intensely interested in Marion's reactions to her stepfather. I had advanced to meet Mrs. Brixton, who, resplendent in filmy black over crimson, was marshaling her charges around her much as she might have gathered a group of her children's playmates in their kindergarten days.

"We can't bother with surnames," Helena said, smiling in the slow, fascinating fashion which is hers. "Mrs. Graham, you already know Marion. Caroline and Ronald, and these others, 'from left to right,' are Peggy, Emily, Bob, Jack and Jerry."

Even as I gave them a cordial greeting and shook hands with each of them, I had an odd little feeling of triumph because a pet theory of mine had been vindicated. It is one that has been ridiculed often, but to which I have held stubbornly, that this younger generation of ours, save for the spectacular exceptions which prove the rule, is fully as clean and good as any generation which has preceded it. The faces turned to me as I greeted them were widely different, some shy and quiet, some brimming with mischief, one or two with the poise of older people. But all were clean cut, direct of gaze, lovable. There was no "flaming youth" here, I would have staked much on it. On the other hand, there was no one of them who was not high-spirited and fun-loving.

"Marion!" I laid my hand affectionately upon her shoulder. "Take all the girls into Mary's room. They can leave their wraps there. You won't need them to go down to dinner. Ronald, will you take the boys over to the Underwood apartment? Mr. Graham will show you where it is."

It was only when Ronald had led his mates out of the room that I realized the one walking next to Dicky was no schoolboy. In the hurry and crush I had not realized that Charles Owen was to be present at the dinner party after all!

CORRECT MANNERS

Where to Find Authority On Table-Setting.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For about two years I have been waiting on tables in coffee shops and restaurants, but now I am working in a tea room, and I find it quite different. I wonder if you could tell me of some little book that would help me in this new work? It is my duty to lay the tables for all luncheons and parties, and I also wait on tables and serve tea. BETTY.

Here is a suggestion: Keep your eye on the advertisements in newspapers and magazines of the various silver and silver-plate manufacturers, of glass manufacturers, of china manufacturers, of linen manufacturers, and you will find that many of them offer booklets on the subject of table-setting that are excellent. Send for them and study them carefully. They will give you many valuable suggestions about table-setting. Then gather together questions that may not be covered by these and, if you will send them to me, I shall be most happy to talk them over with you.

The Problem of Over-Tipping

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly give me some advice on the tipping problem? I would like to know whether one tips every delivery man, the parcel post man, the grocery boy, the laundry man.

I am from a small town where tipping isn't done as extensively as it is here, and I don't want to do the wrong thing. BEATRICE.

Indeed, you need not feel embarrassed about asking this question, for it is one that is making many people "wonder". Especially, as you say, in large cities. It is true, I think, that the habit of tipping is very much overdone by many people, thus making it difficult for ones who are, from necessity, more thoughtful about it. Unless some extra service or attention has been given, I see no reason for this constant tipping for a service that should be taken for granted. However this is, as all kinds of tipping are, a matter of one's personal reaction. When service has been special, then most of us wish to acknowledge this with some evidence of appreciation.

When Writing to Teacher.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you kindly tell me the correct way to address a school teacher or principal when writing in reference to my granddaughter's work?

2. Also, how should I sign the letter—"Yours truly" or "Sincerely"?

3. I am taking care of my daughter's daughter and when I write about her should I sign my name first or her mother's name? H.

1. The form for the salutation would be: "My Dear Miss Drake:"

2. "Yours very sincerely," is a good form for the complimentary close of the letter. "Yours truly" is a bit too frigid and forbidding for use in this kind of letter . . . don't you think so?

3. I wouldn't believe that there is a reason for signing both names . . . is there? If there is, you might sign your name first, and then the mother's name.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Freakish Cures for Hiccoughs Are Numerous.

At some time or other all of us have suffered from hiccoughing. Sometimes it is most annoying and difficult to control. An occasional person seems to be extremely susceptible to this symptom while a few are rarely if ever sufferers from it. I have seen cases which have baffled even the most expert physicians.

Dr. Copeland

No doubt you have recently read in the newspapers about a young girl who suffered recurrent attacks for more than a year. This girl lived in Detroit and during her illness had advice from more than 5,000 physicians who were in Detroit attending a medical convention. In spite of this accumulated experience, little by way of aid could be offered. The poor child died.

Hiccough is an affection which may arise from many things. It may follow irritation of the nerves supplying the diaphragm, the breathing muscle. It may be caused from gastric irritation, usually after a heavy meal. It is met in appendicitis and as a complication in severe forms of typhoid fever. It is occasionally encountered in certain nervous disturbances, such as hysteria, epilepsy and shock and in tumors of the brain.

The treatment depends upon the cause of the disorder. If due to stomach or intestinal disturbance, the irritating matter must be removed. This is best accomplished by washing out the stomach, or by intestinal flushings using enemas and irrigations.

Where the affection comes on after meals, it may be due to indigestion. Then a change in diet and restriction of food are usually sufficient.

It is interesting to note that this condition was aptly described by the ancient Greeks. Aristophanes, who had hiccough from eating too much, was told to hold his breath or to gargle with a little water. If this failed, "tickle your nose with something and sneeze; and if you sneeze once or twice, even the most violent hiccough is sure to go." We might try this advice of other days.

This condition usually brings forth a flood of "sure cures," ranging from sudden fright to liberal doses of snuff, salt or sugar. Holding ice in the mouth is frequently suggested, as are other methods as old as the Greeks. At times these give relief and at other times they fail.

Never allow hiccoughs to persist without consulting a physician. Certain complications can be avoided by early attention.

Answers to Health Queries.

M. B. Q.—What can be done for a skin condition known as "lupus"—is there a definite cure?

A.—This disturbance should have proper medical attention and advice. Proper treatment should give increased comfort. The general health is a factor in such treatment.

J. S. C. Q.—What will remove surplus fat on the arms?

A.—Exercise and proper attention to the diet should be helpful under the circumstances.

MRS. P. B. Q.—Please advise what benefits, if any, one derives from either a hot or cold shower—besides the cleansing of the body?

A.—A shower bath stimulates the circulation, if cold, and, if warm, it is apt to be soothing to the nerves.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When feet burn and macerated skin peels from the soles of the feet, shoes should be changed frequently. Those not being worn should be placed in a sunny window for airing. Talcum powder ought to be applied freely, especially between the toes, and the feet should be bathed night and morning in tepid water to which baking soda has been added.

Heavyweights who would give the laugh to the weighing machine should eat plenty of green vegetables because they contain no fats and almost no starch. All vegetables that grow above the ground are prime foods for the plumpish ones, who must sidestep potatoes, a vegetable that is their arch enemy. Tea and coffee should be taken clear, and toast must not be buttered.

Men and women, as a rule, take on weight as they reach middle age. It is because they are more and more inclined to take life easy, to avoid hard muscular exercise. With some knowledge of the benefits of continued physical educati[on] any woman, unless cursed w[ith] hereditary obesity, should [be] able to retain not only [the] slenderness of youthful days, [but] erectness and grace. A le[isurely] walk every day, together w[ith] deep breathing and bending [ex]ercises, is an insurance a[gainst] the waddling walk, the [stout] frame and the middle-[aged] spread.

PERSHING, WITH ARMY MASSED, SAW HOPE OF PEACE

fice the effort would entail and we should be all the more likely to attain at least the 80-division program.

I consulted with Mr. Herbert Hoover on the question of food supply, with Assistant Secretary of War Stettinius on production of munitions and with Marshal Foch on the military requirements, and all agreed the maximum should be the goal.

Hence, with the thought that insistence would at least insure the 80-division plan, it was again recommended that there be no hesitation or delay in entering upon the larger plan. In a letter to Secretary Baker August 17, 1918, I wrote in part:

"I sincerely hope the President may decide on the 100-division program as a minimum and establish that as the aim toward which every energy shall be directed. Such a decision would stimulate our allies to further effort, which, in itself would be also of almost vital significance.

"Our own various supply departments and shipping interests, as well as those of our allies, will then be brought to realize that much greater concessions will have to be made to carry out this high purpose of our government.

"I am afraid that now they are inclined to hold back and discuss the matter and wonder whether it could be done or not. My strong opinion is that a leap must be made into this big program, and that those who fail to follow must take the consequences. Even though we may fall short we shall have shown our full appreciation of its importance and our desire to carry it out."

Plan Approved

In a cable the War Department informed me that the 80-division program had been approved by the President and Secretary of War July 26.

The message expressed the view that it would be impracticable to carry out any larger plan, citing the lack of camp space available for having more than 18 divisions in training at home at the same time. But the cable made it clear that the War Department expected to have 80 divisions, or approximately 3,000,000 men, actually in France by July, 1919.

My diary notes the following:

"Ligny-en-Barrois, Thursday, August 29, 1919. At G. H. Q. all day Monday. Conferred with Andrews, Moseley and Bethel. Saw Walter Damrosch, who assisted in improving our bands.

Mr. Damrosch

"Sent cable Tuesday supporting Liberty Loan. Cabled objections to plan of start-school at home for higher commanders with French and British instructors. Issued general order commending First and Third Corps.

"Went to Neufchateau to confer with First army staff and returned yesterday. Sent de Marenches to French G. H. Q. to see about tanks, airplanes and gas shells. Washington complains not receiving prompt report of casualties.

"Arrived at Ligny-en-Barrois this morning. Visited headquarters First Corps (Liggett) and Fourth Corps (Dickman). Preparations for attack going well."

The question of training came up again, through a cable saying that an advanced course of military instruction for higher commanders would be conducted at home by selected French and British officers.

Cites Objections

Our experience in France and our observation of the results of training at home under the French and British officers did not point to the success of this higher course.

We had already abandoned foreign instructors in France. I cabled my objections, suggesting the advisability of placing such instruction under competent American officers. My cable stated that too much tutelage by Allied officers tended to rob our officers of a sense of responsibility and initiative.

It was well known that many of the Allied officers sent to the States were not professional soldiers, but men whose knowledge was limited to personal experience in subordinate grades in trench warfare.

Moreover, the French doctrine, as well as the British, was based upon the cautious advance of infantry with prescribed objectives where all obstacles had been destroyed and resistance broken by artillery.

Our organization was radically different from that of any of the Allied armies, and we could not become imitators of methods which applied especially to armies in which initiative was more or less repressed by infinite attention to detail in directives prepared for their guidance.

It was my belief as cabled the War Department, that the highest efficiency could only be attained by adherence to our own doctrines based upon thorough appreciation of the American temperament, qualifications and deficiencies.

CHIEFTAINS TOGETHER

MARSHAL FOCH GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

PERSHING: "NO PEACE UNTIL GERMANY IS CRUSHED!"

Battle Plans Differ

I recommended the withdrawal of all instruction in the United States from the hands of Allied instructors. This recommendation was promptly approved by the chief of staff, who entirely agreed with my views.

In preparation for the coming offensives the advance headquarters of the 1st Army was moved from Neufchateau August 29 and established at Ligny-en-Barrois, a small town 25 miles southwest of St. Mihiel. It was from Ligny that all 1st Army activities were directed during the St. Mihiel operation.

When we arrived the French general, who was being relieved, and his chief of staff, all dressed up in their red trousers and blue coats, came formally to turn over the command. The chief of staff carried two large volumes, each consisting of about 150 pages.

These they presented to me with considerable ceremony; one was the plan offensive and the other the plan defensive for the St. Mihiel salient. My orders had been already prepared, the one for the attack comprising six pages and the one for the defense eight pages.

This incident is cited merely to show the difference between planning for trench warfare, to which the French were wedded, as compared with open warfare, which we expected to conduct.

At Ligny-en-Barrois we were in close touch with the front. The 1st Corps headquarters (Liggett) was established at Saizerais, northeast of Toul, and the 4th (Dickman) at Toul, as both corps were to be engaged on the south side of the salient.

Gen. Liggett

During my visit on the 29th I went over the plans of each corps and examined the progress it was making in the assembly of troops.

The considerable circulation of troops in the St. Mihiel area naturally attracted the attention of the people and of the officers and soldiers. Although cautioned against such discussion, the probability of an American attack on the salient was discussed here and there.

Uncertainty Created

It was feared the enemy might conclude that the danger of such an offensive was immediate and would re-enforce his position or else withdraw to a new line prepared further back. Up to this time our movements were not of such a definite character as to indicate the exact sector between Verdun and the Swiss frontier on which the attack was to be made.

But to divert the enemy's attention from our real objective it was necessary first to create some uncertainty in the minds of our own troops. The rumor was therefore started around headquarters that our first offensive might be in the direction of Mulhouse, in the Rhine Valley beyond the Vosges Mountains northeast of Belfort.

It was also decided to make a diversion in that direction, and as a preliminary step an officer was sent to lease buildings in Belfort.

At the same time confidential instructions were sent Maj. Gen. Bundy, commanding the 6th Corps, to proceed to Belfort with a limited staff and prepare detailed plans for an offensive with the object of seizing Mulhouse and the heights to the southeast and eventually establishing our line along the Rhine.

In the letter of instructions seven divisions were mentioned as having been designated for the attack, and three officers from each of these units were detailed to report to Gen. Bundy to assist in the reconnaisance. He was directed to expedite the the work of preparation, as the movement would probably begin September 8, under my personal command.

Gen. Bundy

The presence of a major general and an active staff in Belfort must have caused apprehension among the Germans. Two days later reports began to come in that a hospital and considerable numbers of the population were moving to the other side of the Rhine.

Ruse Successful

Meanwhile, at Belfort, plans were being prepared in all seriousness, when one day Col. A. L. Conger, who was in the secret and acting as my representative, with seeming carelessness left in his room at the hotel, as directed, a copy of instructions to the commander of the 6th Corps, only to find upon his return that it had disappeared at the hands of some spy.

This apparently served to confirm the worst of German fears, for within a few days one German reserve division was reported moving up to the front while another division was sent to Mulhouse and two more to the Vosges farther north.

The French staff gave valuable assistance by circulating false rumors about our plans. So the ruse had been successful and the result quieted our anxiety over the situation in the salient.

The progress of the Allies since July 18 had been greater than expected, and as a consequence the Allied program had been extended. At the same time the weakness among Germany's allies was becoming more evident.

With the prospect of three months of seasonable weather before winter should end active operations on a large scale, with the probability of victory in our first independent offensive, and confidence in the plans in preparation for offensives to follow, it seemed to me not unreasonable to hope for the successful conclusion of the war in 1918.

That President Wilson might be apprised of my views I sent word to him regarding such a possibility, suggesting that the utmost pressure, both diplomatic and commercial, be brought to bear upon neutrals as well as upon Germany's allies to the end that Germany might be forced to regard a continuance of the war as futile.

DRY VIOLATORS FINED, JAILED

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—(AP.)—Fines and prison sentences were imposed on several violators of the prohibition law by Judge Oliver B. Dickinson in Federal District Court.

Joseph Klenewecz and Peter Durando were committed to the Mercer County Jail, at Trenton, for 30 days each.

Roxy Pitcherello, Reading, was fined $250, and Peter Grazis, Pottsville, was fined $500. It was Grazis' second offense, he having been fined $250 in June, 1928, after pleading guilty to a similar offense.

Bench warrants were issued for T. M. Sullenberger, Lancaster, and Harry Miller, Ashland, when they did not appear for trial. Judge Dickinson also ordered their bail of $1,000 forfeited.

Bible Gift Drive Begun as Reply To Soviet

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—The New York Bible Society has begun a campaign against Soviet antagonism to religion by the distribution of Bibles printed in the Russian language. Members of the Russian colony in New York will be first to receive the Bibles.

The action, the Rev. Millard L. Robinson, general secretary of the Bible Society, said, was a reply to the Soviet's ban on sale and importation of Bibles in Russia.

COLLISION SINKS BOAT, 3 ESCAPE

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 13.—(AP.)—A tale of a midnight collision in Malaspina Channel, 90 miles north of Vancouver, where his boat was sunk by an unidentified steamer and he and his crew narrowly escaped death, was related by Capt. S. Nordhus, of Vancouver.

Capt. Nordhus' 38-foot halibut boat, Nordland, was rolled under the keel of the vessel and emerged with only the top of the pilot house above the surface. He and his two companions managed to keep their heads above water in the pilot house until the boat recovered more buoyancy.

Near shore the Nordland finally submerged and plunged to the channel bottom.

TONIGHT'S FIGHT MAY ADD CONTENDER

A POSSIBLE ADDITION to the list of contenders for the world heavyweight Queensberry crown may come out of the bout in New York tonight, in which Tommy Loughran and Ernie Schaaf are to meet for the fourth time. They look like the best men in the field apart from Jack Sharkey, Young Stribling and the titleholder, Max Schmeling, and though it is debatable whether tonight's winner, if there is a decisive victory, will be able to fight his way successfully through that trio, there is no question that he will be at least entitled to consideration.

Tommy Loughran

Schaaf holds an edge on Loughran to date, having won two of their three previous contests, Loughran took the decision in a Boston encounter in 1929, and Schaaf was the victor in two encounters staged last year in Philadelphia. Judging from the comparative margins by which Tommy and Ernie defeated Max Baer during the last couple of months, Loughran is in better form now than when he last met Schaaf. So there is a possibility that Tommy may win tonight, or at least that he will get no worse than a draw.

IN EVENT OF a victory for Loughran following his five straight wins over Dick Daniels, Dave Maier, King Levinsky, Jack Gross and Max Baer, it will be hard to deny Tommy a match near the championship row. There would appear to be little chance of Tommy's being able to change the result if he were to tangle again with Sharkey, who stopped him in three rounds, but against any of the other heavies he would have a fair chance.

Speaking of Sharkey as being still one of the title contenders, an unusual situation will arise if Schaaf is the winner tonight and then goes on in quest of higher honors. For not only are Sharkey and Schaaf stablemates, but Jack has been coaching Ernie for some time, was in his corner when Schaaf fought Dynamite Jackson in Los Angeles recently and will be one of his handlers again tonight. If Schaaf keeps coming will Sharkey step out of his path and retire, or turn in and try to stop the man he is now trying to advance? Sooner or later, if Schaaf continues to move forward, their paths are going to cross, and matches between stablemates are not at all fashionable.

ONE RING VETERAN who thinks Loughran could be the greatest champion the game ever knew is Johnny Kilbane, former featherweight king. "Loughran has the brain, the physique and the heart to carry him to the championship heights," Kilbane declares.

"I'd like to have him for about two months to show him how he could come to be a champion. He knows boxing, but he has sacrificed some great essentials for the benefit of his speed. He has never slackened up enough in the display of that speed to be able to throw a good punch.

"TOMMY IS JUST a bit too careful. When he lets a right-hand punch go he is backing away with it, apparently afraid of being hit, or eager to avoid being hit. But he could develop a punch and when he did that his fear of being hit would pass. With a short, snappy right he could beat even Sharkey to the punch and set him down. He's only 28 and right at the place where he might develop a little change in his style and become more formidable in his hitting, and then he could whip any man in the world."

Recalling the athletic greatness of Jim Thorpe at the height of his fame in Olympic Games and football, and figuring what that renown would be worth in these days of sports in moving pictures, the average citizen can only conclude that poor Jim arrived about 20 years too soon.

Jim Thorpe

Knute Rockne is credited with having started the latest picture craze—sport shorts. The success of his football plays on the screen inspired the idea of champions strutting their stuff. That's what brought Bobby Jones and Bill Tilden into the films.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that from one big producing firm Jones is to receive $250,000 for a golf series. From another Tilden is to get a huge sum for depicting tennis. Imagine the possibilities of Thorpe with the fame he owned after winning the 1912 Olympic Games, almost single-handed, even though he had to give up his prizes following the discovery that he had played professional baseball.

It may not be putting the estimate too high to say, if he could be exploited today with his world-wide renown of 1912, Thorpe could clean up at least half a million dollars. And he's working with a pick and shovel in Los Angeles for $4 a day. A comparatively few years make a vast difference.

SOME RECENT REPORTS have put Paul Waner, clouting Pirate rightfielder, in the light of being a holdout. President Barney Dreyfuss says such rumors are absurd. While it is true that Paul has sent in his contract, which was mailed to Ada while he was in a St. Louis hospital, he accepted terms in a letter from the hospital to Pirate headquarters, according to the local magnate, and a written acceptance of terms is equivalent to a signed contract. President Dreyfuss also denies that Pitcher Larry French was invited or requested to visit the Pirate camp for a salary discussion with Manager Ens. "French made the trip on his own hook," he said. "We did not send for him and never had the slightest intention of offering him a compromise. We have not changed our minds as to the salary he is worth."

WORD OF THE death of Walter (Bish) Phelan, early this week at his home in Petersboro, Ont., was received here today by former sports and business associates of Pittsburgh's first hockey hero. Phelan is remembered as the first ice star ever to be brought here from Canada for the purpose of representing this city in hockey circles.

He was "imported" from the Dominion by local ice leaders in 1898, and he was instrumental in bringing many other prominent Canadian puckmen here to assist him in giving Pittsburgh a high place in the hockey world.

BISH, AS HE is best remembered by local hockey pioneers, performed as a forward. Though an exceptionally big man for a front-liner, he was a fast skater and a fine stick-handler.

After playing here for two seasons, he returned to Canada and accepted a government position in Ontario. The lure of the game resulted in his returning here after one year's absence from the ice sport, and when he came to Pittsburgh a second time, in 1902, it was to remain here for 16 years.

Bish Phelan

C. H. (HANS) RIDALL, then president of the Pittsburgh Brewing Company, was an ardent hockey booster when Phelan was playing here. He made Bish an official in his company, and the imported iceman retained the position during his long stay here. When Phelan returned to his early home in Canada, because of failing health, he left in Pittsburgh a host of friends who will learn of his demise with sincere regret. Roy D. Schooley, local hockey leader for many years, when informed of Phelan's death today said that he probably never would have come to this city had Bish not visited him at his home in Toronto, in 1901, and told him of Pittsburgh's advantages as a hockey center. Schooley is only one of many Canadian skaters whom Bish persuaded to come here to share in the hockey "spoils" and who remained to become permanent residents. The accompanying picture of Phelan was taken here on a summer's day some 30 years ago, when he was Pittsburgh's hockey idol.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 13.—Paul Waner, the Buccos' premier batsman, was among his baseball brethren this morning when Manager Ens assembled his big squad in anticipation of a practice drill. Brother Paul reached the camp last night, and for a boy who had such a serious affliction so recently, he was in fine fettle.

"My bad left leg is getting better all the time," said the little slugger in his exuberance.

It develops the physicians reached the elder brother none too soon with their surgical treatment. Paul did not take the matter seriously when he was bitten by the sea creature, he paid little or no attention to the wound, but later the blood poisoning set in and quick action was necessary.

PAUL LOSES WEIGHT

The rightfielder is of the opinion he will be in fine fettle for the opening game of the season, which is approximately one month away. He lost something like 15 pounds in his ordeal, but he expects gradually to regain his strength. His every move will be watched by the Pirate doctors, who have cautioned him to take things very easy.

Manager Ens and Holdout Pitcher Larry French are still apart on the big idea, which is to get the lefthander's name on a Pittsburgh document. The negotiations are progressing, and it is almost a foregone conclusion French will sign, although he said this morning the difference between himself and the club was quite large.

French took a long workout yesterday. He pitched to the hitters in the batting workout and in a general way was his own natural self. Larry is a few pounds above 190, but he expects to work off about 10 pounds in the next few weeks, provided he gets into the fold officially.

PLAY SCORELESS TIE

The Pirate Regulars and Yanigans played an interesting nine-inning ball game yesterday, which ended in a scoreless verdict. The four pitchers taking part in the contest were so keen, the clubs' batters were in a jam all the way. The skipper stopped the battle at the end of the regulation rounds, he figuring nine innings were sufficient for the day. The ground was wet when the contest began, but conditions were ideal in the closing frame.

Heinie Meine, Charley Wood, Claude Willoughby and George Grant were the four clever sharp-

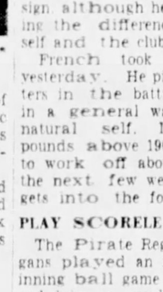
Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BILOXI, Miss., March 13.—The ball season hasn't opened yet, and already they've got us working nights. Next week in Houston, the Giants and White Sox will play the first after-supper game between big league teams. I hope it ain't a success. If it works, the next thing you know they will have us playing triple-headers, with only time out for meals. I would rather be a trained seal with a vaudeville route than work as hard as that.



Nick Altrock

Another thing about night baseball, it interferes with your dates. When the Lord created day and night He didn't figure they'd be scheduling ball games on both ends. And I don't like the idea of getting sunburned by the Edison Light Company, either.

In order to give permanency to this band, its members are not transferred to sea duty under ordinary circumstances, although they are not exempt from that service, and, in the 36 years of Tarantino's connection with the Navy, he never has been to sea. FLAT FISH, FLOUNDERS AND HALIBUT HAVE MIGRATING EYES—The fish of this family begin life with eyes on the opposite sides of their bodies, but, after a few days, one eye passes over or through the head to the other side. By JESS CARVER

The Pitt Stadium tonight will be a very, very tough spot for ladies or gents with heart trouble, and I don't mean folks in love, either. This astonishing New New Kensington basketball team plays there again against an opponent that is formidable enough to warrant the Kensingtoners pulling one of their now famous eleventh hour rallies, and any one who has ever thrilled to a New Kensington comeback knows the danger thereof.

Vic Bache

The occasion of tonight's meeting between Scott and Ken-Hi is a semi-final W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tourney game. Tonight's winner will play the winner of the other semi-final clash, between New Castle and Duquesne tomorrow, for the league title next Wednesday. New Kensington is the defending champion, and justly so.

FRIDAY, THE 13TH

For the benefit of the superstitious, it's Friday, the thirteenth, and the number of the tickets for tonight's game is 13. Feel a bit funny?

Last year, Dutch Glock's proteges (New Kensington) staged a marvelous uphill battle to win the title. McKees Rocks, Aliquippa, Uniontown and Duquesne fell before the scrappy Ken-Hiers. It took 'em four extra periods to subdue the Uniontowners, but subdue 'em they did.

Monday night, in a second round game of the present event, New Kensington came from far in the rear to nose out a strong New Brighton entry in two extra sessions, proving that the boys have not lost their ability to rally and that they still can, will and love to fight.

Against Scott tonight, the going promises to be just as tough. Scott compiled a fine record during its regular season, and so far, has walloped unmercifully its two tourney opponents, Dunbar Township and Scottdale. Coached, and coached very well, by Johnny Reed, former Penn State luminary, the North Braddock combination is exceptionally formidable worthy of the rating of tourney favorite it received before the battling was inaugurated.

BACHE, DAYOUB DUEL

Tonight's game promises a duel between a set of fine centers and two outstanding forwards. In Vic Bache, Scott boasts one of the best centers in the W. P. I. A. L. Babe Dayoub, of New Kensington, another big fellow, was all-tournament center last year.

The forward rivals, Capt

SHIVERS GRABS PIN LEAD

G. Shivers, of Steubenville, went into first place in the singles event of the tri-state tenpin tournament on the Forwards alleys yesterday. Shivers rolled games of 213, 196 and 236 to tally 645. The tourney continues with big programs slated for today and tomorrow.

George Antic, Sr., and Alex Hogel grabbed the honors for the day in the doubles when each of day in the doubles when they returned games of 200 on their way to a 1,212 total. W. Yeager and W. Sommer, 1,158, were second and J. S. Saunier and L. Toneyson, 1,147, third.

Five-men teams began their competition, the Fort Pitt team, of Sharpsburg, taking the lead by aggregating 2,755 pins. The Owls of Braddock, ranked second with 2,743 and Mack Brothers No. 2, of Braddock, third, 2,684.

The high singles score was untouched, W. Nelp's 254 of Wednesday standing up under heavy fire. The scores:

∴ Rookie Tales ∴

NO. 4—JAMES DEMPSEY.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 12. Baseball has to have a wondrous appeal to steal away from golf a lad who caddied for a dozen years and who probably would have had a big career on the links if he had turned professional.

Such a boy is James Dempsey, the only Pittsburgh boy in the rookie class with the Pirates. Before the citizens of Verona rise up en masse, let me hasten to add that Jimmy is the exclusive product of the up-river town, having been nursed in the Westmoreland golf cradle and nurtured on the sandlots of Verona.

James Dempsey

Jimmy was about 7 years old when he received his first ticket to caddie at the Westmoreland links and on that very day he accepted money for his services. Hardly able to toddle with a heavy set of golf sticks, he was struck in the back with a tee shot and hurt so painfully that he did the natural thing—he cried loud and long. The result was a $5 note from the bird who teed off on him, and Jimmy's tears dried up in a hurry.

STAR ON LINKS

Dempsey, now almost as strong as his famous namesake of the ring, is so clever at the links game he can break 80 on a tough course, but he has a stronger love for baseball than for golf.

He has yet to play professional ball, but if the kid outfielder continues to show the promise he displayed in the early days of training, Manager Ens will leave no stone unturned to get him a job on a Pirate farm.

Jimmy can smack the ball just about as far as any clouter on the Club. He is not fooled easily at the plate and it has been noted that when he is fooled he can rip out a liner with his well-trained wrist swing. Doubtless his years of golf have given him this desired wrist movement. All batters would like to have it.

HAS REAL SPIRIT

Dempsey needs at least one full year in the minors to iron out the rough spots in his fielding and give him confidence. His big ace in the hole is his desire to play and his spirit has not been muffed by the Pirate skipper.—CHARLES J. DOYLE

SPENCER TO COMPETE

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., March 13.—Howard Spencer, Geneva's brilliant freshman high jumper, will once again parlaay in an important meet. Spencer is to compete by invitation in the annual indoor K. of C. track and field carnival in New York tomorrow. At the annual A. A. U. meet held in Madison Square Garden recently, Spencer's jump of 6 feet 5 inches earned him second place to Anton Burg, veteran Swedish performer.

TROJAN, IRISH BREAK SEEN

SEATTLE, Wash., March 13.—Football relations between University of Southern California and Rockne are at the breaking point. When he was in Seattle, Rock was bitter at everybody within the Los Angeles city limits, which includes the Trojan institution and just about all of Southern California.

The rumor is persisting that Bill Ingram's California Bears will be seen against the Ramblers within a year or two.

If Rockne is sick of the University of Southern California game it's a safe bet that the contest is not any panacea to the Trojan teams which have been taking it on the button quite regularly of late years.

High Score Rolled By KoKoMo Kids

What is believed to be a record for three games in tenpins in the Pittsburgh district was rolled by the KoKoMo Kids, of East Pittsburgh, in a match against the Fintex No. 1 team, of Pittsburgh, on the Votel alleys, East Pittsburgh.

The KoKoMos totaled 3220, with a score of considerably more than 1000 in each contest. Bert Lamb was high man with a total of 708 for the three games. The scores:

ICE CREAM DUEL

The ice cream season at Pitt closes tonight as the varsity basketball squad stages its final practice of the year. The boys will bet their final treat of ice cream from Dr. Carlson, the future of the treat being the battle for the ice cream eating title between Timmy Lawry and Eddie Baker.

SPORT SHORTS

NEW YORK.—(A.P.)—The celebrated case of Billy Petrolle and King Tut versus the New York State Athletic Commission came down to the final stages today with a decision on the question "What is and was there a Barney?" scheduled before nightfall.

NEWARK, N. J.—(A.P.)—A "no foul" rule, similar to that in operation in New York state, has been put into effect by John McCutcheon, New Jersey State Boxing Commissioner. Hereafter fighters claiming fouls in New Jersey will be counted out and paid easily for the number of rounds fought.

PHILADELPHIA.—(A.P.)—Ray Fabiani, Boston and Philadelphia wrestling promoter, made a plea today to keep wrestling for the wrestlers. Circuit-type promoters who import athletes from other sports are a serious threat to the game, he said.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla.—(A.P.)—Marcel Rainville, Canadian Davis Cup player, and Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., American star, meet in the final round of the Florida East Coast tennis championship today.

MIAMI, Fla.—(A.P.)—Willie MacFarlane scored an almost single-handed triumph yesterday to capture the championship of Miami's classic international four-ball golf matches for himself and Wiffy Cox, 3 and 2, from Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, in a scheduled 18-hole playoff of their deadlocked 10-hole final match. After making a record-breaking 30, six under par, on his first nine holes, Willie rested on his oars with Wiffy to halve the next five holes, lose one, and halve one to end the match at the sixteenth hole.

HAZLETON, Pa.—(A.P.)—G. A. Saltzman, president of the Hazleton Club, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, has announced the purchase of Outfielder Gerald Fitzgerald, from the Albany club, of the Eastern League. Fitzgerald is a brother of Herbert Fitzgerald, manager of the Mountaineers. Harrisburg gets Stan Lewan. Hazleton first baseman and outfielder who hit .350 last season, and Infielder Dick Hughes and First Baseman George Thomas come to Hazleton in another deal.

BELLEAIR, Fla.—(A.P.)—Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago, reached the final of the Belleair women's golf championship yesterday. Mrs. Stetson won from Mrs. Sidney Small, Detroit, 1 up, while Mrs. Jones scored a 7-and-5 triumph over Mrs. L. G. Riley, Pittsburgh.

PINEHURST, N. C.—(A.P.)—Ben F. Kraffert, Titusville, Pa., won his second major golf title of the local season yesterday by overwhelming Dr. R. V. Garris, Asbury Park, N. J., 8 and 6, in the final of the Pine Needles tournament.

OMAHA, Neb.—(A.P.)—Tommy Grogan, Omaha lightweight and junior welterweight fighter, will meet Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion in a 10-round non-title bout at Philadelphia on March 23.

DETROIT, March 13.—The Detroit Olympics, long suffering this season by virtue of seven defeats at the hands of the Yellow Jackets, gained sweet revenge here last night when they dealt a telling blow to the play-off hopes of the visitors by beating them, 2 to 1, in their eighth and final game of the International League race.

Jimmy Herberts and Shrimp McPherson came through with the goods in the third period that enabled the locals to have the last laugh.

ROUGH BATTLE

The game was unusually rough. Casualties took the place of brilliant playing in affording the spectators thrills, two men on each side being forced out of the game at various stages with injuries.

Gilhooley, Detroit forward, suffered the most serious injury of all, falling on Herbert's skates in the third period and severing an artery in his right leg above the knee.

Hoffinger, Detroit defenseman, was helped from the ice after being slashed across the head, while McCurry had the same thing happen to him twice. Smith, Pittsburgh defenseman, also was slashed during the contest.

Olympics lost two chances to score in the early minutes of the first period, McAdam fumbling each time.

In the first period Venne beat White from close in, Proudlock sprawling over the Olympic goalie, who flipped the rubber out into the open while prostrate. Cox dropped to the ice to save on Gilhooley's effort.

Shortly after the start of the second period, McCurry was temporarily knocked out in some mysterious manner. After lying on the ice for several minutes, he was assisted to his feet and skated off rubbing the back of his head. Proudlock was checked into the boards by Gilhooley, striking with terrific force with his head. He was knocked out for several minutes and assisted from the ice.

Rodden caught the Olympic defense flat-footed three minutes later, passing all the way across the ice to Gregg who skated in uninterrupted to beat Venne for the tying goal.

McCurry was carried from the ice for the second time during the evening, with the start of the last period, when he ostensibly was tripped by the Detroit defense. No penalty was meted out, however.

McPherson passed to Herberts, who literally carried the puck into the net after 16 minutes of play. Steele and Rodden were penalized five minutes for slashing and Hoffinger was helped off the ice after being slashed in the melee. The lineup:

Pittsburgh—1		Detroit—2
Cox	G	Venne
Reise	D	Hoffinger
Smith	D	Kenny
Rodden	C	Fredericksen
Ouellette	W	Brophy
Gregg	W	Steele

Spares—Pittsburgh, Fields, Proudlock, McCurry, Halliday, McGuire, White. Detroit and McIntyre, Detroit. McPherson, McAdams, Herbert, Gillie, Gilhooley, Daley and Williams.

Referees—Jerry LaFlamme and Guy S. Smith.

Second period—Detroit, Gillie (Daley), 9:11. Pittsburgh, Gregg (Rodden), 12:16. Penalties—Gilhooley, Steele, Proudlock.

Third period—Herbert, (McPherson), 16:42. Penalties—Hoffinger, Kenny, Steele (five minutes), Rodden (five minutes).

SYRACUSE HERE TOMORROW

The Yellow Jackets will continue what appears to be an almost hopeless fight for an International Hockey League play-off berth at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night when they will meet the Syracuse Stars in one of the two games remaining on the local skaters' home schedule.

As a result of last night's defeat in Detroit, London setbacks now are almost as important as Pittsburgh victories. Unless London loses two games, the Jackets cannot get into the money circle, even though they win all of their remaining three games.

Adventures of Policy Pete

FRISCH TO SIGN CARDINAL CONTRACT

BRADENTON, Fla., March 13.—(AP.)—With the arrival here last night of Frankie Frisch, the number of missing Cardinals was reduced to one, Chick Hafey, reported to be a stubborn holdout. Frisch brought his unsigned contract with him, but said he expected no trouble in reaching a satisfactory agreement with officials of the club. The Cardinals returned here immediately after their victory over the Boston Braves at St. Petersburg yesterday.

Camp Flashes

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(AP.)—As the days go by it becomes increasingly important to the Brooklyn Robins to get Dazzy (Ape) Vaughan to sign on the dotted line. The Robins are hitting freely but not in concert.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP.)—John McGraw is thinking of opening up a new hospital to take care of his long list of ailing New York Giants. The invalids now include Leslie and Leach, colds; Schumacher, large ankle; Danning, torn finger; Rhem-bourg, blister on foot. Bill Terry has signed his contract.

West Penn Soccer Series Opens Sunday

The first of a three-game series between the Dunlevy and Bridgeville elevens, for the West Penn Soccer Cup, will be played at the Bridgeville Speedway at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Pete McArdle will serve as referee. The second game of the series probably will be played at Husher Field, Monessen.

In another Sunday game, Shannon Fintex will meet Gallatin at Gallatin in a benefit fray.

The Celtics and Union Switch will play for the Joseph N. Nied Cup at 3:15 tomorrow afternoon at the Westinghouse High field.

One week from Sunday Gallatin will travel to Paterson, N. J., and the Easterners will return the visit to Gallatin on Easter Sunday.

UTTERBACK IN MEET

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 13.—(AP.)—Everett Utterback, Pittsburgh Negro, is entered in the Illinois Relay Carnival here tomorrow night and is expected to give Barney Berlinger, of Penn, a tough fight for the all-around championship. Berlinger has won the title for three straight years.

EDDIE TOWNS RESIGNS AT AMBRIDGE

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Eddie Towns, one of Western Pennsylvania's veteran professionals, and as popular as they make 'em in spite of the fact he appears to be getting a load of tough breaks, has resigned his berth at the Ambridge Country Club, where he succeeded Tom Gray last year, and is negotiating for a new job at this time. It is reported that Towns is likely to grab off the berth at the Duquesne Golf Club, although the names of Ben and Archie Loeffler and Johnny Hapchuck have been linked up with rumors of a possible successor to Chuck Bright, former Westmoreland assistant.

Eddie Towns

Another hot piece of news on the fire is that which has to do with the signing of an assistant professional at the Edgewood Country Club. Julius Platte has announced in Baltimore that he is leaving there Monday to report to Jimmy O'Donnell at the local club. Jimmy is at the Ocala Highlands Club in Florida at this time, and is not expected to take up his duties at Edgewood until early in April; which means that Platte likely will stick around and get acquainted.

For some time it has been rumored that the veteran and most prized of all district clubmakers, Billy Moir, would not return as assistant at Edgewood but Billy himself has not been advised to that effect, so it can hardly mean he will be out of the picture. Paul (Toots) Erath, the Beaver Falls lad, also is expected to return.

Tee to Green

John J. (Jack) Dillon, Stanton Heights player, is sojourning in Havana, Cuba, this week after having spent almost a month at Miami where he golfed, bathed, and followed the ponies and the dogs to good advantage. Jack went from Miami to Havana by airplane—some 285 miles—in two hours, and got a big thrill, so he says.

Clark R. Nicholson, former local golfer, who now resides in Miami, won the Class A division of the Miami seniors' tourney—Class A was for entrants 70 years of age and older. He received a handsome silver bread tray for his efforts, and is very proud of it. Nicholson was prominently associated with S. A. R. golf and other activities while here.

J. Bernd Rose of the Allegheny Country club, is concluding one of the most successful seasons the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association ever had, his term as president runs out next month with the annual meeting.

George Ormiston, of Oakmont, and Francis Doyle, of Stanton Heights, are fine bowlers, and doing well in the local tri-state tenpin tourney.

KEN HI PLAYS SCOTT FIVE

Whitey Wilson, of Kensington, and Capt. Johnny Tomko, of Scott, are bubbles in the collar of this year's scholastic brew. The loss of either would be a death blow to the hopes of their respective teams.

Wilson, Dayoub, Susek and Krisleit have accounted for all of the 59 points scored by Kensington in the tourney. Wilson leads with 10 field goals and five fouls, a grand, and how grand, total of 25. Scott's scoring has been more equally divided, seven of the boys sharing in the harvest. Bache, with eight field goals and three fouls, leads with 19 markers. The records follow:

THREE TITLES AT STAKE

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 13.—Three titles will be fought for by six Washington County high school basketball teams tonight when the finals on the Washington County Interscholastic Athletic Association are staged in the Trinity High School gymnasium.

Canonsburg and California will be the opponents in Class 1, with Canonsburg favored because of a slightly better record. McDonald and Cecil will be the opponents in Class 2. McDonald beat Cecil twice during the regular season, but the Cecil passers have developed surprisingly in the latter part of the season and are conceded a good chance. A toss-up is seen in Class 3, with West Bethlehem and Peters meeting.

NANTICOKE COPS

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 13.—(AP.)—In the first game of the P. I. A. A. playoff series at Wyoming Seminary last night, Nanticoke High School, Anthracite League champion, smothered Laketon High, Bi-County League pennant winner, 73 to 18.

Fight Results

At New York, Al Sawyer knocked out Ralph Landis, 1 round.

Art Shires Fails To Show Up At Brewers' Camp

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 13.—(AP.)—Usually easy to locate by the sound of his voice, Art Shires is missing—or at least the management of the Milwaukee Brewers can't find him.

The "Great One's" presence here has been heralded daily for a week, but so far he has failed to put in appearance for spring training.

President Louis Nahin decided last night Shires had delayed his appearance long enough and sent out a tracer in the form of a telegram. It came back undelivered.

THREE BOXERS SCORE KAYOS

Three extra-round bouts and three knockouts marked the big amateur boxing card of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, in its own ring, last night. Chuck Mullins and Johnny Hazel, of the Willow Club, and Joe Chemes, Pittsburgh Lyceum, stopped their opponents. The summary:

112-pound class—Young Chemes, Pittsburgh Lyceum, won from Tony Marino, Hogan A. C., four rounds.

Pitt Freshmen Top Wilkinsburg Mermen

The University of Pittsburgh freshman swimming team kept its undefeated record clean yesterday by trimming Wilkinsburg High, 50½ to 8½.

BOWLING MATCH CARDED

The Calhoun bowling team will meet Atlantic in a match on the Strand alleys in Oakland tonight at 9:30. Both teams will present strong lineups.

FIRST ROUND FOES TO BE NAMED

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 13.—(AP.)—The lineup of the first round of the annual state high school basketball tournament, a week hence, will be determined tonight.

Gathering in the office of Dr. Homer W. Wark, president of West Virginia Wesleyan College, officials of the tournament will conduct the draw that will decide what teams will meet in each of the eight first round contests. The results will be announced tomorrow.

The draw will be conducted by E. E. Stoffel, Director K. M. Ross, Assistant Director Robert H. Herzer, Mayor Henry Gay, of Buckhannon, and Prof. M. M. Brooks, of Buckhannon High School, representative of the state board of appeals. Teams entitled to enter by virtue of sectional victories will be notified of the outcome by wire tomorrow night.

Arrangements already have been made for quarters for the teams, for ushers, trainers and other officials, Director Ross announced.

SQUASH, HANDBALL PLAY DOWN TO FINALS

STARS TO MEET FOR TITLES TOMORROW

J. Scott Burke, of the P. A. A. will battle Dave Gilmore in the final of the A. M. A. A. U. senior squash racquets tourney tomorrow as a result of their victories yesterday on the Keystone Athletic Club courts.

Burke set down McCook Reed, 15-7, 12-15, 18-17, 6-15 and 17-14 while Gilmore toppled George Stocking, 12-15, 18-16, 18-15 and 15-8.

Altmar and Alman, Y. M. H. A. duo, entered the final of the city doubles handball tourney yesterday at the same site by tripping Clark and Bialas, P. A. A. stars, 17-21, 21-16 and 21-4, and play Frank Smith and Theos Manos, K. A. C. team, tomorrow.

TUMBLER CLAIM DISPUTED

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Helen Kasputis, manager of the Goldenson Vanities, has issued a challenge to the McKees Rocks Tumblers for a game to settle the girls' basketball championship of the Greater Pittsburgh district.

Helen Kasputis

The Vanities suffered their first defeat in more than three years in a tournament in Cleveland last Saturday, this setback in a contest that required two extra periods breaking a winning streak of 39 successive victories.

The McKees Rocks Tumblers claim the Pittsburgh title as a result of winning the first annual Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. tourney, an event that included only three teams. The challenge of the Vanities follows:

"Inasmuch as the Tumblers won the local girls' basketball tournament, they claim the Pittsburgh district amateur championship. This title we claim, as we have not lost a game in this district in more than three years.

"We would like very much to play the team mentioned above before the season is over for the championship which they claim and which we dispute.

"The proceeds of this game, which we feel will run into quite a sum, will be turned over to any charitable institution which the Tumblers or any newspaper may decide upon."

The Ray Schneiders won over the Penn Five, 31-27, in the West Penn League last night, while the Y. M. H. A. five defeated Oil City here, 31-27.

PAUL WANER JOINS BUCS

shooters who dished out the goose eggs. Meine and Willoughby were on the slab in the first four rounds, the two younger hurlers taking the long trick at the finish. In several instances there was some mighty fine pitching, the sensational Wood furnishing most of the fireworks with his deceptive curve ball.

Wood demonstrated how much better a good pitcher can be when he works with his favorite catcher. Jack Mealey is one gent who can handle Wood's great curve, which often reaches the receiver in a pickup manner. At one time today, Wood, with runners on third and second, cut loose a low curve that almost struck the plate. Mealey saved the battle by a neat pickup. Manager Ens turned to the newspapermen with a knowing nod. He realized nobody on the Pirate receiving corps of last year would have nailed the ball so deftly.

Ens made a few changes in his lineup for yesterday's contest. Jewel wants to see what certain rookies can do against certain kinds of pitching. Another game is scheduled for this afternoon.

BUC GAMES SHIFTED

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Brooklyn Robins will play 20 Sunday home games instead of 18 as shown in the official National League schedule. Both of the additional home games are with Pittsburgh. The game of July 3 will be shifted to Sunday, June 14, and the one of August 26 moved to Sunday, September 13. In each case the Robins will be forced to travel from Cincinnati where Saturday games are scheduled to Brooklyn and thence to Pittsburgh, where Monday games will be played.

Swetonic May Quit Hospital Tomorrow

Steve Swetonic, Pirate pitcher who last Wednesday underwent an operation for the removal of a piece of bone from the elbow of his right arm is recovering rapidly and will be released from St. John's Hospital tomorrow or early next week, Dr. Gustav Berg, who performed the operation, said today.

Forbes, Beltzhoover Fives Win Titles

Two sectional championships were decided yesterday in the grade school basketball competition, Beltzhoover defeating Conroy, 19-7, at Fifth Avenue High School, while Forbes defeated Rogers on the Frick Training School court, 19-16.

THOMAS MAKES WINDUP DEBUT TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

A young local Negro boxer gets a chance to prove his worth as a main bout fighter in the weekly show at the Moose Temple downtown tonight. He's little Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, and he makes his debut as a topliner against one of the ciagiest boxers in the division, one Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore. Benny has been through the mill, although you'd never guess it to look at his unmarked features, which are a tribute to his boxing skill and brilliant generalship under fire.

Benny has boxed many of the stars among the little fellows in the last half-dozen or so years. He battled Pancho Villa in a 15-round thriller in Baltimore when Villa was the flyweight champion of the world and a good one. He has boxed Al Brown, the present bantamweight champion, and a long list of other notables.

WINS, LOSES HERE

The Baltimorean first showed here summer before last, beating Jackie Rodgers at Bridgeville. Then he returned and dropped a 10-round decision to Johnny McCoy at the Meyers Bowl and was knocked out in the first round by Rodgers in a return bout at Motor Square Garden, but came back last winter to beat Marty Gold in Duquesne Garden. He has been in town now for almost a month, getting himself into his best condition for tonight's fight, in which he will pit his boxing wizardry against the straight punching of Thomas, who has beaten Mickey Cohen and Ollie Bartlett in his last two starts here and is matched to box Vito Mazzeo in a main bout in Cleveland one week from next Monday night.

Mose Butch, of Oakland, who was to box Johnny Warner, of Clairton, in the other half of the double windup tonight, finds the injured eye he suffered against Marty Gold in the same ring last Friday night will not permit him to box, and Promoter Apples Meyers has signed Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, to take his place. Mazzeo recently subbed for Warner against Butch at the Moose and put up a fine fight.

In the two six-round preliminaries, Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, meets Young Joe Walcott, Negro welterweight, of Washington, Pa., and Ross Fields, Weirton (W. Va.) flyweight, takes on Jackie Wilson, Negro, of Homewood.

Between Rounds

Mickey Duris has been forced to call off his match with Sammy Harris, of Akron, at Johnstown next Monday night, because of the cut eye he suffered in his battle with Billy Holt here last Monday night. The promoter is angling for a substitute. T. S. Carpentier and Press Johnson are in the semi-final.

Eddie Reed boxes Frank Bojorski in the main bout at Erie tonight. Lou Petrone and Frankie Chatterton are in the semi-final and Jimmy Dean boxes Johnny Bazar and Mickey Dillon takes on Joe Sedley in the preliminaries.

The correct name of Cowboy Eddie Anderson, who boxes Eddie Brannon, local Negro lightweight, in a return windup at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, is Edward Fitzpatrick, and his first victory of any consequence was over Midget Smith when the latter was a nationally famous bantamweight.

The Tiger Joe Randall-Jimmy Belmont match has been closed for McKeesport next Thursday night. They will battle at 146 pounds. Three six-round preliminaries will complete the card.

LEVINSKY QUITS ALVIS

CHICAGO, March 13. (AP.)—The managers of King Levinsky, West Side heavyweight fighter, don't last long. Ray Alvis is the latest to be deposed, having served since late last year, when he succeeded Al Miller. The Kingfish's new manager is a manageress, his sister, Mrs. Lena Levy. Alvis had a 25 per cent interest in the shielder of the mighty right hand, but Mrs. Levy, claiming Alvis failed to fulfill certain agreements, has bought him out.

BANK FIVES TO MEET

Basketball teams representing Mellon National Bank and Peoples Savings will clash at Fifth Avenue High School next Tuesday night. Ralph McCall will lead the Mellon quintet, while Coach Rankin will direct the Peoples passers.

Coast Midwest Fives Survive A. A. U. Play

KANSAS CITY, March 13.—(AP.)—It's California against the Midwest in the semi-finals of the National A. A. U. basketball tournament here tonight.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club is matched in one semi-final tilt with the defending champion, the Henry's, of Wichita, Kan., and the Young Men's Institute, San Francisco, meets the Kansas City Athletic Club in the other. All the remaining contenders, with the exception of Y. M. I., have held the title in previous years—Los Angeles in 1919, K. C. A. C., in 1921, and the Henry's last year.

Sport Vignettes

Jack Dempsey announces his retirement from the ring after having been on the fence trying to make a decision for three years . . . Wonder who told him he's through? . . . It was supposed to be a secret . . . Harry Conte, of the University of Pittsburgh boxing team, is a cousin of Mike Moran, former local bantamweight mittman, who has just about made up his mind to give up the sport entirely . . . Young Piazzi, a ring contemporary of Moran, now is a city fireman stationed at the Second avenue and Smithfield street headquarters . . . Northwestern University strove for 25 years to win the Big Ten basketball title which fell to its lot this season . . . Its record for the campaign was 16 victories and one defeat, and Illinois, which administered the lone setback, 35-28, was beaten in a previous encounter, 29-27 . . . Arthur (Dutch) Lonborg, the Purple coach, took charge in 1927, after the Northwestern team had lost all of its Western Conference games the preceding season . . . A former University of Kansas football, basketball and baseball star, who was graduated in 1921, Lonborg had behind him two seasons of coaching at McPherson College and four seasons at Washburn College before going to Northwestern, and since he took hold the Purple has won 72 per cent of its games.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing Association, has accepted an invitation to attend a parley of the British boxing board and the International Boxing Union, representing France, Germany, Belgium, Italy and other European countries, in London early next month, when an attempt will be made to arrive at international co-operation and understanding in boxing matters, with a view to recognizing the claims of European as well as American boxers to world supremacy . . . Ratings to be revised at three-month intervals are planned. . . . News that the University of Pennsylvania annual relay carnival will retain the decathlon event, after considering dropping it this year, is particularly pleasing to Barney Berlinger, Penn ace, who will strive to annex the laurels for the third successive year. . . . The carnival will be held at Franklin Field on April 24-25.

The real name of Ben Jeby, promising young New York middleweight, who boxes Len Harvey, of England, in Madison Square Garden Friday night of next week, is Benny Jeboltowski. . . . He is a veteran of the amateur and professional ranks, having lost only two bouts out of some 50 as a simon-pure and three out of 43 as a professional, to Alf Ros, Jackie Horner and Vince Dundee. . . . He has beaten Horner and Ros in return battles, and Dundee has won twice over Harvey. . . . Joe Dundee, Tony Vaccarelli, Harry Ebbets, Nick Palmer and Charley Rosen are among his victims.

Dominick Petrone, New York featherweight boxer, now residing here and due for a feature battle at Motor Square Garden soon, has met Benny Bass, Al Singer, Abe Goldstein and Al Brown, all of whom have known the championship heights. . . . Also Kid Chocolate and Ignacio Fernandez. . . . He rates Goldstein the hardest puncher he ever faced. . . . Abe floored him three times, but he came from behind to win in 12 rounds. . . . He puts down Singer as classy, Chocolate as fast and classy, but not a great hitter, Bass and Fernandez (who holds a knockout victory over Singer) as tough punchers, and Brown as tall, rangy, clever and a good hitter who is hard to box.—HARRY KECK.

BENSON THIEL COACH

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.

Walt Disney, who controls the affairs of the celebrated rodent, admits he is considering the advisability of eliminating dialogue from his animated cartoons. Hundreds of letters objecting to words being put in Mickey's mouth are the reason for the contemplated change of policy. In this country, fans say it is too far-fetched for cartoons to talk. Abroad, where the English dialogue cannot be understood, the objection is even more strenuous. And Mickey Mouse numbers thousands of foreign fans.

Charlie Chaplin

ONLY A FATHER

One of Eddie Cantor's daughters collects autographs of celebrities.

After he had secured samples from Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson and others, the comedian asked his daughter:

"And now, don't you want me to sign one?"

The kid looked blank.

"What for?" she asked.

LATEST GOSSIP

Gary Cooper has had to go to the hospital as a result of a threatened breakdown. He has lost 13 pounds within a few weeks . . . Ruth Chatterton is back from New York and shortly starts work on Zoe Akin's comedy, "Daddy's Gone A-Hunting" . . . Pete Smith, one of the greatest publicity men Hollywood ever had, is back at his desk at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Pete draws a salary that might compare favorably with that of a movie star. He has been ill for several months, but M. G. M. thinks so well of him that they have kept his job open. Motion picture property men remove all clocks and calendars from sets, unless they are needed in the action. The reason being it is so easy to forget to change the hands and to tear off the pages demanded by time lapses in the story . . . Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is dickering with Jack Dempsey to make a series of boxing shorts . . . William Tilden already is here to do a tennis series. Oddly enough, these sports shorts will be provided with love interest.

MEXICO GETTING POPULAR

As usual, the film producers are getting the same idea all at at once. Pathe already has announced Agua Caliente as the setting for Eddie Quillan's next picture. Now comes its parent studio, R-K-O, to carry the idea still further and name a picture "Agua Caliente."

Eddie Quillan

The story is being adapted from Damon Runyon's "All Scarlet," and Dorothy Lee is to play the girl. Other characters have not been cast as yet.

Meeting the needs of the sub-normal child will be discussed tomorrow at the monthly meeting of the Principals' Round Table of Allegheny County in the City-County building. J. P. Runk will report on the Detroit meeting of the department of superintendence. Dr. Frank H. Reiter, director of special education in Pennsylvania, also will speak.

Walter Winchell Will Be Found on Page 20

Rich Girl

CLAUDETTE COLBERT LAUGHS HER LINES

It is an accomplishment that distinguishes her from the majority of actresses, C. A. Tuthill, monitor man who recorded her last picture, "Honor Among Lovers," declared recently.

It is a difficult trick, he said, to laugh or chuckle, as Claudette does, at the same time that one speaks one's lines. And it adds a spontaneous quality that continues uninterrupted because of what might be called the synchronization of Miss Colbert's voice and mind.

"She laughs the lines whereas another actress would put the laugh or chuckle before or after the words," Tuthill said.

"The common practice is to chuckle first and then merely carry the momentum of hilarity in one's voice while speaking. But Miss Colbert molds her gayety with her speech into a more accurate and charming characterization."

RUTH CHATTERTON AND THE TRIANGLES IN 'UNFAITHFUL'

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Unfaithful," starring Ruth Chatterton, is the new film in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square. It is a picture of, for and by the sexes. It is a crowd of eternal triangles on a movie spree.

John Van Druten, who authored the play, "Young Woodley," is said to have written "Unfaithful" especially for Miss Chatterton. If he did, he hasn't paid her any compliments. Compared with the brilliance of her dramatic talents, the plot is rather insignificant and shopworn.

Mr. Van Druten wants you to believe a sister's love for her brother is the most powerful love of all. This gives his story its only bid for originality. But it is originality at a high price. It costs the drama reconciliation with life.

THE NOBLE SACRIFICE

However, the real news about the picture is not story, but Chatterton. In a grand manner she portrays a lady who sacrifices her reputation for the happiness of her brother. She makes her lady seem so sincere that you think "how noble," when better judgment dictates "how silly."

This lady finds her husband, a hero to the world, is carrying on an affair with her brother's wife. Not wanting to make her brother unhappy, she doesn't broadcast the news. She just takes a fling at the unconventional life herself.

She meets an artist (who never paints), in the person of Paul Lukas, whom the movie-makers reserved for this very purpose. They get caught in the rain and discover that "great love."

SHE MAKES PAGE ONE

Then comes an effective scene of tragedy. Her husband and her brother's wife speed through the English night in a motor car. They and the car disappear in the fog. There are shrieks and the screech of brakes; sorrows and explanations.

Still the noble one, Miss Chatterton's lady continues to champion brother's happiness. She averts scandal for him and his giddy wife by getting her own name in the papers. Then she and her artist friend motor into a future that should be happy—provided they keep out of the fog.

The supporting cast, including Paul Cavanagh, Juliette Compton and Donald Cook, makes satisfying effort. Settings and photography are good. And Director John Cromwell has striven to keep the plot moving. But it is Chatterton alone who amounts to something in the big dramatic way. Her distinguished portrayal puts some sanity in this debauch of the triangles.

Gangster Guns

PRIVATE BUNGALOWS FOR CANINE ACTORS

Canine film stars now have their own private bungalows, just as human stars have, and all the comforts of home, as a result of the construction of the new "Dog unit" at the Hollywood studios. This unit houses the canine actors in the "Dogville" comedies, and is a complete little studio plant in itself, with its own stage, property shop and wardrobe buildings, and "dressing room kennels."

The stage is completely equipped to handle the special scenery used in the "talking dog" pictures. Beside it stands "dressing room row," a row of kennels equipped with heating and cooling facilities and automatic water control for cleaning them. Special "bungalows" are also there to serve as kennels for "Jiggs," "Buster," "Oscar" and "Pepper," the stars of the aggregation.

There is a 50-foot runway for exercising the dogs about "dressing room row." Two buildings house properties, shop and wardrobe, as well as a cleaning plant for the dogs' costumes also have been erected.

Since the "talking dog" pictures, directed by Jules White and Zion Myers, have leaped to popularity, the productions have become more and more elaborate. This finally necessitated a special unit. Among the pictures already made are "So Quiet on the Canine Front," "Two Barks Brothers," "Dogway Meldoy," "Who Killed Rover?," "College Hounds" and "The Big Dog House."

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Lysistrata" (pronounced Lysistrata) brings the Acropolis to the Alvin Monday for a week. Mr. and Mrs. Coburn will be seen in it as Greeks bearing rifts. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

In the chorus it is better to be well formed than well informed.

Francis X. Bushman, once movie idol, will be guest star of "Thin Ice" in the Pitt next week, but his reception, it seems, will be far from cool. Thursday and Saturday are matinee days.

Foote and Spott, the well-known Light twins, never annoy actors when THEY glare.

"Strange Interlude," coming to the Nixon March 23, supplies the mental food, but customers must provide the physical vittles consumed at intermission. Fare enough?

An actress brags she hasn't paid a dime for sickness in five years. Well, who would!

"City Lights," the Charlie Chaplin talkless film, begins its second week in the Aldine today. It is claimed to be too funny for words, to which we add that it is not too dumb to be interesting.

"Kept Husbands," with Joel McCrea and Dorothy Mackaill, opens on the Enright screen today and in the Davis tomorrow. Wonder how the husbands are kept up or down or just in a stew, as usual?

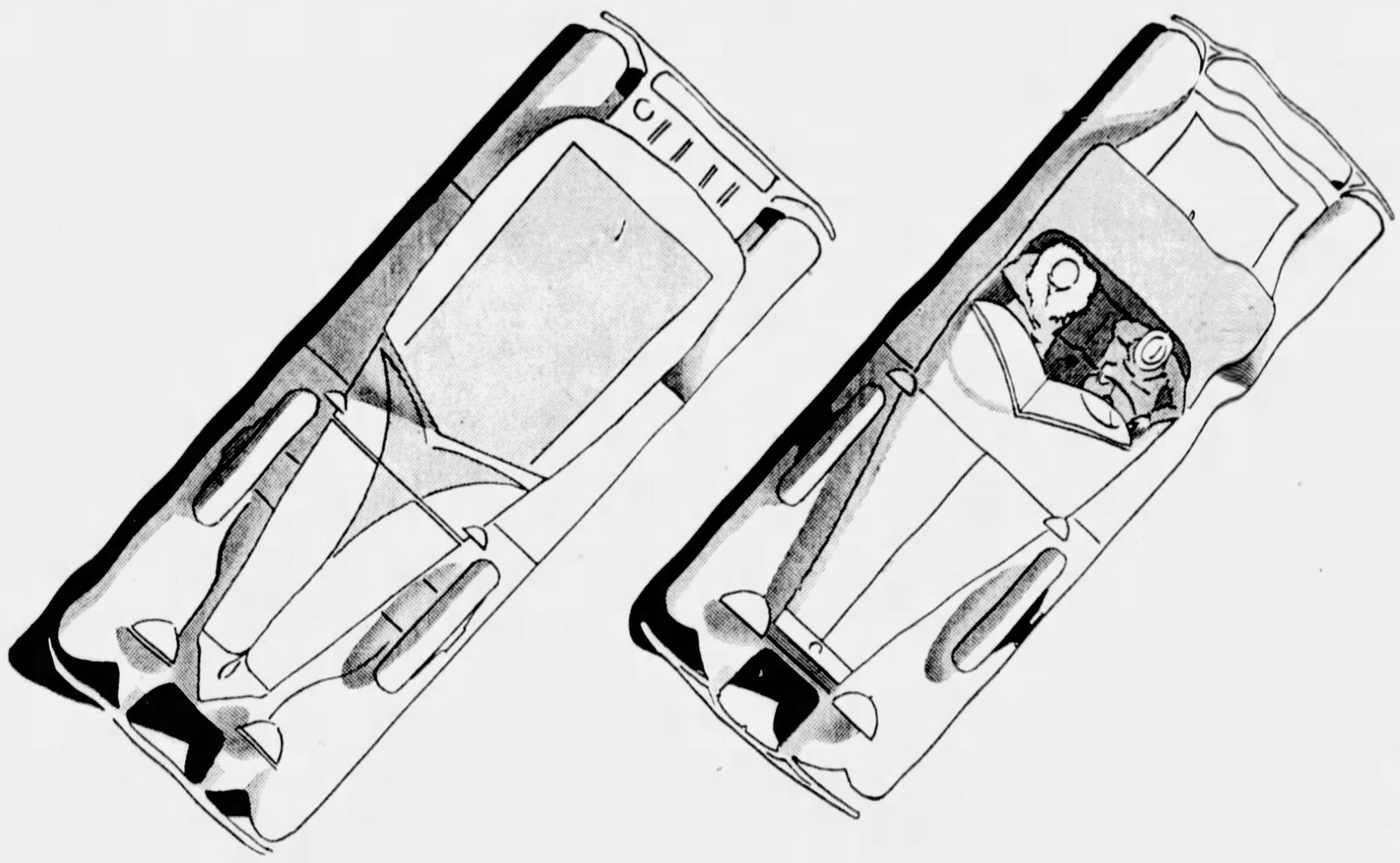
FOR THE AUTOMOBILES OF TODAY



the new ATLANTIC

WHITE FLASH

THE automobile you drive today is capable of developing great speed and tremendous power. But to get these things, you need a motor fuel that will take full advantage of all the mechanics built into the engine.

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is that motor fuel! It has been developed after research extending into every phase of automobile-operation and refining practice. It sells at regular-gas price.

You can actually "feel" the superiority of this motor fuel. Your car starts more quickly, responds instantly, operates at less cost. Use ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH regularly. Give your car a chance to give you its best performance.

STOCK MARKET DRIFTS DOWN QUIETLY

Volume of Selling Again Too Slim to Offer Much Encouragement to Bears

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—The downward drift of share prices persisted quietly for the fourth successive day in today's stock market.

The most encouraging aspect of the situation was again the slim volume of selling, too slim to offer much encouragement to the bears, but bulls still found the situation very much befogged by rumors of further dividend reductions, and lack of pronounced business recovery.

Losses in the main were moderate.

Wall street regarded the Secretary of Labor's employment report for February as distinctly encouraging, although the betterment was not sufficient to be pronounced to be translated into rising share prices. The gain of 1.4 per cent was about the normal seasonal upturn for the month, but February a year ago showed virtually no improvement so it may be hoped that there has been a fundamental change of trend. Even more impressive was the 7.5 per cent each in factory payrolls, which was an upturn more than 50 per cent larger than usual.

Conspicuous among the corporate news was the 1930 statement of Texas Corporation showing net of only $1.53 a share, against $5.12 in the previous year, and providing further evidence of the unprofitable condition in the oil industry. The leader of the so-called independent oil companies maintained its annual $3 annual dividend only by taking $14,400,000 from surplus. International Telephone however issued a somewhat better report for 1930 than expected, showing the $2 dividend earned with a slight margin to spare. The company again declared a regular 50-cent quarterly disbursement.

Credit conditions appeared to have returned to the status of February. Call loans were officially quoted at 1½ per cent, but outside funds were available at 1 per cent. A gain of $29,000,000 in brokers' loans was too small to attract much attention, although it seemed to indicate that pools may have accomplished some distribution to the public.

January Crude Oil Imports Decrease

WASHINGTON, March 13.—During January imports of crude petroleum totaled 4,352,874 barrels, valued at $4,530,765, as compared with 5,449,506 barrels, valued at $5,679,244, in January, 1930, the Commerce Department reports.

In the seven months ended with January, total imports were 35,352,965 barrels, valued at $36,456,535, against 40,530,513 barrels, valued at $42,198,776, during the seven months ended January, 1930.

Continental Oil Gusher Controlled

AUSTIN, Tex., March 13.—Loss of large quantities of oil in the Big Lake Field was prevented when a well of Continental Oil Company on land owned by the University of Texas in the Big Lake Field of Reagan County, was brought under control today. The well broke loose Thursday and has torn out most of its casing. It is estimated to be flowing more than 10,000 barrels of oil and 75,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. Enters New Field

CHICAGO, March 13.—Sears, Roebuck & Co. is preparing to sell insurance by mail. Articles of incorporation were filed at Springfield, Ill., for All States Insurance Company, organized by Sears with 13 of its officers as incorporators.

NEW YORK BANK RATE REMAINS UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, March 13.—Following the weekly meeting of directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, no announcement was made regarding the rediscount rate, which is 2 per cent.

BOND MEN HEAR F. W. SARGENT

Business men of America must stand guard against the process of centralization of government to the detriment of state sovereignty and fundamental public rights, Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, told the members of the Bond Club of Pittsburgh, at their annual banquet in the William Penn Hotel last night. Citing various methods by which the Federal authority is expanding into the state and private domain and which he holds to be contrary to the Constitution, Mr. Sargent urged that the drift to paternalism be halted before private initiative and state rights be impaired to an irreparable extent.

The banquet attracted one of the largest gatherings in the history of the club. Entertainment was furnished by the Russian Cathedral Quartet and Nirella's Orchestra. Raymond Knight, radio star, delivered a comedy speech. Charles H. Matthews, president of the club, presided. The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr pronounced the invocation. Dr. Edward R. Weidlein, of the Mellon Institute, was toastmaster. Many of the city's leading financiers were at the speaker's table.

Manchester Cotton Trade Improved

MANCHESTER, Eng., March 13.—A sharp improvement has taken place in inquiries received in the local cotton market and it is hoped that lifting of the boycott in India will result in substantial expansion of business.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Texas Corporation, one of the leading units in the petroleum industry, reported a sharp reduction in earnings for 1930. Net income, after all deductions and reserves, was $15,073,303, equal to $1.53 a share, as compared with 1929 net of $45,318,052, or $5.12 a share on a slightly smaller amount of stock.

Lambert Company reports consolidated net profits for 1930 after taxes amounted to $7,152,412, equal after $3.72 a share on capital stock. This included profits derived from the ownership of 95 per cent of the stock of Lambert Pharmacal Company, and also including pro-phy-lactic Brush Company acquired last year.

Massey Harris Company reports net loss of $2,247,439 for the fiscal year ending November 30, 1930. Last year a net profit of $2,800,813 was shown. The company deals in farm implements.

The Cuba Company and subsidiary and affiliated companies for the quarter ended December 31, had net profit of $247,173 before subsidiary preferred dividends and minority interest, against $10,753 in the like quarter of 1929.

Neisner Brothers, chain store operator, reported for 1930 net profit of $330,216, equal to 85 cents a share on the common stock, against $1,025,363, or $4.18 a share, in

Chrysler Tells of New Pick-Up in Auto Sales

By B. C. FORBES

WALTER P. CHRYSLER who sails for a month's business-pleasure trip to Europe tomorrow, gives me this cheering news:

Mr. Forbes

"There has just set in definite improvement in the buying of automobiles in this country. Europe is showing more interest, although this has not yet materialized in greatly increased demand. Having a fully equipped plant in Windsor, Ontario, we confidently expect to expand our sales there very materially following the imposition of the stiff tax on motor imports."

MR. CHRYSLER, even when depression was at its worst in this country, uncompromisingly opposed the cutting of wages. He repeated yesterday that he felt very strongly that generally lower wage scales would curtail buying and, therefore, should be avoided.

DISCUSSING WHAT led up to the new activity in automobile sales, Mr. Chrysler said:

"About six weeks ago the mental attitude of the buying public changed. People seemed glad to get 1930 behind them. They began, after the turn of the year, to feel better.

"Many of those who had sold stocks to establish income tax losses, or for other reasons, found that they couldn't get their securities back without bidding higher prices for them. Unquestionably, the rise in Wall Street has had a potent influence in stimulating sentiment.

"This in turn will help consumption. It is a fact, too, that a great many of those whose income was not reduced at all curtailed their expenditures. There doubtless will set in some loosening up in this direction.

"As I told you last fall, I am against any cut in wage rates. Labor already has taken more reduction than any other class, what with layoffs and shorter hours."

WE HAD LUNCH in the appropriately named Cloud Club, which makes its home on the sixty-sixth, sixth-seventh and sixty-eighth floors of the Chrysler Building. As many as 3,500 people have visited the Chrysler tower—1,046 feet above the teeming traffic of New York's streets—in one day, Said Mr. Chrysler:

"I am very much pleased with the operation of this building. Notwithstanding all the office building which has gone on in New York, we have had such a demand for space that this building is already more than earning its keep."

Having often wondered whether the topmost floors in cloud-piercing buildings were the first to be rented, I was interested in learning from Mr. Chrysler that these are the least crowded thus far in his 77-story structure. The reason for this, he explained, is that the higher the floor the higher the rent.

ANOTHER CHRYSLER is breaking into the business world, Walter P., Jr., only 22, and still studying at Dartmouth. He very early developed a passion for fine books. So, last year he organized "Cheshire House, Inc., Publishers of Fine Books." The first volume of a series of 12, to be published monthly, is about to appear.

Young Chrysler, good looking, modest fellow, intensely in earnest over his chosen line of work, remarked to me:

"I have been called everything from an aesthete to a practical business man. Neither is correct. I am doing this because I love fine books and the associations they bring with them.

"America has lagged behind Europe terribly in its interest in fine books. I hope this will foster a movement that book lovers and collectors will appreciate. As I am a collector myself, I feel we are doing something for them."

MOST FATHERS are disappointed when their sons do not follow in their footsteps. Not so Mr. Chrysler.

"I wouldn't wish on him, if I could, the responsibilities I have had to shoulder. The man who gets into business on a very big scale becomes a slave."

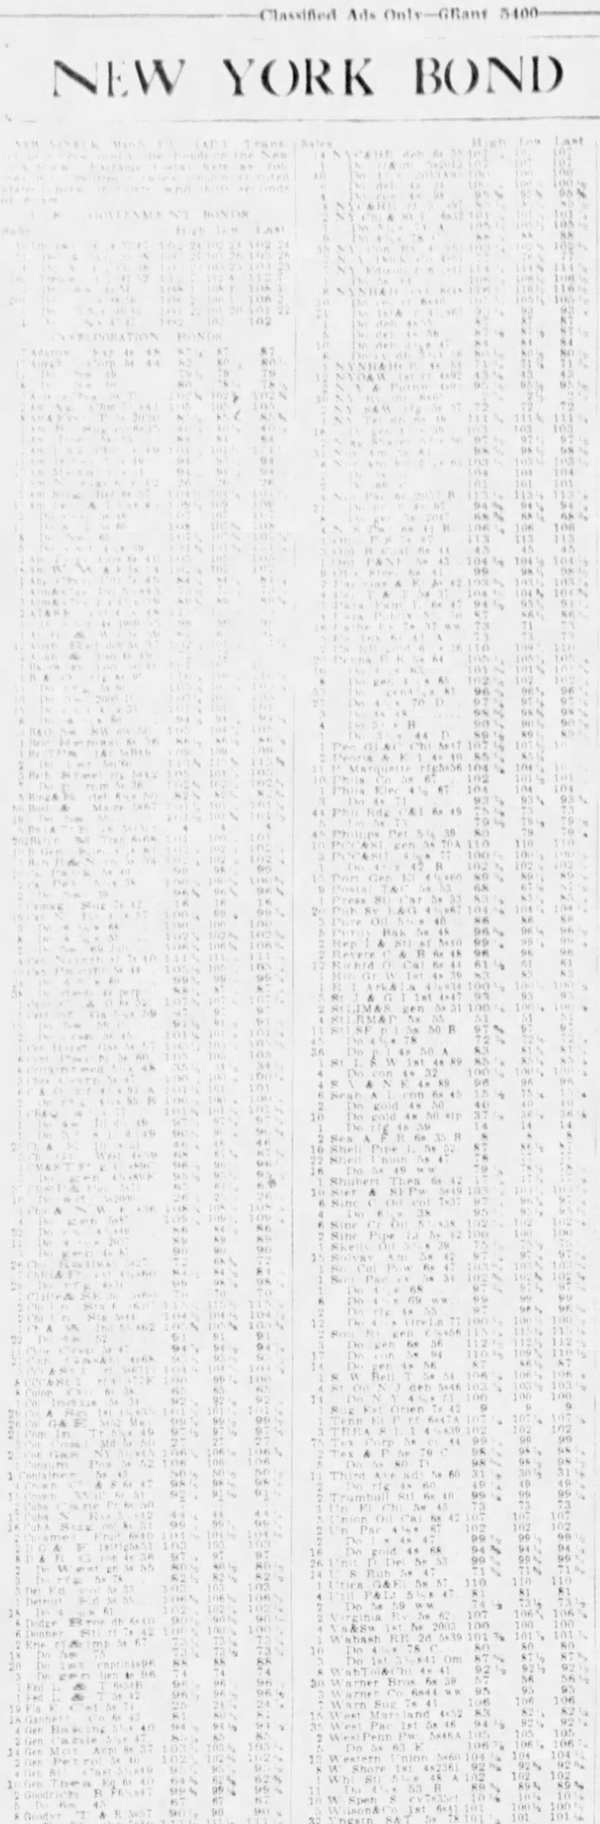
NEW YORK BOND MARKET



BIG GAS DEAL FEASIBLE

A stockholder of Lone Star Gas believes that, despite the cautious comment by officials of Columbia Gas and Lone Star relative to an exchange of United Corporation and Columbia Gas common for Lone Star common, the fact remains that the acquisition of this property by Columbia and United would add a tremendous asset to their present properties. Lone Star's gas reserves are among the largest in the country.

The comment by a Columbia official to the effect that such an exchange has never been discussed and that the Columbia policy always has been to confine its interests to properties directly connected with present operations, is not incompatible with the situation as it exists. Columbia has committed itself to Texas Gas by acquiring the majority interest in Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line, extending from Amarillo, Tex., to Indianapolis. Lone Star's 20-inch line (Missouri Valley to Council Bluffs and other points) actually crosses Columbia's Panhandle Eastern Line.

VALLEY STEEL TREND UP

YOUNGSTOWN, March 13.—Based on indications at mid-week, steel plant operations in the Mahoning Valley in the coming week should advance slightly, rising above the 50 per cent level for the first time this year. While the advance will be slight, sentiment among Youngstown district manufacturers has shown a distinct improvement within the last week.

Sharon Steel Hoop Company's ingot melting rate at mid-week was approximately 66 per cent against 50 per cent a week earlier. Officials are inclined to believe the upturn in ingot production will be only temporary.

LOANS EXPAND $29,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve Member banks in New York City, increased $29,000,000 during the week ended March 11 to $1,819,000,000. This compares with $1,790,000,000 in the preceding week and the record high of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

Circumstances Begin to Worry Mary Lou

CHAPTER XXV.

Mary Lou was not happy, but Mary Lou was permitting herself to drift. For one entirely dreadful moment, that winter's afternoon in the library when she and Lorrimer had come in from skating and looked at the books together—and at each other—she had been sickeningly afraid that he had guessed the stark, wonderful and yet terrible fact which she had tried so hard to conceal. But he had made no gesture and said no word, and she had begun to believe that the recognition which she had fancied she saw in his eyes had been a figment of her over-stimulated imagination. If anything, things had been easier for her since then.

Lorrimer had seemed light-hearted, interested in matters other than herself, in McEwan, in his own now rigorous routine, in the complicated running of a big place like Westwood, and was talking quite seriously of going to work, of taking his place in the office in New York which ran his father's estate, a complete business of renting, leasing and investing in itself. He had talked it over with Dr. Mathews and Mathews had agreed, with one reservation.

Travers Changed

"Fine. The very best thing you can do," he had said. "But give yourself until autumn. You are in perfectly good health, as far as I can judge, but I don't want you to plunge into office work, with all its confining conditions, rush and general expenditure of energy, too soon. Give your nerves a chance to get a padding of sound, firm flesh; get a few more solid pounds on those big bones of yours. Get lots of sleep and exercise, and by fall we'll have you fit to lick Dempsey in his prime. And then I'll wash my hands of you medically and discharge you as a patient, I hope, for good."

Lorrimer had consented. He was, in point of fact, secretly anxious to be with Mary Lou as much as possible, for a little while longer, feeling, as he did, that the resistance he laid to pride would wear down and that by the time autumn came all misunderstandings and withholdings would have vanished between them and she would come to keep her promise to him. "And then," thought Lorrimer, exultant, "I'll have everything—everything!"

If these dreams of his came true he was perfectly right. Health and work, home and friends, wife and love, no man can have more, and many have a good deal less.

The Lorrimer party returned to Westwood House presently and Lorrimer, with his increased interest in life in general and business in particular, began to confer with his mother over the routine of the place, and to see occasionally, both in town and at home, the manager of the Lorrimer estate, John Kent. He and Mary Lou read evenings, listened to the radio—which had never, until recently, afforded him anything but exasperation—and now and then went to town for a matinee or an evening play. He was an absolutely different man from the man who had come into the morning room that day in early November.

In a sense, Mary Lou couldn't understand it; the change was so great and the time had been so short. She spoke to Mathews about it and he laughed at her, in his friendly fashion.

"But he wasn't ill, not really," said Mathews. "His constitution was perfectly sound. He needed merely—an interest in life. That, you have given him, my dear. And the rest followed naturally, the building up of a rundown physique and the healing of sick nerves. He could have gone on in that other half-invalid state indefinitely; we could do nothing; he had to be taken out of himself, voluntarily. He needed the will to live, the will to be well. He'll not backslide now, I think; but we have to watch out a little. These old fits of depression, have you noticed that they have bothered him at all?"

Friendship Cemented

"No, not recently," she told him.

"It's all been the best possible thing that could have happened to him," Mathews told her, "you—and your healthy, normal interest in life, the routine he has followed, through you, his encounter with McEwan. He's won a lot of victories over himself, and we have to give him credit for them. To a sound person nerves seem something to be dismissed with a gesture of contempt or a joke, as something which really do not exist save in the imagination. But they are perfectly real and play wretched tricks on their miserable owners. Nerve-ridden people suffer incredibly and with reality."

Mary Lou had an opportunity to observe the truth of this within a few months.

The winter had passed with amazing rapidity. There was always plenty to do in Westwood. Jenny Wynne had become Mary Lou's close friend—the first really intimate friend she had ever had of her own age. They were together a great deal and, for the first time in several years, Jenny had been weaned away from her idle racing to and fro for no good purpose and no particular reason. She had even refused to accompany her parents to Palm Beach for the entire season, promising them vaguely to "run down for a week or so later," and so, after a conference with Mrs. Lorrimer, she had moved over to Westwood, with bag and baggage, while the Wynnes were away.

This was nice for Larry, who continued to tear out when he was able and, when he was not able, to frantically 'phone Jenny that as he would have an hour off she'd better meet him in town!

Mary Lou Worried

But the Wynnes insisted that Jenny come South for the last two weeks in February.

"I don't want to," said Jenny to Mrs. Lorrimer. "It's too stupid! Can't Delight come too, and Travers? That wouldn't be so bad. Why don't you all come, Aunt Margaret, for two weeks' holiday?"

"I can't," Mrs Lorrimer said, smiling. "I've too much to do here, for, since Travers has been so like himself, I've taken upon my ancient shoulders the burden of several chairmanships of charity committees. I think that a change would do both Travers and Delight good, however. Suppose they go down with you, if your mother has room for extra guests."

"Room? The place is a barn," sighed Jenny, "a Spanish barn—or don't they have barns in Spain? Do persuade 'em to come with me, Aunt Margaret. I can't imagine anything quite so swell as long as I have to go at all!"

Mary Lou was approached with the proposition. Her eyes shone like a child's. Two weeks at Palm Beach, the place she'd read about, even dreamed about—two weeks!

"If I had known you would have liked to go so much," Mrs Lorrimer told her, "I would have arranged to take a house there. Well, next season, maybe."

Larry's wires reached Jenny every day.

Next season! Mary Lou's heart almost stopped beating. Did Mrs. Lorrimer expect her to stay on indefinitely, now that Lorrimer seemed so like himself? But she couldn't stay, once the truth was known. And when was he to be told the truth? She murmured something of this, and Mrs. Lorrimer looked at her, affectionately.

"Not yet," she said. "Dr. Mathews thinks now that we've come so far we mustn't risk losing ground."

But Mary Lou wondered how much more she could endure of his nearness and his unspoken wooing, his mute plea for response. She was getting a little thin, losing some of her bright color and sleeping rather badly. It was very difficult when everything in her, every nerve and fiber, called out to surrender, to snatch at happiness if only for an hour, to tell him she did love him, to feel his arms about her and then, if need be, to run away, where he could never find her, to fling the fact of her deception in her face.

Lorrimer consented easily to the short holiday. He thought that perhaps in that atmosphere of blue and gold and rustling palms and soft, fragrant winds, this little obstinate love of his might succumb, might listen to him, might answer as he desired. For South, all Nature would conspire with his longing and against her pride.

The Wynnes, telegraphed to, responded nobly. Their lovely, big house on Lake Worth was open for the three who arrived there one February morning. Mary Lou had come armed or armored with new frocks of the fragile, pastel evening and afternoon sort and the gay sweatered sport kind, for which Mrs. Lorrimer had wildly shopped a few days before they left.

She was instantly popular with the Wynne's many friends, and had a perfectly wonderful time—dancing and tea, sailing and motoring, fishing and swimming. She wished the two weeks could last forever, despite Jenny's fidgeting; for Jenny's heart was back in town. But Larry took no chances of being forgotten. Wires reached his Jenny every day, and absurd letters scrawled with a thick blue pencil on yellow copy paper. He was forever warning her. "Beware the idle rich, of the male and susceptible variety," Larry wired. "They are up to no good. Remember I am waiting, poor but dishonest, for your return."

Lorrimer was glad to be once more in the sunshine. He golfed, played tennis and swam. But he was disappointed, in that he never seemed to be alone with Mary Lou. She attracted young people in amazing and light-hearted numbers. And so he complained to her.

"I never see you alone."

"Oh, yes, you do, Lorry!"

"When?" he inquired.

"We golfed alone this morning," she said.

"With about six hundred other people, not including caddies," he reminded her. "Delight, are you purposely avoiding being alone with me?"

She did not answer, and the silence grew very oppressive and she was relieved and glad when Jenny sat down beside her and interrupted it with a huge sigh.

"Golly, I'm half dead. This social life will kill me. I'll be glad to get back to town."

"Town?" asked Mary Lou.

"Don't be simple, darling!" was Jenny's reply.

DAILY TRUE STORY— Dirty Work

"How'd you like all the money he's going to get?"

Myra Simson, owner of the Plainvale Inn, indicated a young man who was coming down the deserted village street.

The young man bowed and lifted his hat when he saw Mrs. Simson. She spoke to him pleasantly. After he had passed, her visiting sister, still mindful of the question, turned to her.

"It all depends," she said.

"What depends? Goodness sakes, Hattie, you do say things without head or tail, out of thin air."

"I was answering your question. How I would like the money that young man is going to get depends on how much it is and what he has to do to get it."

"Oh. Well, he's Carl Merrill, nephew of old Cyrus Merrill, and all he has to do to get his uncle's millions is to work in his uncle's bank and wait until the old man dies."

"Humph! Waiting for dead folks' shoes never did strike me as a very promising way to get rich."

"Ss-sh, he's comin' back," Mrs. Simson's sister warned.

Questioned About Friend

"I came to see about—that is, I have a friend coming out from the city, Mrs. Simson, and of course, I can't take my friend home. I came to see about making arrangements—"

"How long will he stay? Is it just a visit to you, Carl? Is he some college friend of yours and what is his business?"

"Oh, I don't know how long Bill will stay. No, I didn't know him at college. He hasn't much business, he—er, has some theatrical interests I believe. It's—er—just a little rest. He lives in New York."

"Tomorrow he's coming? And you'll make good if he sneaks away without payin' his bills?"

"Yes."

Carl laughed at the idea of his friend skipping out.

The next day Carl met Jones at the little station and took him to the Plainvale Inn.

Mrs. Simson noticed that he had two big suitcases and a queer black box. She gave him the big cool northside room in the ell where, from her own curtained window in her room she could look into this room.

To her sister Mrs. Simson confided that she didn't like the looks of this William Jones.

Carl came over that evening. He and his friend Jones took a short walk and then came back to the inn. Carl went up to Jones' room. They sat by the open window, smoking and talking. Mrs. Simson went up to her room as soon as she could, but did not put on any lights. She sat by her window and looked across the ten-foot angle to the ell. She could see Carl and Mr. Jones plainly and she could hear what they said, almost every word.

"They make so many blunders," she heard Carl say.

"Right, but we won't blunder. We'll kill him in such a way that nobody can guess who did it."

Mrs. Simson's ears almost quivered at this.

Warns Old Man

"Listen, Carl, we agreed on that when you were in New York. That's why I'm here now. Sure he's got to be killed."

"If it could be done to look like natural death, Bill, wouldn't it be better?"

"But it can't be—it never really is, except in fiction, and you know it."

"All right, Bill—the old man has got to die because he won't give up his millions while he lives and he can't take them with him. Shoot!"

"The old-fashioned knife is reliable, no noise, no clues."

"But you can't stab a man in the dark, can you? And it can't be done in the light without—"

"Right. Hadn't thought of that. Of course we can use a muffler on a gun, have him in a dim light, enough to get a good bead on him—get the idea?"

Carl Merrill went home.

Mrs. Simson hurried down and sat on the front veranda and tried to think. Should she telephone old Cyrus Merrill and warn him? She was trembling like a leaf, she told herself. Her sister was up in her room, probably asleep. She went up and was relieved to find her reading in bed. She told her, with amazing accuracy, what she had overheard.

The next night Mrs. Simson listened again and received another shock.

She recalled the mysterious black box Mr. Jones brought with him. It frightened her now. It might explode prematurely and blow them all up—and to think that a cold-blooded murder was being plotted under her roof! It was more than she could stand. She went downstairs and telephoned to old Cyrus Merrill. She told him everything she knew, which was to the effect that right that moment his nephew and some city villain were planning on murdering him for his money.

"Thanks," was all the old man said and hung up. Mrs. Simson was amazed at this. She went back to her room to listen, but they said very little, and that in low tones. They were out of sight, at the table. She wondered if they suspected that she had overheard him. She wondered if they would murder her, too, to prevent discovery. And then the desk bell clanged and she went down to the little office. Old Cyrus Merrill was there.

"Take me up to that room," he ordered.

"They—they'll kill you!" Mrs. Simson gasped.

"I ain't been killed yet," he said sharply.

She took him up in fear and trembling. He rapped and walked in.

"What's all this, Carl," he demanded.

"Well, did that nosey old hen, Mrs. Simpson, go and yawn something to you?" Carl managed to stammer.

"I heard every word of your plot to murder your poor old uncle—keep away from that black box—"

Mrs. Simson screamed, for Mr. Jones opened the box. It contained a portable typewriter.

Mrs. Simson dared them to deny what she had overheard.

"Well, Uncle Cyrus, she's right. We are plotting to kill an old man for his money—in a mystery play. You see, I'm Gwen Warren or at least that's the name I used on my play, 'Wit's End.' That is still running with two road shows, and we got seventy-five thousand picture rights. My friend Jones and I are working on another play. You forbade me to fuss around playwriting so I had to keep it secret—"

Proud of Nephew

"Very well, be a fool—I'm through with you," the old man bellowed at him. "You can write plays and starve."

"I've already cleaned up about a hundred thousand, and I'm getting about five thousand a week now, Uncle Cyrus, so don't worry."

"You are? That's different, Carl. I'm proud of you—"

"And I am going to marry Josie next Wednesday. What do you say to that?"

"I say there goes all your profits, Carl."

"That's a swell line, uncle. I'll put it in my play!" Carl shouted, "my next play after this—a comedy, and I'll use this whole situation, including a character like Mrs. Simson."

"Don't you dare!" Mrs. Simson cried. "I'll thank you to mind your own business. I never stuck my nose in nobody's business in my life and—"

"That line is a wow!" Carl yelled.

He and Bill Jones shook hands and laughed like idiots as Mrs. Simson and Uncle Cyrus went down stairs telling each other that Carl and Bill were the biggest pair of fools on earth.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

After a long period of trial and error, our Special Social Service Commission (a body composed of men and women who do things and make statements afterward) has succeeded in inventing a pliable rubber club which is annoying when used upon a citizen, but leaves no marks to show in court. Our S. S. S. Commission thinks these will be very handy for police officers to use in subduing disinterested spectators who happen to be in the neighborhood of disorderly gatherings.

The City Manager Plan

It Might Serve as a Useful Weapon With Which to Force the Administration to Give Good Service.

Mayor Kline, according to a message from Harrisburg, is opposing the Moore city manager bill. Representative Moore has accordingly had the bill referred back to the House Committee on Elections, of which he is chairman, for a hearing on March 24.

The measure authorizes the people of Pittsburgh and other Pennsylvania cities to adopt the city manager system of government if they desire. It is entirely optional with the voters if they shall do so; but Kline, according to the Harrisburg report, is unwilling even that the power shall be placed in their hands.

Under the city manager plan Pittsburgh would be governed much as a private business is conducted. The voters' representatives in Council, chosen under the proportional representation plan, would correspond to a board of directors; they would employ a trained executive called a manager to take charge of the city's business under their direction. Cleveland and Cincinnati are so governed.

The city manager plan might or might not be a good thing for Pittsburgh. But possession of the power to adopt it would be a useful weapon. Knowledge that the citizens possessed it would tend to make the administration give good service.

The support that Mr. Moore has gained for his bill is impressive. It has the indorsement of the State Federation of Labor, the Allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny County, the Congress of Women's Clubs of Western Pennsylvania, the League of Women Voters, the Civic Club, the Pittsburgh Council of Churches and other organizations.

But it is to be borne in mind that indorsement of the bill is not necessarily an indorsement of the city manager plan, for the bill forces nothing on a community, but merely grants new powers of home rule.

'Nobody's Business'

Gov. Pinchot Furnishes a Very Good Reason Why the Blue Law Should Be Repealed.

Gov. Pinchot, who opposes any change in the Blue Law, was asked if he ever played tennis or attended a movie on Sunday. He refused to answer, saying it was "nobody's business."

If it is nobody's business whether or not he plays tennis on Sunday, why should it be anybody's business if a group of youths play sandlot baseball on Sunday?

The Governor, of course, was inconsistent.

If no one has a right to question a citizen's indulgence in innocent amusements on Sunday, the law which makes it the state's—that is, everybody's—business to interfere with Sunday amusements should be repealed.

Russia as a Laboratory

American Business Leaders Should Watch Results of Soviet Economic Experiments.

Depression at home has made American business leaders a little more open minded toward the Russian Soviet experiment.

Those of us who believe fully in our own type of democracy need not assume an ostrich-like attitude, and shut our eyes to what is going on in the test tubes of a foreign country which is discovering anew the principles of politics and economics in a spirit of violent ruthlessness.

Sam A. Lewisohn, American capitalist, who has visited Russia, contends that the Soviet is operating under the forms of capitalism and the spirit of communism. He calls the resultant system "an economic beverage like sanka or kaffee hag with the profit caffeine extracted."

Mr. Lewisohn reports that the elimination of the profit motive, which disciples of Karl Marx have for so long advocated, has failed to solve magically the challenging problems of human relationships.

Even under the new cloak of Sovietism, Mr. Lewisohn finds the same perplexing problems of heightening labor efficiency, of wage disputes, and of other riddles of management.

Writing in the Political Science Quarterly, Mr. Lewisohn concludes:

"Both management and labor behave very much the same under non-profit as under a profit system. Russian experience proves that the abolition of the system of private profit will not cure all the problems of the relations between employer and employes. It brings us to the rather surprising and paradoxical conclusion that there can be a 'labor problem' where there is no conflict between capital and labor."

The inference seems warranted that basic economic problems will survive under most any form of political organization.

Modern Democratic states, in return, can perhaps adapt for their own purposes the zest for co-ordinated effort, which has been articulated in the Russian five-year plan.

Anarchy in business contributes to breakdowns of prosperity, but it is not the only cause. Even in the state-controlled system of Soviet Russia economic crises still recur.

Russia has become a crucible for testing the assumptions of economists, and alert men of business who are not watching the experiment are wasting a fine opportunity for enlightenment.

IMMORTALS OF ENGINEERING

By Archibald Henderson

There is something of the adorative instinct in man, even in the agnostic and the atheist. If the agnostic says he does not know enough to believe in God he sets up knowledge as a god. If the atheist frankly denies the existence of God, he imputes to man himself the attributes of a god. Images are gods we constantly are setting up to incorporate our ideals, ambitions and loftiest aspirations. Every man has a pantheon in his own soul. Every nation has a hall of history, an academy of immortals, a pantheon wherein stand the effigies of the men and women who represent the highest reaches of the human spirit.

Art, literature, pure science, philosophy—all have bestirred themselves in the erection of such monuments to their loftiest exemplars. But hitherto applied science, as represented in engineering, has been too preoccupied with the intensive labors of making a material civilization to become highly self-conscious. But the time is coming, especially in this country, where concrete achievement is rated so highly, when the engineer will begin to magnify his office and demand the world's obeisance to the highest of his kind.

A significant movement in this direction was recently inaugurated in this country, under the auspices of our great schools of engineering. Other hierarchies have been set up: Dante, Goethe, Moliere, Shakespeare and others in literature; Praxiteles, Michelangelo, Phidias, Rodin and others in sculpture; Raphaeel, Rubens, Rembrandt, Gainsborough and others in painting; Euclid, Archimedes, Galileo, Kepler, Newton, Einstein and others in science. Who are the greatest engineers in the history of science? Have there been great geniuses in engineering, as well as in other comprehensive fields of human activity?

The deans of American engineering schools have recently considered this question. They have been very conservative and modest in their decision, choosing only five names. These are: Leonardo de Vinci, James Watt, Ferdinand de Lesseps, James B. Eads and Thomas A. Edison. These men belong to modern times, with the exception of Da Vinci, who was modern in his outlook and vision.

Singularly enough, Archimedes is omitted from the list—probably because his reputed engineering feats, which were extraordinary if true, rest largely upon legendary accounts, and have no tangible evidence to support them. This, however, is no proof that these legends or historical accounts are false. It is merely unwise, and indeed unscientific, for scientists to base their decision upon unproved statements.

Aside from originality, genius and accomplishment, these five men were all conspicuous for indefatigable labor and severe application. They all serve as impressive examples of what mighty things can be accomplished by genius, reinforced by ambition, courage and energy.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The story of Ray Schmidt, who lived in the back street of Walter Saxel's life. Beautiful, warm, abundant, Ray Schmidt, with her easy kisses and her eager hands—most people will say she was a bad woman. Yet she had all the virtues of great goodness. She was faithful, loving and generous, patient, brave and utterly unselfish. And, though she lived cheaply, no taint ever entered her soul. To the last, she was child-like in her simplicity and sweetness. But—she did live cheaply, and that was her great sin. Her sin against herself. She did not harm Walter Saxel nor his wife nor their children. But she did harm herself. She had no respect for herself—put no price on herself—

And that is the deadliest thing a human can do to his life.

What's that mysterious phrase in the New Testament—"The sin against the Holy Ghost"? They called it the "unforgivable sin." To sin against the living spirit within oneself—to cheapen and waste that sacred, secret spark—Life doesn't forgive that.

Ray Schmidt did that. She was born into a rare body—born rather splendidly, with a fire in her that drew men and a power to quicken and comfort. She could have lived richly and been treasured—if she'd treasured herself. But she didn't. She loved—and felt that one should put no price on loving. And so, because she did not value herself, she had no value to others—

There's a hideous picture of her, near the end—scrambling for coins in a Parisian restaurant. Ray Schmidt, who had bloomed so splendidly, like a great flower, "down on all fours, her back bare and with a ridge down its middle, which she could never quite reach with a powder-puff, fingers groping among cuspidors and table legs and feet-of-the-evening, for rolling coins."

She came to that—and worse. Some will say the man sent her to that. But no man could have sent Ray Schmidt to that if she'd respected herself. She didn't. She thought she shouldn't. She thought love came before self-respect—that you mustn't put a price on love—that if you loved, love would take care of you—

She'd been a good business woman. She had known how to put a price on laces and buttons and millinery trimmings. She had known the value of such trivial things—and respected that value. But she didn't respect the value of herself—

So many women feel like that! It's the romantic gallant tradition for women to feel like that. "The world well lost for love"—Thoughts of the future? The woman who loves should take no thought. She should trust her future to love. Love will reward her. Love will protect her.

It won't! That theory listens pretty, but it lives wrong. We've no right to abandon our lives, even in the name of love.

For life is more important than love. And the right love helps life—promotes life. If love doesn't serve life—if it wastes and frustrates life—then love becomes as vicious as hate. And life revenges herself by giving you just what you asked for—nothing.

Why are so many good women, who "never think of themselves," who "live their lives for others," unappreciated? Why are they snubbed in their youth, neglected in their old age? Why are good women treated like that? For exactly the same reason that bad women are treated like that. They don't respect themselves, and others hold them as cheaply as they held themselves.

Every American woman should read that book. It is, I believe, the greatest book that has ever been written for woman—for any woman.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Dreamer

In truth, scant meaning lies for me
In this, the world I feel, smell, see;
Unreal the orchard's blooms Unfold,
Unreal the sunset's cloth of gold,
Or if the crowds through city's maze
Flow swiftly down tumultuous ways
To knock upon my house of life,
They enter not, with peace or strife,
As dweller on a busy street
Who hears about his hasting feet,
The hum of traffic and the roar
Of being's tide against his door.
Yet in his quiet room lives on,
Apart from men, remote, withdrawn,
So life itself less vital seems
To me than bright domains of dreams!

Marry-Go-Round

So, This Is Love!

The electric grill may have replaced the old kitchen stove and the radio may have crowded out the old melodeon; but up to date, no adequate substitute has ever been found for castor oil, love, marriage—or a man's shoulder to cry on.

Isn't It So?

A pessimist is a person who looks for the thorn in a bed of roses.

Many a woman says: "There is no use talking,"—but she never thinks so.

The disadvantage of leading a sensible life is that many will consider you silly.

The old-time bartender who gets a job behind a soda water fountain says it's a good bit of a fizzle.

THINK IT OVER

Drawn by Hal Coffman.

It is easy to capitalize other people's blunders, not so easy to capitalize your own.

However, it can be done. History is full of examples of men who have snatched victory from defeat at the eleventh hour.

Grant made mistakes, lost thousands of lives, but won the Civil War because he never knew when he was licked.

We learn by experience, and experience is merely another name for the errors that we commit. Everyone errs, but the successful man never commits the same error twice.

Don't be discouraged at your mistakes. Turn them, instead, into stepping stones on the ladder to success. They are the foundation of all achievement, if you have the brains and energy to make them so.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 13.—Thoughts while strolling: The newest color combination from Paris—gray and yellow. They say Cissie Loftus will not be alone a moment. Statue sellers with turbans and rings in their ears—born on Forsythe street. Billy Guard's blackthorn stick.

Artist C. N. Landon, a Norwalk, O., boy, who made good in the city. Few things so calamitous at the moment as a broken finger nail. A lady in a creamy whipcord suit and black stockings. Albert Crockett, once Bennett's favorite reporter. Now press agenting the St. Regis.

Belle Livingstone's "salon" dark and curtained. You can't beat those women's exchange places for dainties. White-haired messenger "boys" shuffling along with heads bowed. Now they are dipping potato chips in Easter egg colors. John Erskine window shopping.

Wish I could run across someone who would listen while I reminisce about early hardships. Phil Simms sports a monocle. Percy Crosby is certainly worked up about this Al Capone business—buying page ads to speak his mind. A few more of us need to get excited in the same way.

Katharine Cornell is never seen twice in the same fur coat. Those brittle women who never miss a morning lecture at Town Hall. Exemplars of the new freedom. They say Elsie Ferguson makes a swell speech. Not using notes "because they destroy motivation for spontaneity." Imagine!

Tourists rounding in from Mediterranean cruises. Ed Graham, the artist. Everybody is putting chains on apartment doors these days. And Iturbe, the Spanish pianist, is the talk of the music world. Ladies whose smiles suggest white coral.

Helen Menken's slender figure. And the bright coppery sheen of her hair. The smell of cabbage to me suggests washtubs. And I might garland that with a quaint epigram. But it would sound snobbish. This town is overrun with snobs as it is.

Damon Runyon is one of Broadway's human complexities. He has the vitality of the people about whom he writes and consequently has a good time anywhere. He rarely goes to bed until dawn, sitting about here and there with gay groups, sipping only black coffee. He gives an outward display of extreme leisure, yet he probably produces more copy than any other writer. And excellent copy, too.

With times on the upswing, valets are again in slight demand. The going has been tough for some time. Valets take such names as Hodgkins, Godchaux and Meadows because it gives them a stage glamour and makes the job easier to land. An agency tells me those of a taciturn nature hold their jobs longest. Many valets talk themselves out of a job. I've always ached for one of P. G. Wodehouse's valets. You know! Jeeves the gentleman's gentleman.

Visiting an English country home for the week-end with Frazier Hunt one time, a melancholy valet was assigned to us. His name was Plunkler and he suggested Arnold Bennett, even to his high white crest. He came in the first morning with a bowl of water and placed it gravely between our beds. And waited deferentially. Finally Hunt said he wasn't thirsty and I acted as though I had fallen back to sleep. We learned he was just trying to show us the temperature of the "bawth." Fawncy!

O, yes, we went later to the "morning room" for a buffet breakfast off the hunting table—sideboard in Gallipolis. Among the tid-bits was smoked sausage neatly skewered on pikes. But we arrived late and only one sausage was left. We were wrestling for it when the Duchess or whoever the hostess was popped in. She packed an ear trumpet, lorgnette and high handshake. So you can imagine how we spun into a quick dwindle.

From the Arkansas Gimmick: "O. O. McIntyre threatens to visit the Ozarks. A lot of the boys are peeping over the ridges and waiting and there are many empty gun racks over front doors."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why complain because all your earnings go to support your family?

You want a home and a home creates an obligation.

If you did not want to assume the sacrifices and self-denials incidental to the position of the head of the house, why did you do it?

If you desired to be free from cares and worries and the expenses of a family man, you should have remained single.

But now that you have taken it upon yourself, be a good sport and take what comes like a man.

Your future prospects may not be all that you wish that they might be.

Your desire for freedom from responsibility, the privilege of going and coming as you choose, the time and money you would like to spend in travel are denied you, but they are denied most men.

Your family is not to blame for being here to support.

You wanted a family and your duty is to be cheerful and happy and thankful that you have a job and the health to provide for their needs.
